BALBO'S FLYERS LEAVE AZORES FOR PORTUGAL

Squadron Cheered on Arrival in Horta.

BULLETIN.

LONDON, Aug. 9 (Wednesday).—(AP)—Reuter's News agency reported from Horta, Azores, today that the Italian armada of 24 seaplanes took off for Lisbon, Portugal, at 5:25 a. m. (2:25 a. m. Chicago daylight time) on the next to last lap of their homeward journey from the United States.

(Pictures on Back Page.)

HORTA, Azores, Aug. 8.—(AP)—The Italian trans-Atlantic squadron of 24 seaplanes arrived in the Azores late today from Shoal Harbor, Newfoundland, successfully completing the 1,500 mile flight, which is the longest stage on the homeward journey. The flight was completed in slightly less than 11 hours.

Gen. Italo Balbo, the leader, descended with 15 ships at Ponta Delgada while nine planes under the immediate direction of Gen. Aldo Pellegrini came down to the water in Horta harbor.

A discharge of rockets and the shriek of sirens greeted the group of nine as it arrived here to be welcomed by thousands of sightseers.

Hydrangeas Cover Quay.

The silvered seaplanes flew in perfect formation to their landing places, presenting an impressive sight as they reflected the brilliant sunshine. With military precision they taxied up to their buoys which had been placed by the Italian mother ship, Citta di Catania.

Climbing out of his seaplane, Gen. Pellegrini showed no signs of weariness from the long ocean flight. He received an enthusiastic ovation from the waiting crowd.

"It was a splendid journey," he said of today's exploit. "The sky was practically without clouds all the way from the immediate vicinity of Newfoundland. All the machines gave a good performance.

Hop for Lisbon Today.

"Our machines already are being refueled preparatory to the takeoff for Lisbon at dawn tomorrow. We intend to join up with the rest of the armada when we pass over San Miguel."

Gen. Pellegrini and his officers were given a rousing reception ashore after the civic reception aboard the Citta di Catania. The roadways were carpeted with blue hydrangeas and balconies of houses lining the route of his procession were hung with colorful shawls and tapestries.

The armada left Shoal Harbor at 2:45 a. m. [Chicago daylight saving time] today. Unfavorable weather conditions had heid the squadron at Shoal Harbor since July 26, when they arrived there from Shediac, N. B., and New York after a visit to A Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago.

Polish Flyers Crack Up.

HARBOR GRACE, Newfoundland, Aug. 8.—(AP)—Struck by a heavy gust of wind, the White Eagle, monoplane of the Polish-American flyers, Benjamin and Joseph Adamowicz, upset here this afternoon as it came to a landing after a "test" flight from New York.

The Adamowicz brothers and their companion and assistant pilot, Emil Birgen, suffered a shaking up in the crash, which did much damage to the under carriage of the plane.

The brothers planned a hop to their native land, Poland, in the plane, which formerly was known as The Liberty. It was the same craft in which Otto Hillig and Holger Hoiriis flew to Denmark two years ago.

Lands With the Wind.

The White Eagle took off from Floyd Bennett field in New York at 5:06 a. m. [Chicago daylight saving time] with a gasoline supply of 500 gallons. It landed here at 2:10 p. m.

As the plane appeared it seemed as if it would land against the wind, but after coming down with the wind the craft suddenly swerved while traveling on the ground at a good rate of speed. It came to a halt with a crash in a clump of bushes.

Frenchmen to Fly Home.

RAYAK, Syria, Aug. 8.—(AP)—The French flyers, Maurice Rossi and Paul Codos, rested after their strenuous air journey from New York which set a new distance record, already were planning tonight a quick return to France.

The airmen, who arrived here last night after flying nonstop for about 5,750 miles, or more than 500 miles further than the previous record hoped to fly back to France as soon as their plane, the Joseph Le Brix had been overhauled.

INDICT LAWYER IN COURTROOM MURDER INQUIRY

Former Assistant State's Attorney Ross Lee Laird, John Scheck, the slayer of a policeman, and two other members of the Scheck family were reported named in true bills voted yesterday by the Cook county grand jury. Scheck shot and killed Policeman John Sevick two weeks ago in the Criminal courtroom of Judge Charles Molthrop as the officer tried to halt the gunman's attempt to escape.

The voting of the true bills was one of the highlights in the day's war against gunmen and other dangerous criminals. During the day Criminal court judges imposed 14 penitentiary sentences and five Bridewell terms, a record for punishment inflicted since the crime war began. The campaign was organized as a result of the Sevick murder.

Name Scheck as Slayer.

The true bill against John Scheck charges him with the murder of Sevick and also names his mother, Mrs. Rose Scheck. According to Assistant State's Attorney Emmet Moynihan, who presented the evidence to the grand jury, Mrs. Scheck supplied the gun which her son used in the killing. Mrs. Scheck brought the gun to the courtroom in a black pocketbook, said Moynihan, and smuggled it to her son through the bars of the court detention room.

Attorney Laird and Frank Scheck, older brother of John, were named jointly in a true bill charging them with conspiracy to obstruct justice. Moynihan refused to discuss the evidence against Attorney Laird, but it became known that the true bill is based on evidence that the attorney is alleged to have shielded Mrs. Scheck from the police after a coroner's jury had ordered her held for murder.

Mrs. Scheck could not be found by the police for ten days. Attorney Laird finally surrendered her to Capt. Daniel Gilbert of the state's attorney's staff after a formal demand was made.

Receives Phone Call.

At the time of the surrender Attorney Laird told the prosecutors that he had received an anonymous telephone call to meet some one in front of a Maywood church. When he reached the church, he said, he found Mrs. Scheck waiting. The prosecution charged that Attorney Laird was constantly in touch with Mrs. Scheck and that her son, Frank, a bartender, also was aware of her hiding place. Frank Scheck lives at 1818 North Keeler avenue.

Attorney Laird, who served as assistant prosecutor under John A. Swanson, was given an opportunity to appear before the grand jury before the true bills were voted. He refused to testify, contending that the relations between an attorney and client are privileged matters. He said, however, that if Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court would order him to do so he would testify. The chief justice replied this was a matter for the attorney and the grand jury to decide.

The jury took no action against four others ordered held by the coroner's jury as accessories to the Sevick murder. The lack of action automatically nullifies the coroner's jury verdict naming them as accessories. They were Jeanette Haddon, Scheck's girl friend; John Soder, Cook county painting foreman, and Joseph and Mary Scheck, brother and sister of the police killer.

Testifies for State.

Carl Grundhoefer, who made the attempted courtroom escape with Scheck, was not named in the true bills. He was a prosecution witness before the jury. The assistant prosecutor said he believed Grundhoefer's story that Scheck forced him under threats of death to make the break for liberty.

Grundhoefer, however, is named as co-defendant with Scheck in another murder indictment charging that they shot and killed William Mueller, cashier of the Niles Center National bank, during a robbery. Grundhoefer is charged with firing the fatal shot in that case. It was while waiting trial in the Mueller case that Scheck tried to escape.

Last week Judge Molthrop said he would take no contempt action against any of the bailiffs who allowed Scheck's relatives to visit the detention room where John was held, in violation of court rules. Eight bailiffs were discharged as a result of the disclosures made at the time. However, no announcement has been made regarding the status of Soder's position with the county. It was Soder, father of two sons involved in some of the Scheck gang robberies, who ar-

Arizona 21st State to Vote Dry Repeal

Phoenix, Ariz., Aug. 8.—(AP)—Arizona's ratification of the 21st amendment repealing prohibition seemed assured tonight when returns from 313 of the state's 444 precincts showed: For repeal, 31,683; against, 9,604.

Arizona is the 21st consecutive state, of the necessary 36, thus far to vote for ratification of the amendment to repeal the United States constitutional dry provision.

Santa Cruz county, on the Mexican border, first to complete its count, went "wet" nine to one, and Graham county, which voted "dry" when the state prohibition laws were repealed last November, was going "wet" two to one.

Roosevelt's Friend Ahead.

Idabella Greenway, national committee woman for Arizona and friend of President Roosevelt's family, led her nearest opponent more than two to one for the Democratic nomination to the congressional seat vacated by Lewis W. Douglas, now federal director of the budget.

From 313 precincts Mrs. Greenway late tonight had 26,333 votes, against 7,128 for Harlow Akers, young Phoenix lawyer, and 4,411 for William Coxon, former secretary of the Arizona corporation commission.

No Republicans were running. The state has one member of congress elected at large.

Governor Votes Wet.

Gov. B. B. Moeur joined thousands of other Arizonans today in helping to ratify the repeal of the 18th amendment.

"I am personally dry," the governor said after he cast his ballot in the state-wide election, "but I supported the mandate of President Roosevelt and the government."

Prohibition leaders conceded early that there was no chance for Arizona to become the first state to register its opposition to repeal. This state's prohibition enforcement laws were removed from the statutes by a vote of more than two to one last November. In today's election there was no slate of prohibitionist delegates on the ballot.

Alabama Ratifies Repeal.

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 8.—Alabama's prohibition repeal convention met here today and cast this state's vote in favor of striking the 18th amendment from the constitution of the United States. This was the 17th state to take such action.

Colorado to Vote Soon.

Denver, Aug. 8.—(AP)—Colorado was assured a place among the states to vote on prohibition repeal this year when the house late today adopted a measure to submit the 21st amendment to popular vote Sept. 12. The measure had passed the senate and Gov. Johnson has indicated he will approve it.

TURNS PIRATE ON LAUNCH; SEIZED BY PASSENGERS

Joseph Pennick, 24 years old, 727 California terrace, who turned pirate late last night on a speed boat operating from the Michigan avenue bridge, was overpowered by the passengers, deprived of his pistol and turned over to the police when the boat returned to its dock.

The boat, piloted by James Nester, 1232 North La Salle street, had taken a party of six, one of whom was a woman, along the World's Fair shore line and then two miles out in the lake. It was on its way back and opposite Van Buren street when Pennick leaped up, waving his pistol and crying: "It's a stickup."

But the motion of the boat caused him to slip, and as he fell to the floor Pilot Nester and some of the male passengers piled on him and took the weapon. At the bridge he was put in custody of Lincoln Park Policemen Annen and Conway, who took him to the Chicago avenue police station.

Lieut. George De Mar, after looking up the laws governing shipping, held that Pennick was guilty of piracy on the high seas and held him for federal prosecution. The passengers in the boat besides Pennick were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rider of Erie, Pa.; James Pio, 228 North La Salle street, and Kenneth Bonine and Stanley Butler, both of Jones, Mich.

Policeman Is Slain Refusing Glass of Wine

Policeman Patrick J. Ryan of the Shakespeare avenue station was shot and killed in a beer saloon at 3328 Armitage avenue last night because he refused to accept a drink of wine from a tipsy stranger. The slayer, Peter Pace, 23 years old, known in the neighborhood as "Piccolo Pete," was seized later in his home at 1948 North Central Park avenue. He confessed the shooting.

Refuses Glass of Wine.

As the policeman stood at the bar Pace and a companion entered the saloon. Police were told the companion was Arthur Holzhous, 3523 Palmer street. He and Pace carried a gallon jug of wine with them and set it on the bar. Pace filled up a glass.

"Here, have a drink on me," he invited, holding out the glass to Policeman Ryan.

Ryan refused it. His refusal infuriated Pace and the latter hurled the contents of the rejected glass into the policeman's face. The shooting followed a few seconds later. Bergman, the saloon owner, said he only saw the policeman and Pace struggling.

Seizes Policeman's Gun.

Pace declared that when he threw the wine into Ryan's face Ryan drew a gun. Pace seized the gun, according to his story, and it was discharged. As Ryan fell Pace leveled the weapon at the startled Bergman and threatened him, the saloonkeeper said. Pace then fled with his companion. The latter is being sought.

Pace was arrested by Sergt. William Gormley. He was still tipsy and taken to the station in a cab. During the ride he told his story to Gormley.

Ryan was 45 years old. He had been a policeman for 15 years. His wife is Hannah and his children are Adelaide, 11 years old; Joseph, 16; Marie, 13, and Jackie, 7.

AL JOLSON SUED BY WINCHELL; $500,000 ASKED

New York, Aug. 9 [Wednesday].—(AP)—Walter Winchell, Broadway columnist, said early today he had sued Al Jolson for $500,000 as a result of their fistic encounter two weeks ago in Hollywood.

Winchell stated: "Public opinion has been led to believe I'm guilty of some kind of an offense against Mr. and Mrs. Jolson. I have not offended either one. And now I intend to prove it in court."

Jolson, explaining why he struck Winchell, said the latter had written a scenario which was offensive to Mrs. Jolson (Ruby Keeler), her information being that the story dealt with her career.

CUBAN CHIEF SAYS HE WILL FIGHT OUSTER MOVE

President Machado of Cuba yesterday gave his analysis of the political situation in his country as well as his plans.

BY GERARDO MACHADO.

[President of the Republic of Cuba.]

HAVANA, Aug. 8.—[Special.]—I am and will continue to be the president of the republic of Cuba, exercising all of my constitutional prerogatives. Of these I cannot relinquish the smallest part without becoming a traitor to the confidence reposed in me by the people of Cuba when they freely gave their votes to me, or without diminishing the independence and sovereignty of a republic that I assisted in founding, having fought in the war for independence.

The difficulties now occurring in Cuba are similar to those that are happening in other countries, but a greater importance is given to those that are unfolding here, possibly because ours is a small country and in it a great amount of foreign capital is invested.

Approves Strikers' Demands.

The workmen's and other similar strikes are workmen's strikes in character and, in an interview held today in the palace with the strike committee, which has not vacillated in coming before the Cuban government authority, I have approved their demands and they have offered to renew the transportation service tomorrow, thus normalizing supplies for the city.

The workers have protested to me energetically against the perverse methods whereby the tumult of yesterday was provoked by elements strange to them. This tumult was suppressed rapidly by the police of the city without the army having to fire a single shot.

I am disposed to mediate with my political adversaries and to concede to them their just demands to any extent that will not diminish the authority or the prestige of the institutions of the republic or the head of the state.

Works for Peace and Order.

Today I am sending to congress a message recommending the immediate approval of the electoral reforms advised by Prof. Howard Lee McBain of Columbia university.

I believe the people of the United States will understand that I am working for peace and order in Cuba and defending against revolution and anarchy the independence, sovereignty, and the institutions of a republic that the same people of the United States aided nobly to form.

ANDORRANS SLOW UP REVOLUTION TO GET HAY IN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ANDORRA, Aug. 8.—The Andorrans have been obliged to delay their revolution, or at least slow down its march, in order to get the hay in.

The citizens of this tiny state have decided that the crops need all their attention right now, so they have postponed until Sept. 29 the general elections called in defiance of the coprinces—the president of France and the Spanish bishop of Urgel—in which all Andorrans, young and old, are to vote for the first time in history.

A uniformed constabulary will be left on guard and in case the French threaten to do anything couriers will be sent to bring the patriots down the mountains to defend their new found liberty.

PLAN FOR PEACE IS SUBMITTED BY U. S. ENVOY

Proposes Coalition Cabinet in Havana.

BULLETIN.

HAVANA, Aug. 8.—(AP)—Two policemen were killed and two others wounded late tonight by unidentified persons who fired upon them from an automobile with machine guns in Maceo park.

[Copyright: 1933: By the Associated Press.]

HAVANA, Aug. 8.—Sumner Welles, United States ambassador, it was confirmed from a high source, told President Gerardo Machado today that he must ask congress for a leave of absence if Cuba's political problems are to be settled.

This was the principal point of a formula agreed to by Cuban political parties and presented to the president by Mr. Welles in his capacity as mediator of the island's political difficulties.

The government appeared ready to resist.

Machado announced a short time before: "I am and I continue being president of Cuba."

The president's words came a short time after he had held an interview with Mr. Welles. The American envoy declared as he left the presidential palace that "mediation is not ended." The ambassador had been engaged for some time in an attempt to mediate the Cuban political turmoil.

Welles Presents Formula.

A formula was presented by Welles to the president, it was revealed. It embodied these points:

That Machado immediately name a secretary of state acceptable to all political factions.

(The Cuban constitution provides for the succession of the secretary of state to the presidency in the event that office becomes vacant.)

That thereafter Machado must ask congress for an indefinite leave of absence. With that request granted, the new secretary of state would succeed to the presidency and would immediately appoint a national cabinet representative of all political factions in the island.

Constitutional reforms worked out by the opposition delegates and the three political parties in collaboration with Welles, which provide for the restoration of the office of vice president abolished by the 1928 constitutional reform, then would be submitted to congress.

Plan Calls for an Election.

Once congress had voted the reforms they would be submitted to a constitutional convention which, under the constitution, must follow the action of congress within six months. Delegates to the convention would be chosen at elections supervised by the acting president.

The vice presidential office then would be filled either by congress or by the Supreme court.

Gen. Alberto Herrera, secretary of war and acting secretary of state, said Machado will consider tomorrow his answer to the Welles formula. The general is acting as secretary of state in the absence of Orestes Ferrara, returning to Cuba from London, where he attended the world economic conference.

Machado's statement today was issued in the face of demands yesterday that he resign. A bloody disturbance in which 21 persons lost their lives followed circulation of a false report that the president was on the verge of leaving his post.

Immediately after Welles left the palace today the president summoned leaders of the Liberal party, of which he is a member. He told them, it was learned, that he would not accept the proposal, whereupon the party representatives were reported to have promised that they would stand by him.

Mediation Efforts Assailed.

Meanwhile a committee of the house of representatives had under consideration a motion presented at a secret session last night by Salvador Garcia Ramos, a Liberal, describing Welles' mediation efforts as prejudicial to Cuban independence.

Senator Wilfredo Fernandez, a member of the Conservative party but an administration supporter, declared he considered "more unjustified than ever any sort of intervention" in Cuban affairs. The senator conferred with Welles more than an hour during the afternoon.

Declaring that while he admired the American envoy personally, "neither he nor any one else can pretend that Cubans accept with pleasure the slightest attempt on our sovereignty."

He continued that he desired to see Welles work out "the moral crisis in which we are living without creating for the republic or for the Cuban people situations which might do serious damage to the sentiments of cofraternity created by glorious and historic reasons between Cuba and the United States."

U. S. Efforts "Rejected."

Anselmo Alliegro, vice president of the house of representatives and a Liberal party leader, asserted leaders of "the Cuban policy and the Cuban people are always disposed to any agreement that brings as a consequence cordiality among elements making up this nation, but reject with the greatest protest and energy any effort that lessens Cuban sovereignty."

Garcia Ramos said that his motion before the house committee was inspired "by the highest concept I have of the honor of my country and the respect which it has come to deserve in the world as a free and independent nation.

"The president of Cuba, Gen. Machado," he added, "merits as much respect from me as does Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States."

Broadcasts from an unidentified location tonight called on Cuban youth to join in resisting intervention by the United States. One speaker said arms would be issued to any one desiring to fight for the maintenance of Cuban independence. Another, announced as a Popular party senator, urged all young Cubans to support the present administration.

The latest count of the results of yesterday's street firing made by visits to the morgue and hospitals, showed that besides the 21 dead there were 148 wounded. This did not include persons treated in their own homes.

Strikers Win Concessions.

Meanwhile the government announced some concessions to the strikers, including the release of all those arrested in consequence of the strike and presidential pardons for several labor leaders now serving prison terms. Official recognition of the unions, many of which were organized as a result of the strike, was also promised.

At Santiago today stevedores and longshoremen returned to work, the first commercial activity in that city since the walkout became general yesterday.

Quiet prevailed in the capital and soldiers were withdrawn from the city. Police, however, were equipped with rifles and maintained a constant patrol in and about public places.

Two Slain in Clash.

MANZANILLO, Cuba, Aug. 8.—(AP)—Aristides Aguilera, a police lieutenant, and a worker were killed today in a clash between police and strikers. Commercial activitiy has been virtually paralyzed here by the strike. Capt. Fernandez of the regular army and several men were wounded. Fernandez was acting as supervisor of the police.

GERMAN REBUFF STARTLES PARIS; EYES FRONTIER

Fears Peace Pacts Were Dealt Final Blow.

We'll Be Good! Berlin

ROME, Aug. 8.—(AP)—The German government informally advised Italy today that it would take steps immediately to end the Nazi aerial propaganda over Austrian territory, on which subject the Italian government recently made friendly representations. The Berlin government also promised to prohibit aggressive references to the Austrian government in German broadcasts.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Aug. 8.—Fear that the paper ramparts of peace pacts and treaties, laboriously built up over a generation by the late Aristide Briand and other apostles of international coöperation, has been dealt a final blow by the German response to the Franco-British diplomatic move in behalf of Austria, underlay comment in informed French circles today.

While the French foreign office and the war ministry studiously refrained from any gesture which might aggravate the situation, the man in the street has lost whatever faith he had in the diplomatic new deal. He now is turning his eyes to the line of frontier fortifications backed up by tanks and heavy artillery which he sees as the last hope of preserving peace in Europe.

A Diplomatic Fiasco.

This is the real significance of the diplomatic fiasco resulting from Germany's curt refusal to consider the polite protest made by French and British ambassadors against Chancellor Hitler's campaign to drive Chancellor Dollfuss' government out of power and set up a Nazi regime in Austria.

Officially, the Quai d'Orsay is trying to tone down its reaction to the German reply and insisting that its truculent tone is intended only for domestic consumption.

Alexis Leger, permanent director of political and commercial affairs at the French foreign office, and a favorite disciple of Briand, conferred today by telephone with his nominal chief, Joseph Paul-Boncour, and then paid an extraordinary call on Premier Daladier to decide what France will do in the face of the German rebuff.

There are vague threats of appealing to the league of nations under article XI., which permits any member to call the attention of the council to any situation threatening the peace of nations, but it is doubtful that any steps will be taken to follow this up.

Will Increase Vigilance.

It actually appears that France will do nothing—except to harden its stand on disarmament and increase its vigilance along the eastern frontier. There is a strong though unavowed feeling that Italy, which declined to join in making a protest, has played traitor.

The real significance of today's diplomatic crisis lies in its negative consequences. It seems to well informed observers here that the disarmament conference is doomed to a definitive smashup when it reconvenes in the fall.

And it is more than likely that parliament, which approved the action of the Daladier government in signing the four power peace pact, will balk at ratifying it when the issue comes up in October or November.

Back of all this there is a historic drama which strikes the French pacifist with tragic intensity. He recalls how Briand pulled Europe away from the brink of a new war at the time of the Locarno pact and how four or five years of relative international confidence, culminating in the signing of the Kellogg pact outlawing war, seemed to promise a new era in world history.

New Thrusts of Nationalism.

Then came the new thrust of nationalism in Germany answered by a similar reaction in France, the Manchurian crisis which destroyed faith in the league and the advent of Hitler which marked a low point in the graph of pacifist hopes.

Then when the skies seemed blackest reaction set in. Hitler, aiming at American opinion, came out with a reassuring statement of Germany's peaceful intentions. Mussolini, worried by the drawing together of France and England, proposed a peace pact in Europe—a pact which Daladier with difficulty persuaded a suspicious parliament and public opinion to accept.

The inevitable tendency of the nation is toward increased suspicion of Germany and a reinforced determination not to give up one soldier or one cannon on an unsupported pledge of moral support of any other country.

COL. M'CORMICK'S IMPRESSIONS OF TRIP TO EUROPE

Stops in England on Way to Study Hitlerism.

BY COL. ROBERT R. M'CORMICK.
[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, Aug. 8.—I have been in Berlin to ask what is Hitlerism and Nazism, why they act as they do, and in particular why they revived the Middle Age persecution of the Jews.

I have found the explanation and will give it in as few words as possible, but first will outline the impressions received on the journey here which helped me to reach my point of view.

By happenstance I debarked at Southampton during "Cowes week." At the moment three separate yacht races were in progress and the harbor was churned with many motorboats. Large yachts were at anchor, among them the royal yacht Victoria and Albert with the king of England aboard.

Warship Guards King.

A great superdreadnaught was close by. Eugene Speck, assistant London correspondent of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, told me it was there to guard the king. He added that at the moment there was a great disturbance in official circles because an aviator had flown over the harbor at an elevation of 1,000 feet in violation of the law forbidding a flight at less altitude than 5,000 feet in the vicinity of the king. That such precautions were deemed necessary was a surprise and, when he added that a government mail truck had been held up and robbed that morning, I concluded that America had no monopoly on crime and violence and that part of Europe's reputation for lawfulness was due to suppression of crime news.

Crowds on the roads were enormous throughout the day—a week day. All were comfortably and stylishly dressed and were pleasure bent. Whether on the dole or not they were not poor or unhappy.

When I commented repeatedly upon the size of the crowds, John Steele, London correspondent of THE TRIBUNE, said they might be accounted for in part by the migration from northern England where the weaving industry is in dire straits, which called attention to the fact that many children along the way were dressed in bathing suits and that most of the women wore no stockings and not enough other accouterments to be of much use to the new deal in textiles.

Style of Semi-Nudity Exists.

This style of semi-nudity persists in spite of an unfavorable season, for there have been a number of sunny days in England this season and a considerable part of the savings in stockings has been paid out to lay lotions on lobster colored limbs.

In the evening Mr. Steele took me to the leading play of the season. It was along the lines of a French farce without the saving subtlety we find in the latter, probably because we do not understand all of the words. There was the very immoral young wife of a high government official seeking the downfall of an honest but muttish officer of the guards. She was surprised in the process, in stockings, to be sure, but little else, by an honest working girl who was honestly shocked, and the situation was only saved in the end by the tact, virtue and loyalty of a family nurse.

When the curtain fell the bad—in the play only—lady got all the applause, as the English public loves its aristocrats and loves them bad. The only new thing about the play was that the conventional stately English actress had yielded to the Hollywood type, slouchy and serpentine, with eyes as large as a generously built mouth.

Finds Play Funny.

I asked Mr. Steele if he considered such a play in the English a sign of decadence. He did not. I then remarked that it was so vulgar as to be in bad form, and started to change the subject when he asked me if I had found it funny. Yes, very funny, I agreed, whereupon he rejoined with noticeable emphasis that in his last visit to New York he had seen a more vulgar play that was not even funny. New York papers please copy.

I did not see any member of the government, even with Mr. Steele along to interpret my mind, as I did not think the English trip had anything to do with my German assignment.

But it did. It furnished a background of contrast and that is why I have written about it.

CROWDS AMAZE DR. SOONG, HERE ON WAY TO CHINA

Dr. T. V. Soong, head of the Chinese delegation to the London economic conference, stayed in Chicago for several hours last night after his arrival from the east where he and other members of the Chinese delegation visited President Roosevelt at Hyde Park, the summer White House.

After visiting the World's Fair, Dr. Soong took a midnight train for California. He said he left Dr. Alfred Sze, Chinese minister to the United States, in Washington. Dr. Sze will take his vacation in Europe, according to Dr. Soong, who denied reports that the minister was also going back to China.

HITLER KEEPS HIS PLEDGE; 'FIRES' NAZI POLICEMEN

Auxiliary Force Ordered Dissolved in Prussia.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 8.—Premier Hermann Wilhelm Goering of Prussia, after a conference with Chancellor Hitler in his Alpine retreat at Obersalzberg, today ordered the dissolution of the Nazi brown and black shirted auxiliary police on Aug. 15. "It has accomplished the mission for which it was created"—to help firmly entrench the new government—the government announced.

Dissolution of the auxiliary forces by the end of the year was promised to the world powers by Hitler in his speech to the reichstag in May. This month was chosen for the dissolution because official circles declare that "it will help end rumors recurring in the foreign press that Germany is rearming; it will also make Germany's position stronger in the disarmament conference at Geneva."

May Call on Army.

Prussia still possesses the regular police, the powerful state secret police and, according to a new decree, will be able to call upon the reichswehr [army] in case of emergency.

Secret police today arrested Alfred Braun, at one time Germany's most popular radio announcer, and a number of former directors of the National Radio company. They were charged with squandering the company's funds. Braun, the Nazis allege, received a salary and royalties of $75,000 from the National Radio in the last six years. The prisoners were taken to a concentration camp.

In Detmold, Feilx Fechenbach, former editor of a Socialist newspaper, was shot to death by guards today while being transferred from prison to a Bavarian concentration camp. Authorities said Fechenbach attempted to escape.

Resigns to Save Colleague.

As the price of liberty for his ailing 68 year old colleague, Paul Goldmann, correspondent of the Austrian Neue Freie Presse, Edgar Ansel Mowrer, the American president of the Foreign Press club and correspondent of the Chicago Daily News, resigned his chairmanship today.

Goldmann, a Prussian citizen, was arrested by Germans in retaliation for the arrest of German newspaper men in Vienna. The Press club attempted to intercede in Goldmann's behalf.

American, British, and French correspondents offered to go to prison in Goldmann's place by taking turns a day each until his term was completed. This was rejected. Then a second offer was made.

Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, had demanded Mowrer's resignation, which the club refused. Mowrer offered to resign if Goldmann was released at once. The offer was accepted and Goldmann was released.

Boy, 9, Drowns in Lake at Highland Park Beach

Richard Gerken, 9 years old, 774 South St. Johns avenue, Highland Park, was drowned late yesterday off the Deere park beach in Highland Park. The suburb's fire department tried to revive the lad after his body was recovered. It was believed that he suffered a cramp while swimming.

THREE IDENTIFY KILLERS' AID AS A HOLDUP MAN

Leo Minneci, former pugilist, who was arrested on Saturday and confessed that he was present Friday afternoon when Gustav Hoeh was shot and killed in his haberdashery at 5948 West Division street, was identified as a robber by three persons at the detective bureau last night.

The robbery victims were Mrs. Sarah Gould, 675 Sheridan road; Benjamin Lack, 4316 Armitage avenue, and Mrs. Ruth Menci, 5241 Fullerton avenue. They asserted that Minneci was accompanied, when he held them up, by a man and a woman.

It is believed that his confederates were George Kennedy, whom Minneci has accused of killing Hoeh, and Mrs. Eleanor Jarman, mother of two children. Mrs. Jarman, according to Minneci, accompanied him and Kennedy to the Hoehs' shop. Kennedy and the woman are being sought.

Scholle's
Twice Yearly Sale

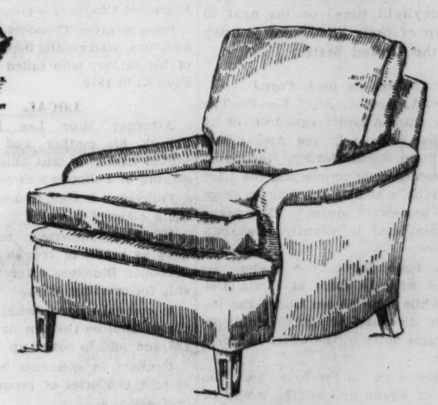
The reason is simple. Lowest prices will buy only furniture below the grade which Scholle believes is good furniture. But quality for quality, style for style—we believe a study of our furniture will convince you that Scholle values and prices are unmatched.

For example—here is a chair.



It is a copy of an English Club Chair. It is easy to sit in. Easy to look at. Easy to buy. But not easy to describe. Neither words nor picture can adequately portray it. You must see it to appreciate it.

So let us just say this.

Its frame is sturdily constructed to give years of service. Joints are doweled and reinforced. The finest of webbing and burlap support the springs. Upholstery is of hair. Seat and back cushions are filled with No. 1 down. Covering is of selected, high grade fabrics in henna, gold, blue or green.

Yet, in spite of rising costs of labor and material, we offer this chair today at.....$60

How long we can sell the chair at that price—who knows? Certainly not for long.

Come in to Scholle's. See for yourself how beautiful and restful this chair is. Then look about you at the many other equally remarkable values in our store.

SALLY RAND HAS A DAY IN COURT WITH THE COPS

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Sally Rand, whose widely publicized nudity is keeping her busy putting on half a dozen shows daily in a loop theater and at the World's Fair, looked on yesterday in the Women's court with apparent satisfaction while a veteran policeman testified that her fan dance made his pulse beat more quickly.

The result was that Miss Rand was ordered to pay a fine of $25 for staging an indecent performance in the Chicago theater, but at the end of the courtroom scene, which occupied all afternoon, no one seemed unhappy, least of all attorneys for the theater and Miss Rand.

Later at the theater it was reported that Miss Rand was dancing "with a little mesh under her coat of paint," and that the police were "satisfied."

Judge Hasten's Purpose.

Judge Erwin J. Hasten, before whom the hearing was held, explained that he didn't want to fine the dancer, to whom he referred as "Sally."

"The purpose of this judgment is not in a vindictive, punitive sense," he said. "I'm merely trying to gain this end: that Sally, if she is to continue dancing in Chicago, put on some clothes."

Attorney David Stansbury, one of four lawyers associated in the defense, interjected pleadingly: "Your honor, here's a girl who's trying to make a living——"

JUDGE HASTEN—I want to say to you that I saw the dance Saturday night and she's a beautiful dancer—but she's just as beautiful with her clothes—well, as a matter of fact, I didn't see her without her clothes on. I could see that she wore a little clothing that night.

City's Attorneys Protest.

Assistant Corporation Counsel William V. Daly and Otto Weiner protested, however, when Judge Hasten declared: "It is the verdict of the court that Sally shall wear clothes and that she sign a $500 peace bond."

MR. DALY—There's no such sentence provided in the statute. The minimum fine is $25. The maximum fine is $200, and there's a maximum penalty of two years in jail for the first offense.

JUDGE HASTEN—Then if I can't just put her under a peace bond I'll make it the minimum fine. This court isn't interested in fining Sally, but (his voice growing loud) let this be understood: The opinion of this court is that there is only one human being who should be allowed to appear in the nude in public. That is the baby.

The ensuing hush was broken when Nat Ruvell, another of Sally's lawyers, declared: "But think of the stain and blemish upon Miss Rand's artistry."

"And think of the way she's packin' 'em in," said Policewoman Bessie McShane, chewing gum vigorously as she muttered to Policeman Dennis H. Parkerson.

A motion for a new trial was overruled, a cash bond was arranged, and 30 days were given to file a bill of exceptions.

Policeman on the Stand.

The first witness of the afternoon, and the state's star witness, was Policeman Parkerson, veteran detective attached to Commissioner Allman's office. He testified that last Friday he witnessed a performance of Sally's fan dance in the theater, and that at one period he saw revealed in the nude "her entire front from head to foot."

"At another time," he said leisurely and with precision, lolling back comfortably in the witness chair, "she showed her entire back to the audience."

The assistant state's attorney conducting the examination, Myron F. Lewis, a small, fair haired young man, did not press the witness for details of his emotional reactions, and said with apparent relief: "That's all."

Stansbury Cross-Examines.

Attorney Stansbury cross-examined the witness. He tossed back his iron gray hair and began: "I suppose seeing all that made you mad?"

A long argument between counsel ensued over "mad." It was stricken from the record, and the question altered to: "Did witnessing this fan dance cause you to feel a sense of indignation?"

"No," replied Policeman Parkerson, complacently. "I can't say it did."

MR. STANSBURY — Well, what were your feelings?

POLICEMAN PARKERSON [his poise undisturbed]—My passions were aroused.

Attorney Stansbury, familiar with the legal definition of obscenity as "any action or display which arouses the passions either with or without intent," again brushed back his hair.

Q.—When Miss Rand came to the place in the dance where she goes up the stairs, aren't the fans moving all the time so her body is covered? A.—No, at times I saw her breasts, at times I saw her rear back, at times I saw her whole side view, with one knee raised, and her fans in both hands up over her head.

Policeman O'Sullivan's View.

Policeman Frank O'Sullivan, also from Commissioner Allman's office, testified that he saw Miss Rand's dance last Friday from a distance of 25 feet, and that at intervals he saw what he described as "the back of her butticks and breast." He also declared, with some reluctance, that his pulses were quickened.

ATTORNEY RUVELL.—Have you been to the Art institute? A.—I have.

Q.—You're a married man. A.—Yes.

Q.—How long have you been married? A.—Going on seven years.

Q.—How many children do you have? A.—Two, a boy and girl.

Frank L. Cervenka, a third policeman from the commissioner's office, declared under cross-examination that his passions were not aroused.

ATTORNEY RUVELL.—What feeling did you experience? A.—I was just disgusted.

Sergt. Harry M. Costello, gray haired police veteran, and Policewoman Bessie McShane testified to witnessing Miss Rand's dance and to arresting her.

Sally Takes the Stand.

When Miss Rand as the chief defense witness took the stand the courtroom crowd surged forward. She spoke with as much calm and precision as the police witnesses, and with as little vagueness about the parts of her anatomy. At one time, when Assistant State's Attorney Lewis asked her with a display of nervousness if she could not dance just as well with "the essential parts" of her body covered, she replied:

"I cawn't answer that, because I don't know what the 'essential' parts of my body are."

At another time she said with a gleam in her heavily made up green eyes: "Don't answer my questions for me, Mr. State's Attorney. I'll answer them myself."

"The reason I wear nothing but the fans in my dance," she said, "is because the feathers catch in my clothing if I wear any, preventing me from using my fans in the way I wish to use them."

Origin of Her Dance.

She declared that she was covered during the dance from head to toe with thick white cream "which gives an ethereal effect, as if some one were looking at a graceful statue." She created the dance after seeing "an art study" of a girl and a swan, she said.

In describing her dance, she was asked how many seconds were taken up in the four bars of music during which she stood "with raised foot and thigh covering my loin, fans raised and my breast bare, in a quiet pose."

"I cawn't compute time but I'll sing it," she said, and proceeded: "Tum-te-tum, tum-te-tum."

Before her first entrance to the courtroom the dancer was stopped in the corridor by four plump girls in white costumes, holding Bibles, led by Miss Ethel Willits. They were shepherded by a press agent, who announced that they were evangelists, there to convert Miss Rand, and that Miss Willits, wearing a long skirt, would appear nightly in a tent at 63d street and Western avenue.

FAN DANCER IS FINED

SALLY RAND IN COURT.

TROUBLE ABOARD THE BLUENOSE IS REVEALED BY SUIT

Wealthy Head of Cruise Party Asks Damages.

The alleged suffering of Addison Stilwell, wealthy Chicago lumberman, and his guests during a cruise on the schooner Bluenose was set forth yesterday in a suit in admiralty filed in the United States District court. The suit asked the return of $2,500 paid to charter the vessel and for $2,500 damages for "indignities heaped upon the complainant and his guests."

Stilwell asserted in the suit that he chartered the Bluenose, international champion fishing schooner, on July 13 for a cruise that was to last not more than two weeks and not less than ten days. The contract called for exclusive use of the schooner by Stilwell and his guests and set forth that the vessel should sail as far as Mackinac.

Learns of Another Offer.

Trouble began for the merry yachting party, it was said, shortly after the Bluenose had captured the 26th annual Chicago-Mackinac island yacht race on July 18. Stilwell noted a sudden change of heart on the part of Skipper Angus J. Walters and his crew, the suit asserted, and later learned that the captain had received a more lucrative offer.

Both the skipper and his men became "unpleasant, disagreeable, and discourteous," and service was refused and disagreeable language was used by the sailors, Mr. Stilwell charges. Then, according to the suit, the crew, directed by their master, began a campaign to force the Stilwell party to leave the yacht.

Suit Lists Troubles.

Among the first of the objectionable acts was the failure of the schooner management to serve "good and palatable food." Other troubles were listed as follows:

1. The berths were not made up and the pillows were removed in order to make sleeping somewhat bothersome.

2. Burly sailors gathered on the deck at 4 o'clock each morning and swabbed the deck with a great din.

3. The decks were painted in order to restrict the space available for the use of the yachting party.

The complainant charged that sailors lurked about the decks, glowered and growled at guests, until the entire party came to fear physical violence.

Mr. Stilwell and his guests gave up the struggle at Milwaukee, according to the suit, and quit the schooner with the announcement that they would rejoin the captain and crew in Chicago before the charter ran out. When the Stilwell party again sought to board the schooner in Chicago, the suit asserted, they found another party comfortably settled in their quarters.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 8.—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh arrived at Julianehaab, on the southern coast of Greenland, late today, according to dispatches received here. The couple flew from Angmasalik, in east Greenland. They made a perfect landing amid a great number of motorboats in the harbor.

Seven Orphans Lost in Ocean at Long Island Bathing Party

New York, Aug. 8.—[Special.]—An ocean wave swept forty children off a sandbar at Edgemere beach, Long Island, this afternoon, turning an orphans' outing into a tragedy.

Seven children, all inmates of the Pride of Judea home, in Brooklyn, were believed to have drowned, although only one body was recovered. Five others were taken to hospitals for treatment for submersion; four were revived on the beach before panic stricken throngs. All but one were less than sixteen years old.

The scene of the tragedy was almost in front of the Edgemere Beach Club hotel. Lifeguards said a more treacherous stretch of beach could not be found along the Rockaway shore.

Avert Greater Life Loss.

That the loss of life was not greater seems to have been due to the heroism of city lifeguards, recruited largely from college swimming and water polo teams. Working one at the oars and one in the water, they piled many of the children on catamarans and ferried them to shore.

There were 105 orphans in the party that went to the cottage of Mrs. Lena Gottesman, president of the orphanage board, for a hasty luncheon and to change into bathing suits. Sixty children went for the first swim. Those who had charge of them, about 14 women, remained on the beach, some in bathing suits, but for the most part in their street clothes.

The tide was just starting to rise, a strong wind was blowing onshore and a moderately heavy surf was running. A sandbar curves out from the beach for 100 yards or more. Upon this infirm footing the children ventured hand in hand, shouting in glee as the breakers, rising higher and higher, struck them.

Harry Epstein, a lifeguard rowing around in a catamaran just beyond the lifelines stretched on piles in the sand, saw them and tried to drive them back by shouting and waving at them. He said later that he realized the children's danger and tried to head them off.

Wave Engulfs Children.

The children still hand in hand continued a sort of dance through the shallow water to the end of the bar. Then a large wave broke over the heads of the children and swept them off their feet into the deep, eddying channel that was only about 400 feet from shore, but the surf and the undertow made the work of rescue hazardous as well as difficult.

Epstein said a shipwreck was the only thing he could think of to which to compare the scene. The water everywhere seemed full of helpless, struggling, screaming children. Some of them swept by him so fast that he could not grab them and some were taken ashore half a mile down the beach where the tide had carried them.

Epstein blew his whistle, summoned guards from neighboring sections of the beach and the rescue started.

After the tragedy police questioned those in charge of the outing and will question them further tomorrow. For the last 10 years Mrs. Gottesman has been hostess for the children from the same orphanage.

DEMANDS UNWED MOTHER GIVE UP HIS SON; IS FINED

John Drew, 31 years old, 4655 Lake Park avenue, an unmarried father, was arraigned before Judge Joseph H. McGarry in the South State street court yesterday on a charge of disorderly conduct growing out of his attempt to steal his 3 year old son, John.

The boy's mother, Miss Iona Allen, 5131 Kenwood avenue, was the complainant. She said that Drew went to her apartment July 16 and urged her to marry him. She refused and he then seized the child and tried to run away, slapping her when she tried to stop him. When Miss Allen called for police help, she added, Drew dropped the boy.

Judge McGarry then gave Drew an opportunity to testify.

"I love Iona," he said, "and I love the boy. I have spent more than $15,000 on them." He turned to Miss Allen. "Will you marry me?" he asked.

"Never," replied the mother.

Judge McGarry fined Drew $50, but offered to vacate the sentence later if the unwedded father refrains from molesting Miss Allen.

REVEAL $300,000 DEFICIT IN FUNDS OF VILLA PARK

Residents of Villa Park yesterday were discussing an auditor's report which showed that there is a deficit of more than $300,000 in the village finances over the last six years. The disclosure of the deficit was made Monday night at a village board meeting by Robert M. Chittenden, chairman of the board's finance committee.

The deficit in the corporate account was placed at $289,000 and in the water account at $11,000. There was also a discussion at the board meeting of the loss of $157,000 of village funds in the closing of the State Bank of Villa Park last October.

EARLY DENTAL TOOL A WRENCH, DENTISTS TOLD

4 Centuries of Progress Outlined.

Four centuries of progress in the science of dentistry were reviewed last night before dentists attending the Chicago Centennial Congress by Dr. Howard W. Haggard, professsor of physiology at Yale university. Dr. Haggard was the principal speaker at a banquet in the Stevens hotel.

The speaker began an outline of dental history with a description of the dentist of 400 years ago as a mountebank, who was probably a purse snatcher by avocation and a roisterer at inns. These men knew nothing of dentistry but extraction and the opening of gumboils.

In extraction an instrument known as the pelican, which Dr. Haggard described as the precursor of the Stillson wrench, was employed. The "dentist" always got the tooth sought for and, deaf to the howls of patients, usually got the two neighboring teeth and one in the opposite jaw for good measure, he said.

Eating of Mouse a Remedy.

"For preventive dentistry he advocated eating a mouse once a month—I presume with the skin on—and fumigating the tooth with smoke from onion seeds to drive out the worms that were supposed to cause toothache," said Dr. Haggard.

These practices continued into the reign of Louis XIV., said Dr. Haggard. He contrasted the magnificence of the costumes of the king and courtiers of the period with the condition of their teeth.

"Smiling lips made famous in portraits often opened on inflamed gums edged with pus, upon blacked, broken teeth or upon ivory teeth crudely held in with wires," he said. "Louis himself had pyorrhea; his teeth decayed until nothing was left but snag roots; a very different picture from the one we are accustomed to associate with his magnificence.

Pioneers in Dentistry.

"At this time pioneers gave a new conception to dentistry. It had been a solely mechanical trade and became, through pioneers of the 17th century, a science, one requiring intellectual skill in diagnosis and in choice of surgical procedure. The mechanical aspect, of course, persisted and grew enormously, but the professional aspect is our concern, because it exemplifies the basic progress."

Dr. Haggard traced the beginning of the theory of tooth conservation, employment of fillings, theories of tooth decay and other aspects of dentistry.

"In the 19th century dentistry blended with medicine," he said. "The purpose of the two fields became a common purpose — preservation of health and the prevention of disease. The discoveries that have given us modern medicine in practice have likewise given us modern dentistry.

Now Linked with Medicine.

"Today medical progress is dental progress and dental progress is medical progress. The two are no longer distinct; they are divisions of the same great field, with common interests. The work of internal secretions and the factors of development and nutrition are matters that affect dentistry quite as much as any other branch of the profession of medicine. We shall see in the years to come more and more of their influence in that direction.

"The keynote of this century is organized prevention, and nowhere has it been carried out as effectively as in dentistry. The physician is struggling, as yet not successfully, to impart a similar recognition of a similar necessity in his field."

A New Dental Slogan.

Preventive dentistry was discussed at several group meetings of the congress. Dr. Boyd S. Gardner of the Mayo clinic advanced a new slogan for dental hygiene: "A clean tooth, well nourished and well exercised, can never decay.

"Decay of teeth can be retarded and in many cases prevented by proper diet, which includes substantial quantities of calcium, phosphorus and vitamin D," he said. "The key to prevention is a diet rich in these elements."

Dr. Benjamin Tishler emphasized the necessity of exercising the gums. Proper exercising, necessary because soft foods do not give sufficient stimulation, brings circulation of blood carrying essential food to the teeth and taking away waste. This exercise can be given best by brushing the gums. Eternal vigilance by regular brushing results in sound teeth, he said.

Dr. Henry A. Honoroff of the Nathan Marks Home for Jewish Orphans told of the results of the practice of enforcing proper diet and gum exercise for those living at the home. It has brought sound teeth to every child in the institution, he said.

100TH ANNIVERSARY OF CHICAGO TO BE CELEBRATED AT FAIR

Mayor Kelly will exchange greetings with a character representing Thomas J. V. Owens, president of the first board of village trustees, as one of the features of the celebration Saturday of the 100th anniversary of the incorporation of Chicago as a village. The program will be presented by the Chicago Historical society and A Century of Progress.

Descendants of old Chicago settlers are coming from all parts of the United States for the celebration, which will open at 10 o'clock in the morning at the Chicago Historical society, North avenue and Clark street. Dr. James A. James, acting as master of ceremonies, will present Dr. Otto Schmidt, who will talk on Chicago's first century.

After a meeting at the Chicago Historical society, the celebration will shift to the Court of Honor at A Century of Progress. A parade will be held from the Court of Honor to the Travel and Transport building for the main program of the day at 11:30.

FESTIVAL WEEK PROGRAM OFFERS A TREAT FOR ALL

Millions to Thrill at Its Beauty, Music, Fun.

Chicagoland's spectacular Festival week, presenting a pageant of beauty, music, and fun that is designed to thrill and entertain millions, is at hand. It begins next Sunday, and will continue without interruption for seven days and nights. It will be not only a tribute to Chicagoland, but a civic contribution to A Century of Progress.

Festival week will be one continuous show, outdoors and indoors. Every preparation has been made to insure its success. An elaborate program has been arranged. It includes parades, sports, lake regattas, style shows, automobile shows, religious services, and winds up on the night of Aug. 19 at Soldiers' field with THE TRIBUNE'S annual Chicagoland Music Festival. Following is a program showing the principal events of the week:

Sunday, Aug. 13—Chicago Church day, the highlight of which will be the Vesper services in Soldiers' field, between 5:30 and 6:30 p. m., at which will be heard 10,000 voices. Sunday is German day at the Fair.

Monday, Aug. 14—Women's day. A tribute to women of this region, from the sturdy pioneer to the woman of 1933, featured by a luncheon of 1,000 at the World's Fair.

Tuesday, Aug. 15—Fort Dearborn day. Dedicated to the Fort Dearborn massacre of 121 years ago. Colorful ceremonies will be held at the Fort Dearborn replica at the Fair.

Wednesday, Aug. 16—State Street day. The big stores on the world's most famous street will hold open house, offering style shows, displays, and general hospitality.

Thursday, Aug. 17—Automobile day and Lake Michigan day. The world's first major outdoor automobile show will be held in Grant park, from Adams street to 12th street. Water sports and boat regattas will be held in the lake.

Friday, Aug. 18—Farm Progress day, Iowa Farmers' day, and second day of outdoor auto show.

Saturday, Aug. 19—Music day. THE TRIBUNE'S Chicagoland Music Festival at Soldiers' field, in which thousands of trained singers will participate. Third day of outdoor auto show.

Here are contained seven days of events, and with them are joined events of National Farm week, a part of the World's Fair. As part of this farm week celebration, which should be included in the festival week program, will be a parade in Michigan avenue of cattle, sheep and hogs. A unique parade surely, but Chicago's so young it is less than 100 year ago that such animals paraded every day in what was then only the trail site of the present boulevard.

Plan for Women's Day.

Here might be recounted what some of the hundreds of many women and men backing Festival Week are doing. Yesterday a score of women leaders met with George W. Rossetter, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, to go over their plans for Women's day next Monday.

Chairman of the group was Mrs. Henry W. Hardy, president of the Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's organizations. With her were Mrs. Bertha Baur, Rtpublican national committeewoman; Mrs. Elizabeth A. Conkey, Democratic national committeewoman; Mrs. Ozias Davis, Mrs. George Bass, Mrs. Frank J. Lewis, Mrs. George Aste, Miss Betty Garrison, Mrs. Samuel B. Shirk, Mrs. Bessie Bragg Pierson, Mrs. George V. McIntyre, Miss Marie Becker, Mrs. Silvester Schiele, Mrs. Herbert A. Byfield, Mrs. Edward O. Brooks, Mrs. Walter Hernsdorf, and Mrs. F. W. Porter.

Mrs. Baur and Mrs. Conkey were made vice chairmen of the women's day executive committee, and Mrs. Brooks, treasurer. They agreed to organize a committee of 100 prominent women, each of whom is to get ten women to attend a luncheon at the Fair as the highlight of the celebration. They also prepared an invitation to Miss Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, to address them or to deliver a radio talk. The women leaders will meet again Friday. Nearly 300 presidents of women's clubs in the county have been invited.

Vesper Service Plans.

Working at a fast pace too, were the leaders of the Church day celebration, which opens Festival week. Dr. Robert Clements is general chairman, assisted by Dr. John Evans, rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church, vice chairman. They predict that the Vesper services in Soldiers' Field at 5:30 Sunday will attract the largest Protestant attendance ever seen in America.

The famous Welsh Male chorus, directed by Dr. Daniel Protheroe, of the Central church, has been added to this religious program. There are seventy trained voices in this chorus. They will sing famous Welsh anthems.

Equally elaborate preparations have been made for the other special days. At Fort Dearborn the pages of history will be turned back on Tuesday to depict the early and tragic story of the Indian massacre. The Chicago Historical society, Daughters of the American Revolution, and Boy Scouts will participate.

State Street day promises to be an eye opener even to those who have attended State Street days in recent months. This—on Aug. 16—will be greater, more complete, more attractive. All the stores have been planning for weeks for this day, and without telling details of what they will do they promise that Chicago will never forget it.

Automobile day on Aug. 17 will be different. Imagine a great outdoor automobile show, free, and extending along Michigan avenue from a point just north of Van Buren street to 12th street. Here you may gaze upon the newest models of cars, from the low priced stock to the most expensive—and every one a king of its class. H. A. Wehmeier, Pontiac dealer, is general chairman of the outdoor show.

Great Lakes Day Also.

On this same day will be held Great Lakes day, a tribute to our own kindly lake, and the word to those interested, as every one will be, is to go to the lake front on Aug. 16.

Music day, Aug. 19, brings to you THE TRIBUNE'S great Chicagoland Music Festival. Each year it has drawn capacity crowds of more than 100,000 to Soldiers' field. This year a new scheme is being tried by putting aside a reserved seat section. These reserved seats cost only 50 cents, while the others are offered at the usual price of 25 cents. It's worth far more than the cost. Attend and be convinced.

So here are seven days of wondrous pageantry, beauty, and opportunity, free to all, to Chicagoland's resident millions and to the nation's traveling millions.

Only the best and typical has been culled from the many good and representative features of Chicagoland.

BY EARL MULLIN.

A youth from a small South Carolina town who had made an appointment to meet a friend at the Fair entered the 12th street gate yesterday to find himself the center of attention. He was met by his friend as planned, but also included in the welcoming party were Fair officials, newspapermen and the hostess of the day, a demure young woman from Mississippi. The welcoming party presented the visitor with a World's Fair medal, tickets to concessions, an official tour and other honors, for when he passed through the turnstiles eight million paid admissions had been recorded.

The honor visitor was Paul Hundley, 23 years old, of Enoree, S. C., where he and his father operate a general store. His friend was Yates Hammett, 21 years old, now of Sausalito, Cal. Hostess of the day, representing Mississippi, was Esta Bernstein of Clarksdale. Following the welcoming ceremonies the young people started on the tour of the Exposition, and Fair officials rushed to their attendance charts to discover several interesting items tabulated as the result of the eight millionth paid admission.

Million in Six Days.

The last group of one million paid admissions was recorded in six days, a daily average of 166,666 visitors through the turnstiles from 9 a. m. to 12 midnight, the largest clocking yet made at the Exposition. The period running second for attendance honors were those in which the fourth and fifth million passed through, each requiring seven days. The seventh million was clocked in nine days, during which unusually warm weather held down the attendance on three days.

"We are pleased with the pickup in attendance as shown by the last million recorded," Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, general manager, said. "Not so much for the present attendance figure, gratifying as that is, but on account of the optimistic outlook it affords.

"'Success brings success,' and our attendance records bears this out. As our attendance grows we discover that more people are being drawn to the Fair from all over the United States. There is a general feeling now that the Fair must be worthwhile or so many people would not want to go. A day of unusually large attendance presages several days of more than satisfactory attendance."

The second largest Tuesday attendance in the history of the Fair was recorded yesterday when 169,589 paid admissions were recorded up to 11:30 p. m. The largest Tuesday attendance was on July 4, when 232,517 passed through the gates.

See Record This Week-end.

Fair officials yesterday were making preparations to handle a million visitors this week-end, with Illinois day on Friday, Negro and Chicago Incorporation day on Saturday, and German day and the opening program of farm week on Sunday.

Maj. E. S. J. Irvine, director of transportation, yesterday completed a test of the transportation system and announced that all was in readiness to handle the crowds. Sixty buses will operate within the grounds and additional transportation facilities are being pressed into service outside the grounds.

Seize Father Who Abandoned Babies

Aloysius Roszner, the father who abandoned two children (left) with Policeman Howard M. Pierson, a neighbor, who arrested him last night. The policeman lives next door to Roszner and recognized the picture of the babies printed in the morning Tribune.
(TRIBUNE Photo.)

Mother Tells Story

Aloysius Roszner, 25 years old, 10041 Perry avenue, was disclosed last night as the father of two infant girls who were found abandoned in the Rock Island station at 95th street late Monday.

Mrs. Lillian Roszner, mother of the children, reported to the Gresham police that her husband had tried to get rid of the children and had written a note in which he stated she had "tried to drown them."

"He is unemployed," said Mrs. Roszner, "and I have been supporting him and the children by working as a waitress. Sunday afternoon I went to work and stayed on the job through the night. I got a few hours' sleep in the restaurant at 9859 Ewing avenue, where I have a job, and worked all day Monday. When I got home at 2 o'clock this morning I found my husband and the children missing. Today I saw the children's picture in the papers and came to the station."

Policeman Howard M. Pierson, who lives at 10037 Perry avenue, had also seen the pictures and recognized the girls. Early last evening, when Roszner returned home, Pierson arrested him. The children are at St. Vincent's orphanage and will remain there until further investigation of the family has been made. They are Phyllis, 13 months old, and Betty, 2 years old.

ACTOR AT FAIR WINS FESTIVAL MUSIC CONTEST

Triumphs Over 12 Others in West Side Event.

George Dopp, one of the 400 actors in Wings of A Century at the World's Fair, triumphed over twelve other contestants in the west side baritone contest of the Chicagoland Music Festival preliminaries last night in the Midwest Athletic club, 8 North Hamlin avenue. Winners were also selected in the tenor and contralto contests.

George plays the part of the fireman with the flag in the New York scene and is also the flagman in the '93 fair scene, in the fair pageant. This work provides him with funds to study music under Benjamin Conklin. George is 21 years old and lives at 437 South Brewster street, Lombard.

He has been studying three years and hopes to sing in light opera and opera. He was awarded the decision on his rendition of "Without a Song" by Youmans, and "When I Think Upon the Maidens" by Head.

Teacher Wins Second Place.

Second place went to Gomer M. Jones, 30 years old, 4853 Augusta boulevard, who is a vocal teacher at the Austin College of Music. He sang "Invictus" by Huhn.

A blind singer won third place in the baritone contest. He is James E. Wright, 23 years old, 3337 West 19th street, a graduate of the Illinois School for the Blind at Jacksonville, who wants to be a radio singer. He, too, is a student at the American Conservatory of Music. He sang "The Trumpeter" by Dix.

First place among 22 tenors was awarded Roy Zobel, 22 years old, 5929 Walton street. He is a bank clerk and a student of Philip Jones. He sang "Celeste Aïda" from Verde's opera and "Be Mine Tonight" from the motion picture of that title. Zobel sang the tenor lead in the Austin Opera company's presentation of "Cavalleria Rusticana." He hopes to study in Italy.

William H. Higgins of 5535 Quincy street won second place among the tenors with "Care Selve" by Handel and "To the Children" by Rachmaninoff. He is 29 years old, married and the father of a two year old girl. Higgins, who is a salesman, hopes to be a concert singer.

Third place went to Leonard Balsamo, 23 years old, 3911 West Ohio street, a pupil of Richard DeYoung. He sang "Song of Songs" by Maya. Balsamo, who is a clerk, wants to be a light opera and concert singer.

Miss Anne Post, 36 years old, 1637 North Mobile avenue, won first place among seven contraltos. She is a pupil of Mrs. Samuel Wright and has sung over radio. She is a graduate of Milton College, Milton, Wis. Her song was "O Don Fatale," from Verdi's opera "Don Carlos."

The winner of second place was Mrs. Dorothy Wilcoxen Seavert, the mother of two children. Mrs. Seavert, who is 36 years old and lives at 411 Ontario street, Oak Park, has not studied music for 14 years. She sang "In Thee, O God, Do I Put My Trust," by Spicker.

The west side bass and soprano winners will be chosen tonight in the Mid-West Athletic club. All place winners will compete at the Drake hotel Aug. 17 where the best man and woman singers will be chosen regardless of voice range. These winners will compete against out of town contestants at the festival in Soldiers' field on the night of Aug. 19.

NORWEGIAN ENDS 10,000 MILE SOLO VOYAGE TO FAIR

From Norway he sailed to England, from England to Portugal, and from Portugal to the Canary islands, where there was a stop of several days while preparations were made for the long trip to Florida. From Florida Capt. Hansen sailed to the Mississippi river, up that stream and through the newly opened Illinois waterway to Chicago. The trip from the Canary islands to Florida took 46 days.

Capt. Hansen was unable to use his own sail on the Mississippi, and accepted a tow. He plans to sail from the river to the Fair grounds.

FRENCH WRITER CALLS "STREETS OF PARIS" AT FAIR INSULT TO NATION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Aug. 8.—The "Streets of Paris" exhibition at A Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago should be removed by American authorities as an "insulting spectacle," charges François Coty in his Figaro today.

Attacking the government for not wanting to spend money for an official exhibit, although Italy sent Gen. Italo Balbo's air armada and other countries are represented, Coty said that neither Chancellor Hitler nor Premier Mussolini would suffer an offense such as the "Streets of Paris" constitutes.

"Didn't Americans who were guests of Paris during the war ever know any other aspects of our capital?" he inquired. "What would they say if there were installed here a group of infamous hangouts teeming with degraded men and women with the flamboyant inscription, 'New York.' The honor of France is nowhere protected."

MUSIC FESTIVAL TICKETS MEET A RUSH OF ORDERS

A rush of mail orders yesterday indicated that reserved seats for the Chicagoland Music Festival would be sold out several days before festival night on Aug. 19. These orders combined with the sale of reserved seats to persons who called at THE TRIBUNE Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, raise the total sale into the thousands.

The plan of reserving part of the 100,000 seats in Soldiers' field to sell at 50 cents a ticket is being tried for the first time this year. The general admission tickets, as in former years, are 25 cents.

Music lovers may purchase tickets by two methods, it was pointed out yesterday. A self-addressed stamped envelope with money order, cash or personal check may be mailed to the music festival ticket department of THE TRIBUNE. A second method is to purchase the tickets at THE TRIBUNE public service office or in the lobby of THE TRIBUNE Tower.

Canada is going to give Chicagoland juvenile bands a race for the gold medals on Saturday, Aug. 19, when the Kitsilano Boys' band of Vancouver, B. C., competes in the music festival. The 42-piece organization, directed by Arthur W. Delamont, leaves tomorrow over the Canadian Pacific lines for Chicago.

ROOM BOOKINGS FOR LEGION MEET SET NEW RECORD

Delegations from every state in the Union have engaged quarters in Chicago for the 15th annual convention of the American Legion from Oct. 1 to 5, it was announced yesterday. Legion officials said that the bookings marked the first time in the history of the organization that representatives from all states had declared their intention of attending the convention two months before its opening.

More than 250,000 persons are expected to combine a visit to the Legion national meeting with a visit to the Fair.

As We See It

NATIONAL TEA CO Food Stores NRA MEMBER U.S. WE DO OUR PART

THE food and grocery distributors, because of the many conditions within the trade, one of which is the handling of large quantities of perishable farm products, were given a Code by the Administrator containing 48 hours as maximum working hours of employment.

The purpose of the National Industrial Recovery Act is to employ people at a living wage which automatically brings about greater purchasing power so that producers, mills, factories and commercial organizations will have more business as a result of this added employment and increased purchasing power.

Grocery store hours during normal times have averaged 72 hours weekly, and to reduce these hours to any great extent and bring them closer to maximum labor hours would defeat plans and aims the N.R.A. wishes to accomplish. It, therefore, becomes the economic and patriotic duty of grocery stores to remain open reasonable hours per week so that added employment becomes necessary.

Our own thought on grocery store hours is as follows: MONDAY to FRIDAY 8:00 A. M. to 6:00 P. M., and SATURDAY 8:00 A. M. to 9:00 P. M., which is a total of 63 hours per week, which is most reasonable and practical in grocery stores and which will aid in the accomplishments desired in the N. R. A. National Tea Co. offers these practical thoughts to offset some misunderstandings which seem to exist on grocery store hours. Those who advocate the adoption of grocery store hours totaling not less than 63 hours per week will perform a patriotic duty to the President as well as their economic duty, as distributors, to the consuming public.

$87,686 COVERS COST OF JUNIOR HIGH CHANGES

Bids Answer Charges of Economy Foes.

The board of education at its meeting today will take action on contracts for the conversion of eleven junior high schools into senior high school plants along the lines of its economy program. Bids opened yesterday revealed that the necessary changes will cost $87,686. The "save our schools" committee, foe of the board's economy program, has asserted that the expenditure would be $800,000.

President McCahey of the school board pointed out that the savings under the program will many times offset the cost and in addition will improve housing conditions for thousands of Chicago school children. Under the former organization of the school system these children would have to go to school in sheet iron portables and inadequate branches or receive their education in extended day sessions. The economy program, through the abolition of the junior high school system, is designed to provide these pupils with seats in elementary schools or senior high schools.

Money from Building Fund.

The changes required in converting junior high schools into senior high schools were ordered by Supt. Bogan and the specifications were worked out by John C. Christensen, school architect. The money will come from the school building fund, which has an unexpended surplus, it was explained. The deficit confronting the school board is in the educational fund.

The contractors who will be awarded the work by the school board will have 30 days to complete the task, so that the reorganized school system may be in smooth running order when the children return from their summer vacation on Sept. 18.

The totals of low bids on carpentry, plumbing, and electrical work to be done on the former junior high schools are as follows:

Amundsen	$ 9,038
Farragut	8,091
Foreman	9,129
Harper	8,731
Hirsch	9,114
Kelly	9,063
Kelvyn Park	6,957
Manley	7,287
Sullivan	8,952
Von Steuben	9,997
Wright	427
Total	$87,686

Continue Moving of Seats.

Meanwhile, workmen employed by the school board continued to move seats from the portables and place them in the manual training and household arts rooms in elementary schools. The rooms have been made available by the economy program's elimination of these two courses in the grade schools.

An example of how the housing program will work out to relieve congestion was furnished in the removal of seats from portables in the yard of the Bowen High school at 2710 East 89th street. One hundred seats were transferred to the old Madison school, now a branch of the Revere school at 7433 Dorchester avenue and there placed in the vacant household arts and manual training rooms.

The board of education's economy program received the approval of the North Shore Kiwanis club yesterday after a spirited debate during a luncheon at the Edgewater Beach hotel. A week ago the club had been asked to adopt a resolution attacking the board's program, but the members decided to take the economy side.

The debate was carried on by Kiwanians with various business interests. The chief speaker for the economies was John C. Bowers, real estate man.

"The education of Chicago children has not been damaged one iota through this program," asserted Bowers. "All that has happened is that soft jobs are being eliminated and the teachers and principals are being put to work instead of staging parades for the benefit of the yokels in town."

Bowers told his fellow club members that the board had decided to do away with assistant kindergarten teachers. In this connection, he declared that many kindergarten teachers had been going around school communities "drumming up" attendance of children 3 years old in order to retain their jobs as "nursemaids paid by the taxpayers." The board's action set the age limit at 5 years and limited kindergarten instruction to one year for each pupil.

"Now you've heard the University of Chicago fighting this board," said Bowers. "They don't like the change from the junior high school system to the former plan of eight years elementary school and four years senior high school, and I'll tell you why. Teachers have been forced to take special courses at the University of Chicago in order to qualify for junior high school teaching. This will mean a big drop in enrollment for the university.

"All I've heard is radicalism and socialism from the University of Chicago," added Bowers, "and I'd like to propose that they put in a course of Americanism out there and make every professor attend."

This remark drew applause and laughter.

Fred Bertram, an attorney, opened the attack on the board.

"Advantage is being taken of the school teachers," said Bertram, "because of the prejudice aroused against them. In every large group there are bound to be a few radicals. The teachers have undoubtedly made mistakes, but the board's program means that education will be diminished in Chicago. This school system has been built up by educators through years of study."

Luxuries Added for Years.

"Luxuries have been added to the school system for many years," said Manas Torcom, who has an oriental rug business. "It's nice to have these things when people can pay taxes, but when they can't these things certainly can't be classed as necessities."

The next speaker, Fred Wuehrmann, president of the Uptown State bank, prefaced his remarks by saying that, although he had a brother and a sister-in-law who were physical education teachers and faced dismissal because of the economy program, he was in favor of the board's action.

"Every year the school board has been running behind," said Weuhrmann, "and now they are courageous enough to cut expenses. We might not agree or have done it ourselves in the same way, but unless some one can show me that they have been dishonest I am back of the school trustees."

Manufacturer Opposes Cut.

George Garing, a picture frame manufacturer, declared that he was opposed to the cuts. He charged that people would move to the suburbs in order to get education for their children. If there were more education in Chicago, he said, there would be less racketeering.

After the club members had had their say, Wuehrmann moved that the group indorse the economy program. Bertram and Garing asked for delay, but a vote was taken. Only three of the members voted against the motion.

CENTURY OF PROGRESS NOTES

Georgia day will be observed Aug. 22, the 200th anniversary of the founding of the Colony of Georgia by James Oglethorpe in 1733. Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia and United States Senator Richard B. Russell Jr. will participate in the program to be held in the Court of States.

Harriet Monroe, editor of Poetry magazine, will read her "Columbian Ode," at 4 p. m. tomorrow in the Illinois Host Building auditorium. On the same program Paul Engle, who won the Friday club's poetry prize, will read his prize winning poem, "America Remembers." The program is free to the public.

The lost and found bureau in the General Exhibits group has received over 3,000 lost articles since the Fair opened. Included among the objects were two sets of false teeth, purses, some containing money, and wearing apparel, even to a sealskin coat one hot day.

The Joliet township high school band, which won the national championship for five successive years, will play in the Court of Honor at 10 a. m. Friday preceding the arrival of Gov. Horner and his party for Illinois day celebration.

A group of 600 factory representatives of General Motors company, attending the Buick-Oldsmobile-Pontiac convention in Chicago, visited the Fair, taking a sightseeing tour of the grounds and later going through the General Motors building.

The fifth of a series of free street carnivals in the rainbow area near the 39th street gate tonight will present numbers by 72 boys and girls from the Morgan School of Dancing. The program lasts from 7 to 11 p. m. and includes a Mardi Gras, street dancing, music and free drawing for prizes.

The "Epic of a Race," a Negro pageant, will be presented at Soldiers' field next Saturday night. Saturday is Negro day at the Fair. George Garner, Negro tenor will be featured. He has appeared on stages in many principal cities in America and other lands. His home is in Pasadena, Cal.

The wife and daughter of Gen. von Boetticker Minty, attaché of the German embassy at Washington, will arrive in Chicago today to visit the Fair.

The Desert Plant exhibit in the Horticultural building, containing thousands of cacti and desert plants of every species, will be presented to the Garfield Park conservatory at the close of the show Friday.

A parade in the Avenue of Flags, followed by speeches, folk dances, singing and band music is on the program for Austrian day, Aug. 27.

A special train of the Michigan Central railroad will bring 200 visitors from Saginaw, Mich., to the Fair today. The group is the Saginaw valley agricultural tour party.

CASHIER IS ROBBED AGAIN.

A bandit took $8.00 from Mrs. Estelle Hurd, cashier, in a holdup yesterday of a Mrs. Stevens Candy shop at 18 East Adams street. On April 18 Mrs. Hurd, then cashier of another shop in the chain at 14 West Randolph street, assisted in the capture of a bandit who had taken $26.00 from her.

1,000 MEET TO PROTEST CUTS IN SCHOOL COST

More than 1,000 men and women jammed the Ridge Park field house at 96th street and Longwood drive last night to protest the recent economy program adopted by the school board. The meeting was sponsored by ten district parent-teacher associations, with Mrs. Herbert Settle presiding.

Dr. Charles Judd of the University of Chicago, who has appeared at other protest meetings, was the principal speaker. He declared that if the new economy policies are carried out the educational system will be wrecked. He asserted that the new program as mapped out will save only $172,000 and not an expected $5,000,000. Another speaker was Mrs. Holland Flagler, chairman of the save our schools committee.

Representatives of civic and other groups from Morgan Park, Beverly Hills, and other south side districts were present. At the end of the meeting they voted for resolutions condemning the economy program and demanding its revision.

Fair Reunites 2 Sisters Separated for 35 Years

A Century of Progress has brought about the reunion of two sisters who had not seen each other for 35 years, it was disclosed yesterday. They are Mrs. G. S. Fitzsmaurice of Prescott, Ariz., and Mrs. Justina Rydstrom Ostrom, wife of Erik E. Ostrom of 1246 Grace street. The sisters were separated in 1898 when Mrs. Fitzmaurice, then Ulrika Rydstrom, left her home in Sunderby, Sweden, and came to the United States. Justina Rydstrom followed in 1905 and came to Chicago, but lost track of her sister. With the opening of the Fair Mr. and Mrs. Fitzmaurice decided to visit Chicago and learned the address of Mrs. Ostrom through relatives.

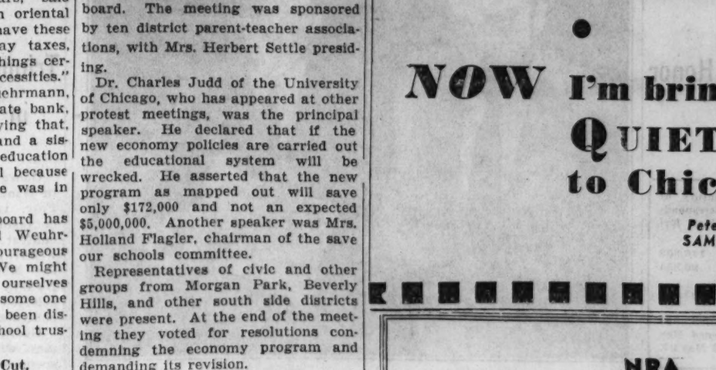
No. 1 IN A SERIES OF ADVERTISEMENTS



If you're the sort of person who wants to know WHY

YOU'LL FIND HUNDREDS OF FIRST-CLASS REASONS IN THIS CAR

ONE THING we've learned in this country, as a result of the late unlamented Depression, is to know what it is we're buying. The days of careless, irresponsible spending are gone.

It is for the sort of buyer who wants to know just what he's getting for his money that the Graham is designed. This is a car with a "reason why." Everything that goes into its planning . . . its construction . . . its appearance . . . has a purpose.

Graham accepts and welcomes point-for-point comparison with any car in its price-class . . . and with many that cost more. It undertakes to prove itself one of the most extraordinary values in the whole automotive market today.

This series of advertisements will be based on facts. There will be no vague generalities . . . no exaggerated statements . . . no unsupported claims.

What do you want in a car?

If you will think it over, you will probably agree that there are eight main considerations which affect the purchase of any motor car:

1. Dependability
2. Safety
3. Economy
4. Speed and power
5. Beauty
6. Comfort
7. Long life
8. Re-sale value

Each of these is a story in itself, and one in which Graham has many unusual things to tell. Because all cannot be told here, we concentrate in this advertisement on the story of Dependability.

It never lets you down

Let's start with starting. Working at sub-zero temperatures in the "Cold Room" of the Graham laboratories, Graham engineers have perfected a design which enables you to start your Graham, even in the heart of a snow-drift, as easily as lighting a match. That old hot-weather malady, "vapor-lock," has been done away with by insulating the gasoline fuel line, from tank to carburetor. The temperature of the gasoline is kept down, insuring an easy-starting and sweet-running engine.

Graham engines simply don't overheat. In the first place, the Graham engine—and Graham alone—has full-length water jackets extending all the way down to the crankcase. Every cylinder is completely surrounded by water; and because of the unique Distribution Plate inside the water jacket, every cylinder gets the same amount of water.

Another advantage of the Graham cooling system is that the water pump is driven by a silent chain from the camshaft. A loose or broken fan belt does not mean interrupted operation of the pump and consequent overheating.

One of the main reasons why Graham cars don't break down, is the extra-rigid Graham methods of inspection. Every step of manufacture is carefully watched . . . and then comes the Re-inspection System as an added check-up. This means that engines are continually being chosen at random from the assembly line — after they are completely assembled — and taken entirely apart again. In this process of tearing down, everything is again tested for conformance to specifications, accuracy in manufacture, and care in assembling.

Time-tested . . . time-proved

But perhaps your greatest assurance of dependability is the fact that the Graham is built by engineers of long experience, and that it has been developed over a period of years. All the little experimental troubles that you sometimes find in motor cars have been eliminated.

Get you there . . . bring you back. That's only part of the story, of course. But it's a part, like every other part, that Graham can tell with honesty and pride.

Any dealer listed below will gladly give you a demonstration. . . . Why not call him today?

NEW SIXES BEGINNING AT $745
NEW EIGHTS BEGINNING AT $845
Prices f.o.b. factory; special equipment extra

ALL DRY FORCES HERE DISMISSED BY U. S. ORDER

Many Will Be Rehired by Government.

All prohibition enforcement employés in Chicago were notified yesterday that their services would end with the close of business today. Immediately after this announcement, however, came word from Washington that about 1,200 of the 1,800 agents and administrators discharged throughout the country would be immediately rehired, probably late today.

It seemed probable, therefore, that about two-thirds, or more than 100, of the agents on duty in the Chicago district would receive word today that they would continue working under the United States bureau of investigation, which takes over liquor law enforcement at midnight. John S. Hurley will head the new division of investigation, as the dry unit will henceforth be known.

Long Faces Among Agents.

Word of their wholesale dismissal caused long faces among the agents in their new quarters in the United States postoffice yesterday. The notification was sent to Gus Simons, acting administrator, and W. E. Bennett, chief of the special agents who work on liquor conspiracies. No exceptions were stated in the order from Maj. A. V. Dalrymple, commissioner of prohibition, who may lose his job as the result of the consolidation order.

In Washington last night Mr. Hurley said that no material changes in enforcement activities were contemplated. In recent months Chicago has had virtually no enforcement save for a few raids on stills. Liquor "buys" by undercover agents, which used to cause the closing of many speakeasies, have not been made here in months. No money was provided by Washington for such investigation.

Expect to Save $5,000,000.

The general reorganization of federal agencies is expected to save the government more than $5,000,000 annually, according to Washington dispatches, instead of the $25,000,000 originally estimated. In the prohibition bureau it was predicted that many of the old time administrators would not be rehired. Drawing together of the dry bureau will save between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000, it was said.

The rest of the reorganization work—much of it in the bureau of internal revenue—will be undertaken after Jan. 1, 1934. Thus the division of industrial alcohol, which will remain in the treasury department, probably will not be touched until that date.

Economies originally counted upon were reduced by an order postponing until sixty days after congress reconvenes in the late fall a proposed 25 per cent cut in funds for agricultural extension work, vocational education, etc. The purchasing and disbursing offices of the government were to have been unified, but this also has been postponed, the dispatches said.

BOY WITH SEWN WOUND IN HEART IS NEAR DEATH

Elihu Garmisa, 16 years old, 1326 North Maplewood avenue, whose heart was stitched up Sunday at the Lutheran Deaconess hospital after he had been stabbed, was reported last night to be near death. Dr. John D. Koucky, who performed the unusual operation, lost his optimism over the boy's chances for recovery when it was found necessary last night to give Garmisa a second blood transfusion. Casimir Moleski, 1224 North Rockwell street, who stabbed the youth, is under arrest. He declared that Garmisa and several other youths tried to rob him and that he resisted with a knife.

CLERK STABBED BY ROBBER.

E. J. Neece, 21 years old, clerk in the St. Nicholas hotel at 404 South Ashland avenue, was stabbed in the right leg by a youthful robber who forced him to surrender $11 in the hotel early yesterday.

$658,000 MUNICIPAL BOND FORGERY SHUTS THREE KANSAS BANKS

Topeka, Kas., Aug. 8.—(AP)—A municipal bond forgery, which authorities believe may have been a million dollar swindle, caused the closing of three state banks today and the arrest of one man.

Ronald Finney, bond broker, son of W. W. Finney, Emporia banker, surrendered, charged with uttering $20,000 in forged bonds to the National Bank of Topeka. He gave bond for a preliminary hearing on Sept. 5.

Gov. Alf. M. Landon revealed that eight issues of Kansas municipal bonds totaling $329,000 purchased by the state school fund and held by the state treasury had been forged in duplicate, making $658,000 in spurious bonds.

One set of forged bonds was in the state treasury as security for state funds on deposit in three state banks, while the other set was in Chicago, probably in the hands of brokers.

The three banks whose deposits were secured by the forged bonds, immediately were closed by H. W. Koeneke, state bank commissioner, "for protection of the depositors." They are the Fidelity State and Savings Bank of Emporia, the Eureka bank, Eureka, and the Farmers State bank, Neosho Falls.

Relatives of Finney control the Eureka and Neosho Falls banks.

Dan Cowie, assistant United States district attorney, found the duplicate bonds in a forty minute search and said there might be others.

BEG YOUR PARDON

In THE TRIBUNE of Aug. 7 it was incorrectly stated that 200,000 people had visited the California state exhibit at the Fair. It should have been 200,000 registrants, and approximately 1,500,000 visitors.

BANISH POLITICS IN RUM CONTROL, WARN CRUSADERS

Tell Guiding Principles for State Laws.

Col. Ira L. Reeves, western manager of the Crusaders, anti-prohibition organization, yesterday transmitted to Gov. Horner a series of general recommendations drawn up by his organization for the enactment of liquor control laws by the state following repeal of the 18th amendment.

"We do not advocate a standard control system to apply to all states," stated Col. Reeves, "for the simple reason that we know that a control law for Kansas, for example, would not be adapted to the needs and requirements of the people of Illinois. We strongly advocate the doctrine that a law, in order to be enforced with any degree of effectiveness, must merit the support of a large majority of the people who are to live under it.

Principles Are Proposed.

"We therefore recommend broad basic principles for all the states, as follows:

"1. Whatever control system is adopted must provide for its absolute disassociation from politics. In order to do this we recommend non-partisan commissioners or boards, which will have absolute authority in the respective states to administer the liquor control laws. We further recommend that all personnel employed by the boards or commissioners should be on a state civil service status.

"2. W recommend that profits derived from the sale of alcoholic beverages be kept to a minimum and that no unreasonable state or local revenue shall be assessed. Our purpose in this is, that should the price of alcoholic beverages be too high, bootlegging will again thrive.

"3. No brewer or brewery, distiller or distillery, or importer shall be an owner or part owner, directly or indirectly, of any retail establishment.

"4. We recommend that whatever laws are adopted shall be simple and free from petty restrictions and annoyances to the individual customer. Laws imposing irritating and unnecessary restrictions on the consumer will breed violations and contempt for the control laws."

Fears Too Much Politics.

In regard to the commission which Gov. Horner is now empowered to appoint, consisting of five members from the state house of representatives, five from the senate, and five more at large, Col. Reeves expressed apprehension that it would contain "entirely too many politicians." He suggested that to minimize political influence, the five members at large be recommended, one each, by the Illinois Federation of Labor, the Illinois Manufacturers' association, the Illinois Bar association, repealist organizations, and dry organizations.

"As to the member selected by the 'dry' organizations," wrote Col. Reeves, "you should insist that the person recommended must be one who is interested in the passing of adequate control laws in the interest of all the people of Illinois and not a person who will stand out stubbornly and fanatically against any practical liquor control system."

First Canadian Ale Made in U. S. A. Being Bottled Today

The famous old Drewrys Canadian Ale, now being brewed in the United States to save the duty at the border, is thoroughly aged and mellow at last and is going into bottles today.

The saving to the people of America by brewing in the States instead of in Canada will amount to about $.70 a case. The quality will be exactly the same. In fact it was brewed months ago and has been kept in its tanks ever since to be sure that it would be the same. Its sampling now shows a very fine quality indeed.

First shipments will be started tomorrow, and the famous old Drewrys Ale should be in the hands of your dealers and ready for your steins and tankards within a very few days.

INDICT LAWYER IN COURTROOM MURDER INQUIRY

John Scheck and Mother Held as Slayers.

ranged for the visits of relatives to the young prisoners.

"I have done nothing wrong," said Attorney Laird when appraised of the grand jury action. "I will ask immediate trial. I acted only in a legal manner in this case and will prove it when and if I am tried."

Chief Justice Prystalski announced that he would grant immediate trials to the defendants.

With the sentences imposed yesterday 56 criminals have been sentenced to prison since the drive started last Wednesday. The Criminal court is now manned by seven volunteer judges and three regular judges under the leadership of Chief Justice Prystalski.

Two alleged gunmen, who were granted new trials by the Supreme court after conviction, were found guilty yesterday of another crime by a jury in Judge Molthrop's court. Anthony Le Lordo and Leslie Kidd, who more than three years ago are alleged to have made a sensational pay roll raid on the Wanzer Dairy company plant, were convicted of assault to murder Policeman James J. Kelly of the south park department. A motion for a new trial was continued to Aug. 18.

Deny Leniency Pleas.

Among the penitentiary sentences handed out yesterday was a 1 year to life penalty to Norman Finkelstein, 17, a senior at the Tuley High school. Pleas for leniency because of his youth were denied by Judge Prystalski. Two other members of the gang which was involved in a series of robberies, including that of the Orrington hotel in Evanston, were sentenced to life terms by Judge Marcus Kavanagh on Monday. Finkelstein obtained a change of venue yesterday from Judge Kavanagh.

Other sentences imposed yesterday were as follows:

ALBERT PATETE, 25; WALTER WASHLOW, 22, and ARTHUR JOHNSON, 21, sentenced to 1 to 10 years each in the penitentiary and also to 1 year each in the Bridewell by Judge Daniel P. Trude. They committed a series of robberies, but the prosecution admitted its case was weak, and a plea on a lesser charge was accepted.

JOHN HIBBS, 19, colored, was sentenced to 1 to 10 years by Judge Trude for being in possession of an automobile taken during a robbery of Norman Horn, 4823 North Hermitage avenue.

JOHN WERNES, 53, was sentenced to 1 to 10 years for receiving stolen property by Judge Prystalski. He was in possession of some stolen awnings when his car collided with a police car at 22d street and California avenue.

NICK GAGLIANO, 23, was sentenced to 1 to 20 years by Judge Harry Miller for stealing a motorcycle from John Michaels, 2314 South Sawyer avenue. He received a six months' sentence in 1932 for the same offense.

GEORGE SWEITLIK, 18, and LEO ADAMCZYK, 24, were sentenced to 1 to 14 years each by Judge Ross C. Hall for assault to rob Otto Pose, 3516 Fullerton avenue, a butcher. They shot at Pose when he resisted the robbery.

JOHN ALBERTI, 24, was sentenced to 1 to 5 years by Judge Joseph Sabath for attempting to steal the automobile of Ernest M. Hoover, 910 Leland avenue. He was on parole when he was caught with a master key trying to start Hoover's automobile on May 27. Angelo Chiro, 21, who has no previous record, made application for probation, which will be ruled on later.

FRANK WEIST, 25, was sentenced to 1 year to life by Judge Harry B. Miller for robbing James Costello in his oil station at Oakwood boulevard and Lake Park avenue. He robbed the same place once before. At the time of his arrest he was on probation.

STANLEY MACK and JOHN BLASZYK were sentenced to 1 year to life each by Judge Ross C. Hall. They were found guilty last Friday, and motions for a new trial were overruled yesterday. Mack, who had served two terms, was on parole at the time he committed the four robberies for which he was sentenced yesterday.

SAM MERMELSTEIN, 18, was sentenced to 1 year to life by Judge Marcus Kavanagh for the robbery of an Atlantic and Pacific company store at 6840 North Western avenue. He was also involved in other robberies.

Of the five bridewell sentences, four of them were imposed by Judge Joseph B. David an one by Judge Prystalski. James Perkins, 29, colored, Casimir Halek, and Casimir Hopnacke, both 18, and Mike Milas, 17, were sentenced by Judge David. They were charged with robbery, but no revolvers were used and it was their first offense. For that reason the judge allowed a misdemeanor sentence, he said.

Graziano Serritella, 53, was given the maximum sentence of one year and a $2,000 fine for a misdemeanor by Judge Prystalski. He was charged with assault to murder Anthony Ruda, 325 West 24th street, with an ax, while intoxicated.

NURSE ARRESTED AS AUTHOR OF $50,000 EXTORTION LETTER

New York, Aug. 8.—[Special.]—An extortion letter received by Alfred B. Squire, wealthy financier and industrialist of West Orange, N. J., demanding $50,000 in silver, led to the arrest by the federal authorites today of Miss Flora Carol Ravens, a nurse, 42 years old, of Bloomfield, N. J. Pending arraignment before a United States commissioner she was taken to the Hudson county jail, the first woman in New Jersey to be charged under the new federal kidnaping law.

The letter, which was received on Aug. 1 and which Miss Ravens is accused by writing, reads: "Leave $50,000 in silver at main gate midnight, Aug. 2, or your daughter's head will be cut off." The note was unsigned.

Miss Ravens, it was stated, said that she found the letter in a street car and took it to Mr. Squire, by whom she was formerly employed. A week later a second letter was received.

Miss Ravens was employed by Mr. Squire until February, 1932.

Son of Holdup Victim Freed After Police Quiz

Jack Crawley, 19 years old, 7831 Cornell avenue, convinced police yesterday that he was kidnaped by robbers who entered his home after taking his keys, and forced his mother, Mrs. Josephine Crawley, to hand over $1,000 Monday evening. Mrs. Crawley is cashier of the Kickapoo inn, 7901 South Chicago avenue, and the money belonged to her employers. The youth was arrested when he returned home after the robbery. He was freed following the questioning.

Traffic Judge Launches a Crime War of His Own

WARDEN CALLED TO WASHINGTON IN DRUGGAN CASE

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—Warden Robert H. Hudspeth of Leavenworth penitentiary was on his way here today to explain to headquarters how Terry Druggan, Chicago beer baron, was allowed to roam about the city of Leavenworth when he was supposed to be serving a federal prison term.

Asked to Come in Person.

Sanford Bates, director of the bureau of prisons, announced that Hudspeth had asked if he could come in person to Washington, and permission was granted him. Hudspeth is reported to have already written a voluminous statement of the Druggan case.

Disposal of the Druggan affair during the warden's visit here is expected. Director Bates has said that he wished to talk with Hudspeth before finally determining what punishment shall be meted out to Druggan and to the chaplain and two guards who are involved with him.

Denies Knowledge of Privileges.

Hudspeth at the beginning of the case maintained that the liberties which Druggan enjoyed were without his knowledge or consent. Although he may be mildly reprimanded, it is not thought that he will become mixed up in the Druggan corruption in any major way.

There is still a leak in the officials at Leavenworth, through which Druggan learned of the investigation, to be explained. It is hoped that Hudspeth may be able to throw some light on this.

CHILD KILLED BY CAB.

Galesburg, Ill., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—Harold Ahenger, 2, was killed last night when he ran across the street in front of a taxicab.

STREWL INDICTED AS KIDNAPER OF YOUNG O'CONNELL

Gets Habeas Corpus, but Is Promptly Arrested.

Monticello, N. Y., Aug. 8.—(AP)—The sensational kidnaping of John J. O'Connell Jr., scion of the ruling political house of Albany, was laid to Manney Strewl and "several others" today by District Attorney John T. Delaney of Albany.

Strewl, the intermediary, who effected young O'Connell's release by handling the $40,000 ransom payment, was freed from police "protection" on an unopposed habeas corpus writ and promptly arrested as one of the alleged kidnapers.

Strewl, whose record includes two federal prison terms, brought young O'Connell back to the Helderberg mountain camp of his uncle, Daniel O'Connell, on July 30, after delivering the ransom money in New York City.

This morning found him in Albany, subject of a habeas corpus, or produce the prisoner writ, obtained by Daniel Prior, an attorney employed by his family.

Habeas Corpus Fails to Last.

In compliance with the writ Chief Smurl brought him to Monticello and produced him before Supreme Court Justice Sidney F. Foster. In less than ten minutes he was technically free, but before the handcuffs could have been removed he was served with the warrant of arrest.

Two brothers, Jacob and Morris Strewl, who came down from Albany and waited until late afternoon to see him, attained that objective but were unable to talk with him.

Strewl, about 30, runs a wireless supply store. He was one of the long list of intermediaries proposed by the senior O'Connells during the 23 days of negotiations for the release of young O'Connell, who was kidnaped July 7.

Extortionist Fails to Show Up

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 8.—(AP)—The writer of the letter threatening to kidnap or kill Betty Downes, 15, now in a New Hampshire camp, failed to keep an appointment with her father today to get the $15,000 which was demanded as the price for the girl's safety.

James R. Downes, chief of freight transportation of the Pennsylvania railroad, was at the building designated by the letter writer, but the latter did not put in an appearance.

Also at the building was a detail of police, carefully concealed.

The camp where the girl is staying at North Sutton, N. H., has been under guard since last Saturday.

MURDER OF CINCINNATI MAN IS LAID BY HIS FRIENDS TO KIDNAPERS

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 8.—(AP)—A belief that kidnapers struck down and killed 27 year old Oliver S. Baily, a leader of the younger smart set of Cincinnati society, was expressed by his relatives and friends tonight.

They thought it possible that the kidnapers found the husky young captive more than they could handle. But the police, nevertheless, went on hunting for a woman.

They believed they had evidence one had been with him along a wooded drive late Saturday shortly before somebody hit him on the head with a brick, causing his death.

Young Baily's wife and 3 year old son were vacationing at Lake Placid, N. Y., and his parents were at North Port Point, Mich.

So there was no one to report him missing or to identify him until late yesterday, when police succeeded in tracing the shoes he wore.

"There was no love affair," his father, George Baily, Cincinnati attorney, contended. "Some devil kidnaped him, took him to this lonely place, and killed him when he resisted."

Urging acceptance of the kidnaping theory, friends pointed out that kidnapers might have intended to seek ransom from Baily's wealthy father-in-law, Jess Lippincott, president and treasurer of the Cincinnati Union Stockyards.

RELIEF PROJECTS ARE LIMITED TO PUBLIC PROPERTY

Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, announced yesterday that only relief projects on public properties will be paid for by the commission. The commission has previously approved projects undertaken on churches and other properties owned by civic groups, not operating for profit.

Mr. Reynolds said that he had been advised by the federal emergency relief administration that funds given to state commissions could be used only to pay men working on federal, state, or local tax supported properties. Private projects which have already been started will not be affected by the ruling.

The Walgreen company announced yesterday that it has turned over $22,693, the net balance of the sales tax collected in April and May, to welfare organizations in Illinois.

SEIZE URSCHEL RANSOM MONEY IN MINNEAPOLIS

Hold 3 Men in Oklahoma Kidnaping Case.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—Discovery here this morning of part of the marked ransom money paid to the kidnapers of Charles F. Urschel, Oklahoma oil millionaire, was followed by the arrest of three men and an intensive hunt by federal operatives through the underworld of Minneapolis and St. Paul for the kidnaping gang.

The three men held incommunicado are Sam Kronick, head of a barber supply company; Charles Wolk, an officer of a transfer company, and Sam Frederick, whose real name is said to be Nelson. These men are not reported to be the actual kidnapers, but possess information which may lead the federal agents to the men who on July 22 took Urschel from his Oklahoma City home and who were said to have been paid $200,000 ransom by the victim's wife before he was released.

The most plausible theory advanced here for the activity of the operatives was that a Twin City gang had contact with the kidnapers and were passing the marked money. Another theory was that gangsters here were the actual abductors of Urschel.

One of the men was taken into custody when he sought to obtain a cashier's check for $180 for nine $20 bills at a neighborhood bank. Another was arrested when he deposited some of the marked money at the time of transferring his account to another bank.

State Approves Contracts for Two Highway Projects

The state highway department at Springfield yesterday approved contracts for two highway projects in Lake and Du Page counties, to be financed out of the counties' share of the state gasoline tax. The E. A. Meyer Construction company got a contract for .53 mile of 20 foot paving near Diamond lake, in Lake county, on a bid of $24,557, and Edgar A. Otto, Inc., the contract for 1.66 miles of 20 foot paving near Downers Grove, in Du Page county, on a bid of $59,968.

POLICE STUDYING NEW SANBORN MURDER CLEWS

Examine Vault Box Papers.

New York, Aug. 8.—(AP)—The search for the slayers of Henry F. Sanborn, socially prominent eastern representative of the Frisco lines, was pushed tonight along the following paths:

1. What was the reason for his having a revolver in his lodgings in a railroad Y. M. C. A. branch?

2. There were no bullet holes in the coat on the body, though Sanborn, whose father was a federal judge in St. Paul, Minn., was shot twice in the back.

3. The possibility that Sanborn was slain while fighting with blackmailers or kidnapers.

The police hoped for clews from a safe deposit box. They hope, too, that Bancroft Mitchell, son of a former attorney general, could shed some light on Sanborn's contemplated investment in a Connecticut brewery.

In the presence of police officials the box was opened by Harold McKennis, Sanborn's attorney. He said "nothing of any significance had been found."

Inspector John J. Gallagher said the papers found there would be carefully examined.

Stressing the point that Bancroft Mitchell was in no way involved in the case, the district attorney of Queens county was nevertheless hopeful he might have some knowledge of Sanborn's business deals. Mitchell was said to have been in Naples, Italy, two weeks ago and efforts were being made by the district attorney to locate him in either Italy, England or France.

Discovery of the revolver, an old fashioned .32 caliber design, in Sanborn's $27.50 a month room led police to weigh the possibility he had purchased it because of threats of kidnaping or blackmail.

The revolver, unloaded, however, was found in the closet of Sanborn's room. In a bureau drawer the police found five cartridges.

Body Weighted with Bricks Found in Lake at Evanston

With the hands and feet tied together and weighted with bricks, the body of John Riber, 45 years old, 1852 North Springfield avenue, was found in the lake near Burnham place in Evanston yesterday. Riber formerly was employed by the General Electric company, but had been working only at intervals this summer. The Evanston police were unable to determine whether he had been the victim of murder or a suicide.

WOMAN DOCTOR ACCUSED BY MAN OF DEATH POISON

Physicians in Same Mississippi Clinic.

Greenwood, Miss., Aug. 8.—(AP)—A death bed statement from Dr. Preston Kennedy, accusing an associate woman physician, Dr. Sara Ruth Dean, of poisoning him, was disclosed here today by District Attorney Arthur Jordan.

The district attorney said the dying man told his two brothers that Dr. Dean, 33 year old woman specialist in children's diseases, had given him poison in a drink of whisky in her home on the night of July 27.

Dr. Kennedy was quoted as saying he recognized the taste of the poison in the drink and that he left the woman doctor's home as quickly as possible. On a street, he said, he attempted to rid himself of the poison.

For five days the doctor fought a silent battle to save his life with his own medical knowledge, but on Aug. 1 he called in other physicians, who sent him to Jackson for treatment.

Realizing that he was dying from the slow poisoning, the district attorney said the doctor made a death bed statement to his two brothers, Dr. Henry Kennedy of Greenwood and Dr. Barney Kennedy of Jackson, both dentists.

District Attorney Jordan made an affidavit charging the woman doctor with murder after he had attended Dr. Kennedy's funeral at Jackson.

Arrested by the sheriff, she said: "Well, I'm surprised."

Since that one remark she has maintained silence in her jail cell and has employed counsel to represent her. She lived here with an aunt and was associated with Dr. Kennedy in clinical work. She was educated at the Universities of Mississippi and Virginia and took a special course in New York. She is being held without bail pending a preliminary trial.

Dr. Kennedy died Sunday in the Jackson hospital. After realizing that his case was hopeless, he sent for his two brothers.

SEIZE HOODLUM AS MAN WHO PUT PAL ON THE SPOT

Frank Roskind, alias Stanley Dittler, minor hoodlum who was with Willie Carr, former beer runner, when Carr was assassinated on July 26 in front of 1521 Elston avenue, was brought back to Chicago yesterday for questioning. Police suspect that Roskind put Carr on the spot.

Roskind, who is 25 years old, was arrested Friday night by Sheriff Lester Tiffany and State's Attorney Charles E. Mason of Lake county, in a raid on a cottage at Channel lake. He is suspected of taking part in burglaries and robberies in Lake county, and also of working with George ["Bugs"] Moran and Leo Mongoven in the slot machine racket in the county.

Roskind's identity was discovered when his fingerprints were sent to the Chicago detective bureau. He drove the automobile in which Carr arrived at the Elston avenue address. Carr evidently suspected a trap, for he jumped from the automobile and started to run, but was overtaken by the gunmen. Roskind took to flight and escaped. He is being held at the Racine avenue station.

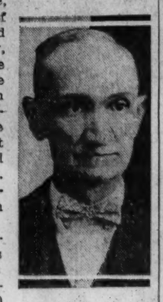
ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

APPEALS COURT AFFIRMS DALE'S RUM CONVICTION

Reverses Sentences of 5 Co-defendants.

The United States Appellate court yesterday affirmed the conviction of George R. Dale, former mayor of Muncie, Ind., and Frank Massey, his former police chief. They were found guilty with five others of conspiracy to violate the Volstead act before Federal Judge Robert C. Baltzell at Indianapolis on June 3, 132.



GEORGE R. DALE. [A. P. Photo.]

While affirming the sentences of eighteen months' imprisonment and $1,000 fine imposed on Dale and Massey, the Appellate court held that Judge Baltzell erred in refusing to grant the other five defendants a new trial. The decision against the five, therefore, was reversed and the cases remanded for another trial. The five are Fred Ellis, former member of the Muncie board of safety; Dan Davis, Kenneth Horstman, Harry Nelson, and Ray Powell, all Muncie policemen.

Opinion of Appellate Court.

The Appellate court opinion, delivered by Judge Samuel Alschuler, held that Judge Baltzell should have directed an acquittal for Ellis and the policemen, because the government failed to prove Ellis a conspirator, while the policemen merely obeyed orders of their superiors. Judges Evan A. Evans and James H. Wilkerson concurred in the decision.

Dale, who has been at liberty under bail with the other defendants, learned of the Appellate court decision at Wauwatosee, Ind., where he was attending a convention of the Indiana Democratic Editorial association. Dale, who is editor of the militant Muncie weekly, the Post-Democrat, announced that an appeal from the Appellate court decision would be carried to the United States Supreme court.

20 Days to Ask Rehearing.

Under a federal court practice Dale and Massey have twenty days in which to file a petition for a rehearing before mandates for their arrest and imprisonment are issued. If the rehearing is denied, they may then appeal to the Supreme court for a writ of certiorari, pending which the Appellate court may withhold or issue the mandates for imprisonment, as it chooses.

The trial of Dale and the others was one of the most sensational prohibition cases in Indiana. Dale asserted that the indictment of himself and his co-defendants on charges that four bootleggers were permitted to ply their trade in Muncie, a town of 30,000, was a plot engineered by Indiana Republicans to revenge themselves for the fight he had waged against them and the Ku Klux Klan.

RE-EMPLOYMENT OF 4,700 WORKERS IS BEGUN BY CITY

The reëmployment of men in the city bureau of streets to work on street repairs was begun yesterday by Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works, who said a total of 700 men will be working by the latter part of the week.

A requisition was sent to the Illinois Emergency Relief commission by Commissioner Hewitt yesterday for 4,000 men on the relief rolls to destroy weeds in vacant lots and parkways before the hay fever season opens. The men, who will be started to work today, will be paid $4 each for a five and one-half hour day. They will work four days a week, and 16 days in all. They will be paid by the relief commission, but supervised by city foremen.

In view of the fact that these men will be working in the interests of the health of hay fever sufferers, no trouble with city labor unions was expected by Commissioner Hewitt. He pointed out that the civil service commission has said that it will deal summarily with city employés whose strikes tie up health services.

LAY KANSAS CITY MASSACRE PLOT TO CAFE OWNER

Melrose Pk. Man Charged with Conspiracy.

Louis [Doc] Stacey, 40 years old, Melrose Park roadhouse owner, was charged yesterday with conspiracy in connection with the machine gun raid in which five men were killed in the Kansas City Union station on June 17. The raid was made by outlaws in an effort to free Frank Nash, a convict who was killed by the machine gun fire. Bond of $50,000 was set for Stacey yesterday by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker and removal hearing continued for two weeks.

Nash, two policemen, a deputy sheriff, and a federal agent were slain by the machine gunners. The raid occurred as Nash was being returned to Leavenworth penitentiary to complete a 20 years' sentence for mail robbery after he had escaped from the prison.

Trace Phone Calls.

Stacey was arrested Monday night in his O. P. inn in Melrose Park. The government charged that the machine gun raid was planned in the Stacey roadhouse, although federal agents said that Stacey had no actual part in the shooting.

Local federal agents said that telephone calls traced from hoodlum haunts in Kansas City to the Stacey roadhouse had brought about the arrest. Melvin H. Purvis, head of the local bureau of investigation, said that the government is convinced that the depot raid was intended to free Nash.

Verne Miller, former South Dakota sheriff and now known as a hoodlum machine gunner, has been identified as the man who handled the machine gun, according to government evidence.

One Agent Escapes.

Agents said that the gang apparently had trailed Nash and his guards from Hot Springs, Ark., where he had been captured. The convict was being taken from a train to waiting automobiles when the shooting occurred.

Miller is believed to have trained his machine gun on the front seat in the belief that Nash was to be placed in the rear of the automobile. This theory is borne out, agents said, by the fact that a federal agent sitting in the middle of the back seat was unharmed. Nash was in the front seat and was killed instantly.

Stacey, who denied complicity in the plot, is said by government agents to have maintained a hideout for hoodlums in his roadhouse. Stacey was arrested in 1931 in a roadhouse near Wheaton in the company of Capone hoodlums. Claude Maddox and Tough Tony Capezio were two of his companions at that time.

FAMOUS REBEL CHINESE GENERAL SIGNS PEACE PACT

Feng to Turn Army Over to Nanking.

PEIPING, Aug. 8.—(AP)—Representatives of the independent Chinese general, Feng Yu-Hsiang, and the national government signed a peace pact today at Kalgan, headquarters from which Feng directed his campaign to recover "China's lost provinces" from Japan.

The erstwhile "Christian general" will enter political obscurity, under the terms of the agreement as announced by both sides.

To Rehabilitate Country.

A national government appointee, Gen. Sung Cheh-Yuan, will become governor of Chahar province, seat of Feng's most recent operations, and the government will be reorganized.

The truce also provides for measures to rehabilitate the country, which is reported to have suffered grievously from Feng's repeated levies upon the population for funds to support his hungry, bedraggled soldiers.

According to the pact, Feng, who once was called China's "mystery man," unconditionally surrenders and abdicates all titles and turns over the command of his troops to the national government, although their disposition has not yet been determined.

With Feng's collapse seemingly a fact, Peiping authorities will ask the Japanese to cease their pressure on Dolon-nor, which Feng's followers captured from Manchukuan guards July 19.

Japanese Covet City.

It was considered uncertain, however, whether the Japanese will comply with the request, since they argue that Dolon-nor is vital to the security of Manchukuo's western border.

Feng's friends said he intends to abandon his adventurous career as rebel against the national government for peaceful pursuits, such as farming south of Kalgan.

His present surrender was attributed to a lack of funds and munitions as well as mutiny and dissatisfaction among his own men, said at one time to have numbered 20,000. Added were Japanese threats to boycott Kalgan and the vastly superior national government forces sent against him.

NORTH CHICAGO AND WAUKEGAN CLOSE BEACHES

All bathing beaches at Waukegan and North Chicago were ordered closed yesterday by the mayors of the two cities. The action was taken on recommendation of Dr. Frank Jirka, state health officer, who found that industrial wastes dumped into the lake at Waukegan had made the water impure. Waukegan has for some time been considering the construction of a new sewage treatment plant or plants, but disagreements over location have prevented action in the matter.

IF YOU WERE BORN IN 1910 OR THEREABOUTS

YOU were nine years old, more or less, when the country went "dry". So you've never had an opportunity really to become acquainted with the fine old traditions of the important breweries in America.

Not that you need to know Berghoff's history to enjoy the fine flavor of Berghoff beer. But without the Berghoff tradition, which governs the quality of our brews, that delightful flavor would not exist.

Ours is a tradition of old-world brewing—a process of infinite care developed years ago by the Berghoffs in Dortmund, Germany. In this process lies the reason for that fine flavor and full body which have always caused our production to be sought—in the East as well as in the West—by exclusive clubs and fine restaurants, where people willingly paid a premium for the extra quality of this Dortmunder style beer.

Tradition in brewing does matter—as those who today are enjoying Berghoff will emphatically agree.

BISTOR APPEALS FROM ORDER FOR TAX RECEIVER

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections yesterday totaled $520,353. A total of $33,361,321 has been collected since the enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act began last April 28. The day's real estate tax collections and the uncollected taxes for four years follow:

	1928.	1929.
Aug. 8	$ 19,708	$ 36,212
Uncollected	16,396,603	48,490,003
	1930.	1931.
Aug. 8	$ 98,183	$ 366,250

The day's collections of 1931 personal property taxes totaled $939.

The first appeal from an order of County Judge Jarecki appointing County Treasurer McDonough as the receiver of a property to collect delinquent taxes under the Kerner-Skarda act was taken yesterday.

Attorney Ferre C. Watkins, representing James E. Bistor, former official of the Real Estate Taxpayers' association and one of the tax strike leaders, filed a $500 bond to take an appeal to the state Supreme court from Judge Jarecki's order appointing the county treasurer as receiver for an apartment building at the southwest corner of 71st street and Constance avenue. The building, owned by Bistor, owes $7,000 in taxes.

Judge Jarecki ordered the officials of Lawrence Nelson & Co., a mortgage loan concern at 39 South La Salle street, to make an accounting of the rents they have collected from an apartment building at 1610-20 Fargo avenue, which they have been managing. The order for the accounting was entered after officials of the company had turned over a check for $851 to Judge Jarecki for the payment of 1928 real estate taxes on the building. The property still owes $2,373 in taxes.

Payment Follows Charges.

The payment of the 1928 taxes followed charges made last week by Attorney Harry J. Berman, representing William and Lena Zimmer, who own a $40,000 equity in the property. Berman charged that $851 given to the company by the Zimmers to pay the taxes had not been used for this purpose.

Judge Jarecki vacated the order appointing the county treasurer as receiver to collect the taxes, but ordered the accounting to discover why the balance of the taxes are unpaid.

The judge had an amplifying system installed in his court yesterday to enable the crowds in the rear of the room to hear their case numbers when they are called.

Sixteen New Receiverships.

Judge Jarecki appointed the county treasurer as receiver for sixteen properties, owing a total of $111,620 in taxes. The following list shows the properties and the amount of taxes owed by each:

1207 Moorman street	$ 3,265
4349-57 North Hermitage avenue	4,132
4868-70 North Clark street	1,908
4536-38 Magnolia avenue	7,032
5719 Broadway	3,235
331-335 East Wacker drive	37,535
801-13 Crescent place	2,764
4323-27 Vista terrace	3,654
4127-41 Sheridan road	24,944
4400-04 Malden street	3,616
4436-38 Malden street	2,619
4448-50 Magnolia avenue	3,404
834-838 Montrose avenue	5,501
816-820 Wilson avenue	1,702
5016-18 Winthrop avenue	3,674
4901-03 North Leavitt street	2,635

The treasurer yesterday filed 200 more tax receivership petitions against properties owing a total of $982,345.

Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby of the Municipal court announced that a special branch of the Municipal court for the collection of delinquent personal property tax bills up to $1,000 will be opened on Sept. 7.

SEIZES PURSE WITH $103.

A youthful purse snatcher seized the purse of Miss Sadie Lichtenstein, 2828 Pine Grove avenue, which contained $103, early yesterday outside the Belmont hotel, 3136 Sheridan road, and made his escape in an automobile.

SNAKES INVADE COUNTY FORESTS; TRAP 2 RATTLERS

Hogs May Be Used to Rout Reptiles.

County Commissioner Homer J. Byrd yesterday donned his outdoor costume and led a safari of four on a rattlesnake hunt in the northern end of the county forest preserve near Wheeling. Three rattlers were flushed out of the district east of Milwaukee avenue, from a half mile north of Dundee road to the Lake county line.

Two of the reptiles, each more than two feet long, were captured by Commissioner Byrd, a skilled snake hunter. A third escaped into a gopher hole.

The two snakes captured were taken alive and will be studied for clews to the reported influx of rattlers into the northern end of the preserve. The hunt was organized on complaint of Renald Smith, a farmer near Wheeling, who lost a cow by snake bite.

Act to Protect Bathers.

"This condition is serious," Commissioner Byrd said after the hunt. "I propose to ask the county board to offer a bounty on each rattler captured or killed in the forest preserve. None of the snakes has been reported south of Dundee road and we must protect the bathers who swim at the dams south of this point."

It was suggested by the commissioner that the snakes may have been washed into the district from rattlesnake country to the north in the floods of last spring.

Another naturalist pointed out that the increase in rattlers might be traced to the fact that campers have killed the bullsnakes of the neighborhood. The bullsnake, harmless to humans, is a natural foe of the rattler and is able to kill the poisonous snake by crushing it in the manner of the boa constrictor.

May Call in Hogs.

If the efforts of Commissioner Byrd to free the territory of snakes are not successful hogs may be called in to do the job, it was said yesterday. A hog, the commissioner pointed out, has never lost a decision to a rattlesnake; the pig is immune to rattlesnake bites and looks upon the reptile as a delicacy.

The hog's plan of battle is said to be quite simple. In attacking the hog strolls amiably into the coiled snake, ignores the strike, places his feet on the snake, and starts eating.

CITY JUDGES GET PAY; ALL OTHER EMPLOYES WAIT

Court Gains 3 Months on Schwaba Ruling.

As a result of a recent order entered by Judge Peter H. Schwaba in the Superior court, the judges of the Municipal court, including Chief Justice Sonsteby, are to receive preference over all other city employés in the matter of paydays, it was disclosed yesterday.

Municipal Judge John H. Lyle sought and won an injunction from Judge Schwaba forbidding the city to make effective for the Municipal judges the 78 day pay deduction which the city council imposed as an economy measure on all other city employes, including its own members. In issuing the injunction, Judge Schwaba also ordered the city controller to pay all judges' pay rolls in the Municipal court as soon as he receives them from the chief justice.

Accordingly, City Controller Upham yesterday released the judges's pay rolls for payment up to Aug. 1. Other city employés have been paid only to May 1. The majority of the Municipal judges have been paid to that date, but some who refused to accept the pay cut have had no pay since Jan. 1.

The amount still due the judges up to Aug. 1 amounted to $136,513, and more than exhausted the cash in the corporate fund. There was only $121,923 in that fund yesterday, but Controller Upham expected that collections of miscellaneous revenue would bring in enough cash to meet the pay vouchers by the time they are presented.

The corporation counsel's office took an appeal from Judge Schwaba's ruling, but advised Controller Upham that it believes the ruling will be binding upon him until it is reversed by a higher court.

The judges cannot collect their pay for the last 78 days of the year, however. The city council passed an appropriation on the basis of a 78 day deduction, and the controller is prevented by law from making any payments after that appropriation is exhausted.

To get the rest of their money, if higher courts uphold Judge Schwaba, the Municipal judges would have to institute court proceedings to compel the council to make a deficiency appropriation in the 1934 budget.

8 POLICE FACE CHARGES OVER CAB INSURANCE

Eight Chicago policemen who were reprimanded some months ago by Commissioner Allman because they were incorporators of the Lake Shore Insurance company, which insures Checker taxicabs, were recommended for further disciplinary action yesterday by Mayor Kelly.

The fact that the policemen were incorporators was recalled yesterday in a hearing before Special Federal Master in Chancery Charles Eldredge, who is considering the merits of a petition filed by the Checker Taxi company asking that revolting drivers who have failed to keep up insurance payments with the company be forced to turn in their cars. M. M. Sokol, president of the company, made the admission on cross-examination by Attorney David Stansbury, attorney for the drivers.

"The policemen," said Sokol, "were not picked because of any influence they might have had, but because they were friends of Attorney James C. Byrne, who drew the incorporation papers."

Mayor Kelly, however, said that he would recommend that the men be summoned before the civil service commission by Chief Allman on the grounds that no policeman should be connected with a concern which might become involved in his official duties. The policemen named were Emil B. Schafer, Henry C. Rinck, John McCambridge, William McEvoy, Arthur J. Georg, Michael Chambers, Charles P. Dillon, and Fred R. Heidens.

ENDS LIFE IN JAIL CELL.

Andrew Marshall, 34 years old, 2437 North Damen avenue, an Indian, hanged himself yesterday in his cell in the Berwyn police station, where he was being held on a charge of carrying concealed weapons.

Figures Are Presented in Aldermanic Hearing.

Chicago citizens pay considerably higher baggage transfer rates than residents of New York, despite the greater area of that city, it was disclosed yesterday before the city council subcommittee, which is drafting a baggage rate ordinance.

Rates under the New York ordinance governing express men were obtained for the subcommittee, which is headed by Ald. George A. Williston [49th], by Frederick Rex, city librarian. In New York, for trips within one of the five boroughs of the city, a charge of 40 cents is permitted for carrying each piece of baggage not more than five miles. This rate increases to 55 cents for a trip of not more than ten miles, and to 75 cents for a trip of not more than fifteen miles. For transfers between two boroughs, which in many cases require ferry trips, the foregoing rates are increased 50 per cent.

Transfer Rates in Chicago.

The Parmelee Transfer company, which has a virtual monopoly on delivery of baggage to and from Chicago railroad stations, charges a dollar for each piece of baggage. If the delivery is beyond Western avenue on the west or 79th street on the south, the rate is $1.25 for each piece of baggage, it was stated yesterday at the company's headquarters.

"Why this discrimination against the people in my part of the city?" asked Ald. William A. Rowan [10th] when he learned of the higher rates in the South Chicago district, which he represents. "Why shouldn't the company reduce its rates when it has more than one piece of baggage for the same address?"

Need Different Rules.

Joseph F. Grossman, assistant corporation counsel, told the aldermen that in drafting a new regulatory ordinance they would have to differentiate between the company's local and interstate business. In the latter classification, control of which is vested in the interstate commerce commission, would be included transfers of baggage from one railroad station to another for interstate passengers and delivery of baggage in Chicago for passengers who booked it through when they boarded trains in other states.

Mr. Rex was requested to obtain additional data for the committee.

Reach for a Lucky

–for always Luckies Please!

A woman's reason for liking a man's cigarette

Maybe you'll think I'm a bit inconsistent. Most things I'm fond of are really quite feminine . . . dainty, frilly frocks—delicate desserts—yes, and delicate compliments, too. To me my cigarette is a personal thing—it touches my lips—so give me one with real character. For some reason or other, I find that whenever I reach for a Lucky, always "Luckies Please". They're as mild and pure as can be—I wonder if "Toasting" isn't the reason after all!

tending the furnace in a Gas Heated house

Gas Heat ends all dirt, grime, labor, and drudgery

To prove that every home can afford to heat with gas . . . . we will install it at our expense and remove it at our expense, if you don't like it.

GAS heat is this easy and simple! You don't need to go near the furnace. No shoveling coal, no hauling ashes, no setting dampers. No fuel supply to run low in zero weather. One touch of the thermostat controls your heat perfectly, day and night.

But perhaps you say, "Yes, of course, I know gas heat is the perfect heat. But it costs too much."

New low costs for gas heat

Then here's good news for you. Gas heat now costs less than half what it did in 1930-31. A luxury priced for the majority A wonderful convenience, now within your reach.

To prove it—and we take the full burden of proof—we'll install it in your home without your making one cent of investment. Then you'll know from your own personal experience whether you can afford gas heat or not. And if we're wrong and you decide you don't want it—out it comes. We remove it at our expense.

During the nine heating months of the first year you pay $3.00 a month rental for the equipment in the average home. This charge will be included with your gas bill. And if for any reason during the first year you want it removed, we take it out and the rental charge stops immediately. Further, we replace your former heating equipment in the same or better condition than we found it. If you decide you want it, the rental applies on the purchase price.

Automatic gas heat promotes better health. No ups and downs of temperature which may start winter colds and coughs. No dust or grime to inhale. No odor. Gas heat saves cleaning bills and endless housework. Walls and paper stay clean year after year. Hangings stay up all winter long. There's no greasy smudge. No dirt-tracked stairs and rugs.

DISCOURAGING MURDER FOR PROFIT.

Rooney and Berry, racketeering officials of the Circular Distributors' union, have been sentenced to life terms in the penitentiary for murder. Rosalie Rizzo, who participated in the crime, has also been found guilty and sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment. The three were charged with the killing of Stanley Gross, a watchman at one of the Goldblatt department stores.

Though there have been scores of murders in this community in recent years as a result of labor racketeering, this is the first conviction which has been obtained. The fact reflects great credit upon the courage and integrity of the jury and upon the care with which the case was worked up by State's Attorney Courtney's staff. Not the least noteworthy aspect of the trial was the testimony of Mr. Joseph Goldblatt regarding a campaign of terrorism and extortion directed against his company by the so-called union. The success of this prosecution should encourage other business men who have been victims of racketeering to show the same courage in presenting the facts to the state's attorney and the jury.

A few more convictions of the extortionists and racketeers who have betrayed organized labor will put an end to the reign of terror, particularly if in subsequent cases the murderers are sentenced to the electric chair. Extortion is always deliberate. The murders and other acts of violence committed by racketeers with a view to the shakedown are always planned and executed in cold blood. If the certainty of the most severe punishment enters into the calculation murder for profit will promptly become unfashionable.

RUMOR MONGERING.

French newspapers are sensationalizing irresponsible reports of alleged friction between the Japanese and American governments. It is to be hoped the popular press of Japan will not be victimized. Perhaps there are elements of French opinion that would welcome a war between the United States and Japan and other more intelligent elements that may see some advantage not in outright war but in the development of unfriendly sentiment between the two countries. It is the duty of the Japanese and American press to counteract influences directed at making trouble between the two nations and to cultivate the mutual confidence and amity which it is unquestionably the interest of both peoples to maintain.

The ridiculous fiction that our government has recently asked for a naval base on the Chinese coast, contrary to the treaty by which at the Washington conference we voluntarily gave up our right to bases in eastern waters, is an example of mischief making which the governments of both countries should and can discourage. The yarn, sensationally played up by the London Express and eagerly spread by French newspapers, that the Japanese government has protested against the naval building proposed under the administration's recovery program is another myth of the same kind. Nothing in the building plans of the administration would justify such a protest, for our treaty rights are clear and we are far below them. The Japanese government would not put itself in the position of protesting the exercise of an unquestionable right any more than would our own government protest the right of Japan to build within its treaty limits.

It is inevitable that the renewal of building by the United States and the increase in the army and navy budgets proposed by the respective Japanese ministries of war and marine should cause discussion abroad. In America it has been given little attention. It deserves more, though certainly it should not be exploited for sensational purposes. Both the American and the Japanese peoples and their responsible statesmen must regard the possibilities of an armament race between the two countries as an unmitigated and unnecessary evil. It is to be recognized by the informed in both countries that conditions justify some building on the part of our navy to make up deficiencies resulting from the cessation of building in recent years. It is also to be expected that the military operations of the Japanese army and navy during the year and the new responsibilities of Japan compel increased appropriations in the Japanese budget. There is also consideration of diplomatic advantage, the trading possibilities, to be derived from the legal increase of our respective establishments before the next conference. But this does not justify alarmist conjectures or prevent the adoption when the present treaties expire of agreements upon limitation and even reduction of armament which are compatible with peace between the nations concerned.

There is need, however, for a studious effort to suppress malicious publicity and to cultivate friendly feeling in the public opinion of both countries. There is nothing which could be more fatal to the solution of Japan's problems or to the development of her prosperity than a war with the United States. On the other hand, there is no war spirit in the United States toward Japan or any other country. The American people have demonstrated often and to any sane observation their ability to fight upon occasion, and they have all the resources, moral and material, to make war upon the most efficient and adequate scale. But the American people are not war-minded and there is no class in our nation disposed to military glory or capable of imposing a war policy upon the government or the nation.

In this situation it is possible to cultivate pacific relations and to maintain policies which will avoid wasteful and dangerous competition in armament, and, in a word, to conserve peace in the Pacific. This should be the deliberate concern of both governments and both nations. The treaties of Washington will soon expire. They should have the careful consideration of all signatory governments with such direct interchange as will prepare the ground for mutually beneficial agreements for the preservation of peace and the reduction of armament expenditure. The inevitable conference should not arrive without such preparation, and one essential of it is the cultivation of friendly feeling and confidence between Japan and the United States.

RELIEF AT ITS BEST.

The reforestation army is costing 15 million dollars a month, it is reported from Washington, and the equipment which has been purchased for the corps has cost another 25 million dollars. The expense is heavy, but, by and large, it is doubtful if any expenditure for relief from the federal treasury has done as much good.

Three hundred thousand young men have been given employment and an opportunity to help support their families. They have been put to useful work, conserving natural beauties and natural resources. They will emerge from the corps improved in health and morale. When the final accounting is made, the conservation corps will have shown itself not only the most practical of all the relief agencies but also by far the cheapest.

Thus far the men in charge of the corps have avoided making any serious mistakes. The corps has been kept out of politics for the most part. There have been no charges that the work undertaken was intended in any instance to enhance private property values. The wages paid, if somewhat higher than needed to obtain recruits, are still not high enough to make appointments to the corps matters of favoritism. The speed with which the companies were organized, outfitted, given preliminary training and dispatched to their work camps was wholly admirable. The men President Roosevelt intrusted with the task of organizing the corps may pride themselves upon a distinguished achievement in organization and administration.

FIGHTING THE TITHE IN ENGLAND.

Many thousand farmers in southern England rallied in harvest time to resist distraint warrants being served to attach property in satisfaction of unpaid tithes. Live stock was included in the seizures. The uprising had nearly all the characteristics found in the attempts of the American farmers resisting the foreclosure of mortgages and the sale of personal property to satisfy judgments. The Americans might concede the English farmers the greater provocation.

People who have never known an established church with revenue derived from taxation would have difficulty in understanding the survival into modern days of a tithe rent charge upon property. For Suffolk the ecclesiastical levy is equivalent to about $1.70 an acre. Hard times in English agriculture made the payments especially burdensome this year, and farmers threatened with the loss of their cattle have hooted the village clergyman on the streets and have turned out in numbers to prevent seizures.

The disadvantages of an established religion were recognized by the foiinders of the American republic, along with many other evils of a feudalized caste society. Human reason rejects the association of church and state as injurious to both. In parliament nonconformist politicians control the ritual of a faith to which they do not adhere, and property owners are thrown into disorder and brought to resistance of law by a tax imposed for the support of church activities in which they may not be interested and for an establishment in which they may not be communicants.

Editorial of the Day

AND AS TO PRICE FIXING.

[Baltimore Sun.]

It is more or less superfluous to make the point, but there may be a few who will recall that when the national recovery act was offered the official explanation was that legislation to compel minimum wages and maximum hours would strike down the "cutthroat competition" that was supposed in Washington to be ruining industry. At the time the Sun suggested that minimum wages and maximum hours would not assure protection to higher cost producers. Management, personnel, overhead and various other elements would enter as competitive factors; and, therefore, if effectual control over industry was to be had the managers of the new system would go on to price control and to its corollary, rationing of production. We suppose everybody really understood that, although it was not fashionable in Washington to talk about it.

In any event it will do no harm to take note of the fact that on Tuesday Administrator Johnson organized the "cotton textile planning and supervisory committee," naming himself as chairman, and that it is stated in Mr. Waltman's dispatch that "it will be the duty of the committee, which also includes representatives of the industry, to supervise the industry as to production, prices, and related matters, and also to enforce the provisions of the code." On the same day Administrator Johnson was asked "why price fixing was eliminated from the revised petroleum code at his recommendation." Mr. Johnson explained that it was impossible to fix prices without controlling production and consumption; but he apparently was not without hope, for he went on to say that when production control is undertaken a maximum price (perhaps indistinguishable from a minimum price) will have to be set to protect the public from extortion. And it also developed on the same day that Mr. Johnson "intends to handle the problem of prices through the planning of self-governing committees that will be established for each industry."

As we have said, it is more or less superfluous to make the point that we are in for more and more price fixing and more and more rationing of production. It has been obvious all along. But it does no harm to stop now and again to see where we have arrived—and also to remember, some of us, the roseate hopes that have attended former essays into price fixing and the dismal ultimate results.

OLD ROCKING HORSE.

Its nostrils were a fiery red,
The paint now dulled with years.
By reins of cobwebs it is led
And drooped its leathern ears.
Its hoofs with travel nicked and worn,
It galloped 'cross the years,
Saddle scarred and stirrups torn,
Its journey's end it nears.
It longs to play again the games,
The race yet in its veins,
It well remembers the boys' names,
It feels the tugging reins.
The spring, the summer comes, the snow,
The leaves come green and fade,
As in lost years when to and fro
Its fearless speed displayed.
The brave young horsemen, where are they,
The rocking horse would know?
The Knights, dismounted, went away,
Time beckoned them to go.
And so the horse in vain shall wait
In the dark attic room;
The days grow long, the hours grow late,
No form comes through the gloom.
No laughter and no golden head,
No little pattering feet,
Some faced the world, some perhaps are dead,
The years run by so fleet.

Clarence Milligan.

WE CAN PAINT NO MORAL FROM THE accompanying tale, so readers may form their own conclusions. It concerns our friend, the Horse Race Player, and our friend, the Banker. The Race Horse Player sometimes loses more than he can afford in improving the breed of thoroughbreds. The Banker grieves for and often admonishes the Horse Race Player. So we give as nearly verbatim as we can remember their last argument, which we were privileged to hear:

Banker—Don't you know you can't save any money playing the races? You are sure to lose. You should provide for your family by a savings account.

Horse Race Player—Oh, yeah? And have the bank close.

Banker—Those are rare happenings, usually due to unsound banking practices.

H. R. P.—Oh, I don't know about that. I did save my money. I even bought a few shares of bank stock for the children. Now they're suing me for double liability or whatever they call it. When I lose two bucks at the racetrack they don't come around afterward and tell me I owe 'em two bucks more for something like your banks do. I'm teaching the children now to play the races so they won't have any money to put in banks.

Banker—You'll never get something for nothing, my son.

Now, the strange part of it is that so many feel like the Horse Race Player instead of like the Banker after their experience of the last three years. They wish they had spent it while they had it, which is quite human, but we're sure it must be unsound economically.

Well, I know where a few of them are at present. One sweet old lady is over in Elinor's Beauty shop having a facial and a henna rinse. She just loves the operators in this shop. They call her "Girlie." Another generous lady of the old times is on the beach in her bathing suit enjoying a smoke. And there's the other old dear attending a lecture on "How to Keep Young." MALARIAL HEMATURIA.

PHYSICIANS who practice in intensely malarial regions are very much interested in a disease known as malarial hematuria. Although far less common than it once was, this malignant form of malaria is still a source of great apprehension to the people and the subject of debate among physicians.

It generally develops between the latter part of October and the first of February, and the people who have it are usually those who remained in the malarial section all summer and autumn and who have suffered several attacks of malaria. For each attack they have taken quinine and calomel. As a rule they have taken enough quinine to break up each attack, but have not continued anti-malarial medication between attacks. After several months of such experiences they develop pernicious malaria, in which there is bloody urine.

Being so clearly malarial in origin, the temptation to give quinine is strong, but long and bitter experience has proved that quinine given to a case of malarial hematuria in the acute stage precipitates an attack of hematuria with a severe destruction of the blood. Between the evident need of quinine and the danger of giving it, the physician has been in great perplexity.

There are some new facts that may help him out of his dilemma. The most important one is that quinine should not be given during the bleeding stage of the disease, however much it appears to be needed. To control temporarily the malarial part of the disorder they use atebrin, and, in some cases, plasmochin compound. After a few days, the hematuria phase having been passed, quinine may be given in full doses. It is safe enough then and is needed.

The patients who are in this hematuria stage are given as much water as their stomachs will contain without nausea. This is supplemented by various kinds of injections of fluids—salt solutions, glucose solutions, and such.

It is not thought that acidosis is present in this stage, and treatment with alkalis for acidosis is not helpful.

It has been observed that cases of hematuria develop about the same place and about the same time. In intensely malarial regions certain neighborhoods have a reputation for hematuria. Physicians of experience know that at about a certain time of the year hematuria may be expected to appear among the residents of those neighborhoods. Observations have proved the correctness of this old notion. Furthermore, the disease has some tendency to spread among the occupants of one house or one collection of houses. There are some peculiarities of the malarial parasite which explain these fairly well known and widely accepted notions.

During the acute attack quinine is not given because of the danger that it may precipitate hematuria. But a few days later it is substituted for atebrin or plasmochin, whichever has been used. Thereafter for several weeks quinine and the other anti-malarial remedies are alternated until the body is rid of the parasites. There should be a follow-up treatment consisting of iron tonics, good food, and protection against infected mosquitoes.

SUNBURN RESULTS.

M. B. writes: About seven years ago I had a severe case of sunburn which broke out in a fine, lumpy rash on my neck, chest, and arms, with an intense burning and itching. Each summer the same rash appeared only when at a resort or in the sun for some time. This summer I cannot walk for one block when this appears. It is most uncomfortable and annoying. Is this an acid condition, a blood disorder, or is there such a thing as sun poisoning?

REPLY.

This is not an acid condition nor a blood disorder. You were sensitized to sunlight seven years ago, and this sensitiveness continues.

GLAND IN NECK.

P. B. writes: I have a swollen gland on my neck. Would it dissolve or disappear, or will I need an operation?

REPLY.

It is an infected lymph gland. If it has already broken down and is filled with pus it may need draining by operation. Exposing the neck to sunshine daily and maintaining a deep sun tan cures most cases that have not already broken down. Is there infection from tonsils or gums, or from the scalp?

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 9, 1917.

WASHINGTON. — By the overwhelming vote of 66 to 7 the senate adopted the conference report on the food control bill. This is the final legislative action on the measure, the most sweeping bill ever enacted by congress. As soon as the President signs the bill he will confer upon Herbert C. Hoover official authority as food administrator, and the latter will set in motion the machinery which he has been organizing.

WASHINGTON.—Evidence has been received by the government tending to establish the fact that the coal market is being manipulated for the benefit of a group of great mine operators. President Wilson is in possession of the evidence, and he is preparing to smash the system. Within a few days the President is expected to serve notice on the operators that they will either put an end to their manipulation methods or be confronted by government control of their properties. If the operators fail to meet the President's demands he will have the power under the food bill to take over the direction of their properties.

WASHINGTON.—More than 200,000 men of the selective draft forces will be called to the colors Sept. 1 to go immediately to their divisional training cantonments. This will bring the strength of the United States army on that date up to practically 1,000,000 men.

WAR SUMMARY.—British in thrust near Nieuport report capture of prisoners. Germans increase artillery activity at Ypres and Dixmude. Petrograd reports Russians on offensive in Chotin region near Galician frontier and claims success farther north in vicinity of Brody. There was a slight increase in the loss of British merchant vessels by submarines or mines during the last week. Twenty-one British vessels of more than 1,600 tons and two vessels of less than 1,600 tons were sunk.

GLOBE, Ariz.—The uprising of striking Indians and Mexicans at the mines of the United States Asbestos company, high up in the Sierra Anchas mountains, fifty miles from here, was successfully quelled by the arrival of seven forest rangers and a number of armed ranchers. All of the Indians were driven from the company property by deputy sheriffs, who arrested two.

MARIETTA, Ga.—During artillery practice by the student officers from Fort McPherson a shell from one of the field pieces missed its target and exploded on the opposite side of Mount Kenesaw, killing Mrs. Seth Harris, a white woman, and two Negroes. Two other Negroes were injured.

A DOCTOR LOOKS AT HIMSELF.

Somewhere, Ill., Aug. 4.—I'm a doctor. In 1930, when most of my poor neighbors were living on cornmeal, I hired two of them (two, mind you) to care for my lawn, about thirty feet long and twenty wide. I hired one poor girl to be stenographer in my office (she broke typewriter, so I have to write this in pen and ink). Here's the reward I get:

All three of the workers want $14.75 a week. None of the people want to pay the doctor bills and won't. My oldest son wants to go to college next fall. I have an income of about $5,000 a year. It takes $2,401 to pay my help, $1,000 to send my boy to college, $250 taxes. That leaves me $1,249 to clothe seven people, send five children to school, pay my office rent, garage rent, and feed seven people, to say nothing of nudist shows and other extras. Now I know good and well educated people just aren't supposed to have a vacation or go to the Fair or the baseball games, and, of course, their children aren't supposed to buy their clothing at the rummage sale or stand in the city bread line.

Well, well. I'm running out of ink, but I see where ma and I will spend our vacation on the county poor farm next season, with bread at 6 cents a loaf. Let's see how you like paying for my keep. DOCTOR.

INTERESTING IF TRUE.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—Prior to Aug. 1, 1933, a certain auto accessory concern worked their salesmen 7 days a week, including Sundays, consisting of three 14 hour days and four 8½ hour days, the latter considered as short days. This was a total of 67½ hours, for which the handsome wage of $12 a week was paid, plus a 3 per cent commission, thus allowing a salesman to earn from $15 to $18 a week.

This concern was one of the first to display the NRA sign. The employé is now granted a 40 hour week, with an $8 salary, and admonished to hustle and earn a commission of $7 to earn his $15 minimum wage. Also, a stipulation was made to come early and stay late, but not to register for more than 40 hours a week on the time card.

FRAYED WHITE COLLAR.

MINIMUM AND MAXIMUM.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—I am very much in favor of NRA. I am sure President Roosevelt is doing all he can to help the unemployed, but some of the business men are not fair. They will not give the beginner or one with little office experience any chance at all, as they expect experienced people to work at the salary quoted in the blanket code.

DOROTHEA MURPHY.

A REPLY TO MR. MATTHEWS.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—I would like the privilege of making a few comments on the editorial by William R. Matthews of the Arizona Star.

Taken at its face value, this editor's argument appears both fair and reasonable, but upon analysis by one acquainted with the facts and theories behind the administration's program it is found to contain several fallacies.

Mr. Matthews seems to have been unable to grasp the idea that it might be sound economy to take from production millions of acres of marginal lands and develop in their stead a choicer but lesser acreage, producing a lesser total crop more efficiently and consequently a higher standard of working and living for the producer. Is it not just a bit nearsighted to raise the unfounded cry that the development of an irrigation project benefits one section of the country at the expense of others when any one with the least knowledge of such development knows that other sections of the country are benefited at least as much as that in which the project is situated through the purchase and transportation of materials and supplies that go into such work? Of course, by the very nature of industry, these benefits, while nationwide, will unfortunately not much benefit desert health resorts such, for instance, as Tucson, Ariz.

But our editor grows even more absurd when he cites the disbanding of the London conference as "another illustration of the incessant conflict of contradictory purposes." The President's avowed purpose as embodied in his promises to the American people was to represent them in his dealings with Europeans as an American, not an internationalist. The fact that his sticking to his promise prevented the stabilization of the currency upon the terms that Europe would have liked is a ridiculous ground upon which to build a structure of blame for the failure of negotiations for which he had held and expressed high hopes.

Does it not seem a little "conflicting" that a man who throws up his hands in horror at the processing tax and a few million spent to make the desert bloom would, by inference at least, be perfectly satisfied to have the American people assume a tax burden a hundred times as great in order to stabilize a currency with which, at best, we do but a negligible part of our total business?

It seems a bit ill-advised that Mr. Matthews felt called upon to echo the ineffective plaint of that great proponent of privilege, Herbert Hoover: Rugged individualism. And isn't Mr. Matthews just a little fearful that the American people by now may have come to realize that the phrase "basically sound economically" means, in plain English, according to the ideas of big business?

CODE DRAWN UP BY PUBLISHERS OF NEWSPAPERS

Safeguards the Freedom of the Press.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8.—(AP)—The nation's newspaper publishers today presented a code of operation to the national recovery administration, offering to accept, with a few amendments, the President's blanket reemployment agreement.

The proposed code, said Howard Davis, president of the American Newspaper Publishers' association, "provides for a shortening of hours, for minimum wages higher than provided in the blanket agreement, for the maintenance of existing contracts, and the reservation of the constitutional right of a free press—which cannot be abridged by the application of a licensing system or the use of injunctions to suppress a newspaper."

Not Seen by Johnson.

Meanwhile, Hugh S. Johnson, the recovery administrator, said at his press conference he had not seen and had not approved the code presented by the publishers.

The administrator added that every time he had seen a previous proposed code presented by the spokesmen for the publishers he had rejected it as unsatisfactory and that he knew nothing about whether the one submitted today remedied the defects to which he objected.

The only formal interpretation of the agreements dealing with the press, made some time ago by the recovery administration, classed newspaper reporters and desk men as professional men exempted from the code.

The proposed agreement, which would go into effect Aug. 31 or sooner if approved by the President, would put the publishers in line with other industries in barring child labor. It would not, however, prevent the use of minors for newspaper delivery when their hours of work would not conflict with school attendance.

Signed By Publishers President.

Coöperating with the American Newspaper Publishers' association in forming the code were members of the Inland Press association, the Southern Newspaper Publishers association, the New England Publishers association, and other organizations of publishers, representing daily newspapers of the United States.

In a letter accompanying the code signed by Howard Davis, president of the American Newspaper Publishers association, he stated that the board of that association, its federal laws committee, and representatives of the other organizations have been in almost continuous session on the problem for more than two weeks past.

"During that period," said Davis, "they have been in constant contact with publishers throughout the country and feel certain that the code herewith submitted will receive almost unanimous support from publishers of daily newspapers."

Press Freedom Essential.

In a statement issued last evening the publishers' committee discussed the matter of freedom of the press and the proposed license system. On this point the statement said:

"Under a government by the people, and above all in times of doubt and distress, no single privilege is as essential to the preservation of free institutions as a free press.

"No press can be free if it may be compelled to operate under a license or be subject to injunction. It does not matter how generous or broad the terms of that license may be, nor with what honesty of purpose and solemnity of promise the intention is declared to leave each newspaper full liberty of expression, the fact remains that on the day on which the press submits to a license it will have abdicated its position and abandoned its trust.

"Once let the principle of licenses be established and a way will be opened that cannot be closed for the revocation of such licenses for the violation of the terms or conditions thereof.'"

Text of Code.

The code was signed for the American Newspaper Publishers association by Davis, as president. Its text follows:

"The association as referred to herein shall mean the American Newspaper Publishers association and all daily and/or Sunday newspapers which sign this code.

"The term 'newspapers' as used herein shall include daily and/or daily and Sunday newspapers.

"The term 'newspaper publishing' as used herein is defined to mean the publishing of newspapers issued daily, and, when such is the case, on Sundays, in the United States.

"The term 'publishers' as used herein shall include individuals, partnerships, associations, and corporations which are actually engaged in the publishing of daily and/or Sunday newspapers.

"Purpose:

"Being in sympathy with the spirit and purpose of the national recovery act, but realizing the constitutional limitations upon the application of various provisions of the act to the press, this association, whose members are engaged in newspaper publishing, desires to present this code to the President, the better to forward the program looking towards the economic and business recovery of the United States, the necessity for which is stated in title 1, section 1 of the act.

The Association.

"The American Newspaper Publishers association is a voluntary membership corporation, not for profit, organized and incorporated under the laws of the state of New York. A copy of its bylaws is hereto attached, marked exhibit A, and asked to be read as a part hereof.

"Membership within the association is open to any publisher who conforms to the requirements of membership therein, but for the purposes of this code, any publisher, who finds it impracticable to become a member of the association, but who subscribes hereto, shall be considered as having accepted his share of responsibility and shall be entitled to the benefits of its provisions.

"This code shall take effect upon approval by the President and shall continue in force until June 15, 1935, unless prior thereto the President shall by proclamation or the congress shall by joint resolution declare that the emergency recognized by section 1 of the act has ended, in either of which event it shall terminate. Obligations of members.

Conditions of Employment.

"Publishers agree:

"[1.] After Aug. 31, 1933, or prior thereto upon approval by the President, not to employ an person under 16 years of age [a] except for the delivery or sale of newspapers where such work does not interfere with hours of day school, and [b] except persons between 14 and 16 years of age for other work between 7 a. m. and 7 p. m., not to exceed three hours per day, in employment in other than mechanical or manufacturing departments.

"[2.] Not to work any accounting, clerical, office service or sales employés [except outside employés] in any office or department for more than 40 hours in any one week, except as provided in existing contracts and agreements.

"[3.] Except as provided in existing contracts and agreements, not to employ any factory or mechanical worker or artisan more than 40 hours per week, but with the right to work a maximum week of 44 hours for any six weeks within any six months' period during the term of this agreement.

Professional Persons Exempted.

"[4.] That the maximum hours fixed in the foregoing paragraphs [2.] and [3.] shall not apply to professional persons employed in their profession; nor to employés employed in a managerial, executive, or supervisory capacity who receive more than $35 per week; nor to special cases where restrictions or hours of highly skilled workers on continuous processes would unavoidably reduce production, but, in any such special case, at least time and one-third shall be paid for hours worked in excess of the maximum, except as provided in existing contracts and agreements.

"However, when necessary, because of an emergency, overtime and extra shifts above the limitations herein set forth shall be permitted, provided that no employé, other than one engaged on emergency maintenance or repair work, shall be permitted to work more than 48 hours in any one week.

[5.] Not to pay any full time employés of the classes mentioned in paragraph [2.] less than $15.00 per week in any city of over 500,000 population or in the immediate trade area of such city; nor less than $14.50 per week in any city of between 250,000 and 500,000 or in the immediate trade area of such city; nor less than $14.00 per week in any city of between 2,500 and 250,000 population or in the immediate trade area of such city; nor less than $12.00 per week in towns of less than 2,500 population.

Adjustment of Wages.

"A full time employé mentioned in paragraph [2.] will receive as much for the shorter day, week, or month, in the event full time is worked, as heretofore. A full time employé mentioned in paragraph [3.], in the absence of contracts or agreements obligating work in excess of 40 hours per week, and whose hours of work are reduced in accordance with this code, will be entitled to receive an hourly rate of pay not less than the hourly rate which prevailed in his community on July 15, 1929, for the same work.

"Population for the purposes of this code shall be determined by reference to the 1930 federal census.

"Further agreement:

"[1.] That employés shall have the right to organize and bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing, and shall be free from the interference, restraint, or coercion of employers of labor, or their agents, in the designation of such representatives or in self-organization or in other concerted activities for the purpose of collective bargaining or other mutual aid or protection;

"[2.] That no employé and no one seeking employment shall be required as a condition of employment to join any company union or to refrain from joining, organizing or assisting a labor organization of his own choosing;

"[3.] That employers shall comply with the maximum hours of labor, minimum rates of pay, and other conditions of employment, approved or prescribed by the President; and

"[4.] That no employé shall be required to join any organization to secure or retain employment or to secure the benefits of this code, and the right of every individual to refrain from joining any organization, and the right of employé and employer to bargain together free from interference by any third party, is hereby recognized.

"It is mutually agreed: That during the term of this code nothing herein contained shall require publishers to adjust, abrogate, violate, or in any way to deviate from the terms and conditions of any contract or agreement now in effect with any employé or group of employés, and where, by the specific terms of such contract or agreement, provision is made for the renewal thereof by agreement or by arbitration, nothing herein contained shall serve to abrogate it.

"It is also mutually agreed that nothing herein contained shall be construed as giving any employé or group of employés the right to abrogate or violate any contract or agreement now in effect with an employer or require an adjustment of the conditions therein provided in any way other than as such adjustment is provided for in such contract or agreement.

"It is further mutually agreed: That it is not the purpose of this code to require the payment of punitive overtime rates and that in any city where there is a sufficiency of competent labor, publishers in the readjustment of their schedules of hours of employment, not subject to existing contracts and agreements, shall be free to readjust such schedules within the maximum hours hereinbefore provided, at rates of pay not less than the minimum so provided, and that no law, rule, regulation, or order of any organization or group of employés shall require a publisher, as a part of this code, to pay punitive rates for services rendered within the maximum hours of work specified.

Exemptions on Maximum Hours.

"Further, that in any city where there is no surplus of labor of any particular class or classes essential to the production of a daily newspaper, the maximum hours specified in paragraphs [2] and [3] shall not apply, and upon due certification to the national recovery administration of the fact that there is no surplus, publishers may employ any employé not to exceed 48 hours in any one week at pro rata rates of pay, based on the maximum hours specified in paragraphs [2] and [3].

"Nothing in the adoption and acceptance of this code shall be construed as waiving, abrogating, or modifying any rights secured under the constitution of the United States or of any state, or limiting the freedom of the press.

"It is mutually understood that because of the limitations of the first amendment to the constitution of the United States nothing in this code shall be construed as authorizing the licensing of publishers and/or newspapers or as permitting injunction proceedings which would restrain the publication of newspapers."

TWO STATES CLASH OVER EASY MONEY FOR PUBLIC WORKS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—Uncle Sam's announcement that he will spend $22,700,000 of the easy money public works fund reclaiming arid land in Wyoming today sent three sovereign states into a pitched battle over which one is to reap the richest benefits from the government's expenditures.

At a special hearing before the public works advisory board high officials of Wyoming battled jealously with high officials of Colorado over water rights in the Casper-Alcova reclamation project in the North Platte river. High officials of Nebraska sat by to see that their state's interests were not forgotten.

NRA HEADS FACE STORMY SESSION ON COAL TODAY

Dispute Over Open Shop Still Flares.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—Old King Coal, once the proudest of industrial potentates, now weak and tottering, stricken low after years of struggle, will be examined tomorrow by the new industrial specialists of the government.

The doctors are faced with a difficult time of it, for from all parts of the realm of coal have come 27 various ideas of what ought to be done for the old industry.

When Hugh S. Johnson, national recovery administrator, and his imposing staff of deputies, lawyers, professors, advisers for labor, industry and consumers, statisticians and other experts assemble tomorrow morning to open the public hearings on 27 coal codes which have been submitted they will find historic enemies, still bitter, in the hearing room.

Open Shop Dispute Unquenched.

There has been no passing of olive branches among the union and the open shop coal operators. The miners and their union spokesmen are still fighting for recognition and organization which the open shop operators are still refusing to give.

And in the background are the new monarchs — oil and gas and water power—each ready to take advantage of the quarreling among the ministers and vassals of Old King Coal and reaching for more and more ground from that which once was exclusively the realm of coal.

Gen. Johnson today was far from predicting a successful outcome. He said he "hoped" it would be possible to get the warring factions of the coal industry into enough harmony so that a reasonable set of codes may be approved.

Battle for Recognition.

But the open shop operators are insisting that they will not deal with the United Mine Workers' union. And the shaggy headed John L. Lewis, president of the miners' union, stalks grimly around the NRA headquarters declaring that he intends to battle for recognition which, he says, is guaranteed in the industrial recovery act.

Lewis' organization was on its last legs, it is freely admitted, when the NRA gave him renewed hope and for weeks he has had his agents drumming around the coal regions signing up thousands of miners on the promise that their long awaited day of recognition and of forcing the operators to give them short hours and high pay has dawned.

Some of the nonunion operators are arguing that it was Lewis and his insistence on maintaining high wages set in the so-called Jacksonville agreement which has brought the industry to its downfall, with high costs driving the users of coal to take oil and gas instead.

27 Varying Codes.

The 27 codes present price fixing agreements, any number of variant wage scales and a similar number of widely divergent scales of working hours. The union operators have set their wages higher and their hours shorter than the nonunion operators, and immediately the argument has arisen that the union coal mined in Illinois, Pennsylvania, Indiana, and some in West Virginia cannot compete with coal mined at cheaper costs in Alabama and other states in the south using cheap labor.

Coursing through the codes are pleas for curtailment of production. Operators faced with heavy capital costs, mostly exorbitant federal and state taxes, have run their mines and sold coal below cost in order to reduce the heavy overhead losses. This form of competition has demoralized the industry, it is argued, and the codes seek to prevent it.

Thus are the battles to be waged in the coal hearings, and the object of them, as stated today by Gen. Johnson, is to find jobs for 150,000 miners out of work. In 1929, 505,000 miners produced 534 million tons of bituminous coal. In 1932, 349,000 miners brought only 305 million tons from the earth.

Potential Capacity Double.

The existing mine facilities, it is explained, could produce more than twice those 305 millions, but unless a big pickup in general industry and business develops in the coming fall and winter there will be no need for any more coal. The operators fear that if wages are raised too high coal will cost so much that oil and gas will reach in to take still more tonnage away.

Among those scheduled as the witnesses for tomorrow are J. D. A. Morrow, president of the Pittsburgh Coal company, and J. D. Francis, vice president of the Island Creek Coal company, both of whom are nonunion operators; Mr. Lewis, and Courtney Dinwiddie of the national child labor commission.

Modification Board Named.

Creation of a "policy" board to decide on applications for modifications from the President's reëmployment agreement was announced today by the NRA publicity staff. The board consists of Robert T. Stevens, chairman, and representative of Gen. Johnson; W. E. Leiserson, labor representative; Edward R. Stettinius Jr., industrial representative; Robert K. Straus, secretary of the board and liaison officer with the industrial mediation board, and Kilbourne Johnston, legal advisor.

The board, in addition to passing upon petitions of industries and corporations seeking exemptions from the terms of the blanket code, will also, from time to time, issue "interpretations" of the code for the guidance of employers.

DIES OF CRASH HURTS.

Charleston, Ill., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—Frank Newell, 40, of Charleston died today of a skull fracture, received when he and thirteen persons figured in an automobile collision here Monday night.

MINERS' CHIEFS IN STRIKE AREA VOTE FOR PEACE

Plea of Roosevelt Wins Their Support.

Uniontown, Pa., Aug. 8.—(AP)—An appeal from President Roosevelt, carried to the heart of the turbulent strike area, today swung western Pennsylvania's soft coal workers into the back to the mines movement.

Stirred to enthusiasm as Edward F. McGrady, labor adviser of the NRA, delivered the President's message, more than 100 leaders of union locals decided by unanimous rising vote to return to work. The miners have been on strike for two weeks to get recognition of the United Mine Workers of America.

Union Leaders Hopeful.

The union leaders, representing district No. 4, in which is located Fayette county, scene of violence in which one striker was killed and more than a score wounded, expressed the belief that work would be resumed tomorrow.

Under the leadership of Martin Ryan, president of local No. 3 in that district, those chiefs previously refused to accept the truce arranged by President Roosevelt, Gov. Gifford Pinchot, United Mine Workers' national leaders, and the operators.

McGrady, who had flown to Uniontown from Washington, told those leaders:

"I am here, acting for the President of the United States, and asking you to go back to work."

President's Name Cheered.

Prolonged cheers greeted the President's name—cheers that grew in volume as McGrady asserted:

"We propose to see that the agreement which was entered into between your organization, the operators, and the President is carried out.'

"I pledge you that any grievances that may arise will be handled promptly and that we will appoint a committee to rectify any wrongs."

McGrady pointed out that today's meeting was a forerunner to the hearings on the bituminous coal code which begin tomorrow in Washington.

"This [the coal code hearing] is the first time in the history of the nation," McGrady added, "that the operators have agreed to talk in the open about raising your wages and shortening your working hours."

Ryan Urges Return.

"When a man comes to you like this man [McGrady] did, direct from the President, and brings assurance that there is some one to whom we can quickly appeal in cases of wrong, I believe there is only one thing that could be done and that is vote to go back to work."

"LET'S GO FOR A RIDE IN The Style Leader"

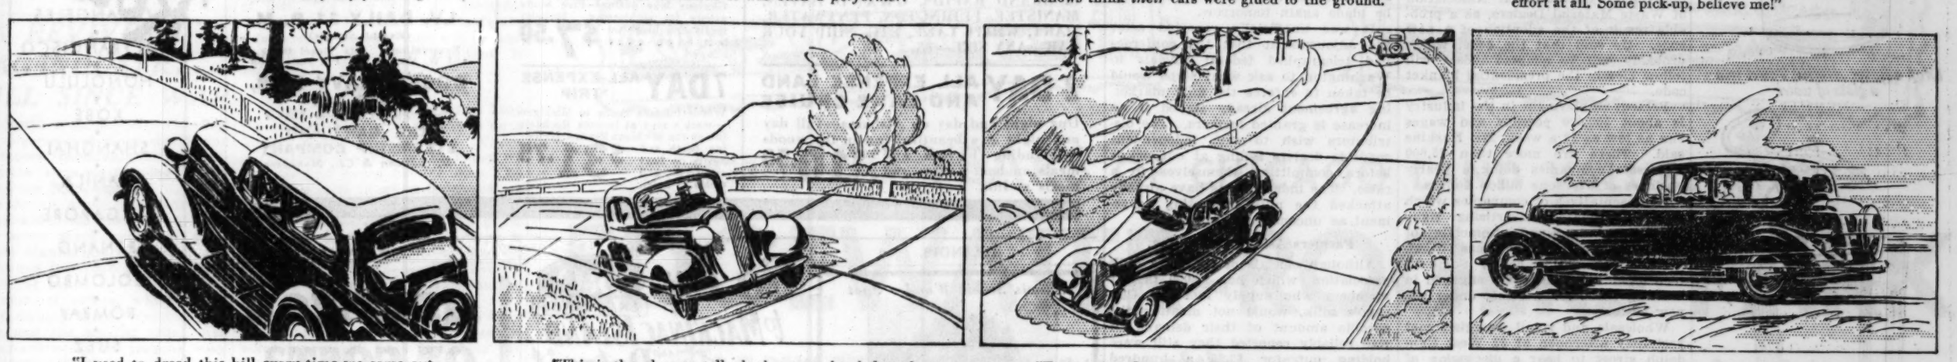
"Well—you don't have to urge me to go for a spin since we got the new Oldsmobile. For the first time in my life, I've found a car that I really enjoy driving."

"I really bought this car because of its advanced style. I thought it would stay modern for a longer time. I never dreamed it was such a performer."

"Did you see how easily we got out in front of those cars? I didn't try at all, or I could have made those fellows think their cars were glued to the ground."

"Here's what gives me a kick! You see an opening in the traffic line, and you cut into it without any effort at all. Some pick-up, believe me!"



"I used to dread this hill every time we came out this way! But this car just floats up without even so much as an extra push on the accelerator!"

"This is the place to tell whether a car has balance! I'm taking this curve at better than 60 miles an hour, and there's no pull on the steering wheel at all."

"Even going down hill at a fast clip, I still know that I have this car under perfect control. It's a great sensation to feel that way about your automobile."

"Say—we've passed eighty, and there isn't any whip or weave at all! I believe I could drive this fast all day without any extra strain on my nerves."

"Well, I bet that fellow wondered what passed him! I could tell from the look in his eye that he had his throttle right down against the floor!"

"I didn't see that sign until it was too late—but a rough road doesn't seem to make any difference. I never saw a car so comfortable on the rough going."

"Those brakes certainly take hold! I could have stopped in half that distance if I had tried. And it takes only the very lightest pressure on the pedal, too."

"What ho! A rain! So here's where we make another test of the Fisher Ventilating System. Well, it works! No rain is getting in—yet, plenty of fresh air!"

"Rain's over! Now adjust those ventilators to scoop in the air—and let's take advantage of the nice fresh atmosphere. That certainly is an improvement."

"Notice how people stare at us? Well, that's why I bought an Oldsmobile. I used to see Oldsmobiles on the street, and I just couldn't forget how smart they were."

"Here comes another Oldsmobile! I wonder if we look as smart in this car as they do in that one. Well, if we do, I know why everybody is taking a look at us!"

"So—here we are, back home. In the past, I'd have been tickled to death to be home. But, with this car, I wish we were just starting. I'm an Oldsmobile fan!"

Now—that you've read yourself a ride—come in and enjoy the thrill of an actual trip—at the wheel of an Oldsmobile Six or Eight! Hundreds have said that Oldsmobile performance is the finest they have ever experienced in any car—regardless of cost. We just know you'd enjoy driving an Oldsmobile, for these cars are really different—not only in what they are but in what they do, as well. Come in today. We have a car waiting for you.

How do you judge a car's performance?

An amazing book — "How to Test the Performance of a Motor Car" — has been written by the testing engineers at the General Motors Proving Ground. 500,000 CHICAGO WORKERS PLACED UNDER NRA CODE Expect Many More Signers in Next Few Days.

More than 500,000 Chicago employés were working under the reëmployment code yesterday, as 950 more local business houses signed the President's national recovery act code. To date 12,601 Chicago companies, employing 507,181 workers, have signed the code agreement.

In the states of Illinois, Wisconsin, and Iowa a total of 100,514 business concerns have joined the reëmployment drive. Yesterday 8,452 concerns from the three states, including Chicago, sent in their acceptances, according to a statement from F. L. Roberts, district manager of the department of commerce.

With Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator at Washington, warning business concerns of the nation that the deadline for voluntary acceptances is near, the tide of agreements received in this area is expected to swell in the next few days. There are still thousands of companies with hundreds of thousands of employés in Chicago who have not yet proclaimed their willingness to abide by the new standard.

Continues Work on Codes.

Many industrial groups continued their labors on codes, many finding stumbling blocks in coming to an agreement on wages, working hours, competitive regulations, and other phases of the new standard. Most of the representatives agreed, however, that their industries will reap benefits from the working out of the plan, especially in the elimination of unfair trade practices.

Seven men, members of a code committee representing the entire grocery distributing industry, including independent grocers and chain store systems, continued a battle in which one group interested in outlawing premiums and advertising allowances opposed another, which favors such practices.

The employment of 100,000 extra workers and increases in wages in the waste material industry were predicted by Charles M. Haskins, managing director of the National Association of Waste Material Dealers, as a probable result of the adoption of a new code. He said that the code, which probably will be adopted today, will follow closely the presidential blanket code.

Present employment in the industry is about 500,000 persons and wages run as low as $8 a week, Mr. Haskins said. There are more than 25,000 wholesale companies doing a yearly business of over one billion dollars.

Representatives of companies which make illuminated advertising signs for store windows and automobile hot water heater manufacturers began yesterday to consider codes. Some fifteen other industries were engaged in drafting plans for working under the new system.

Wholesale and retail druggists met yesterday afternoon at 32 West Randolph street to hear a discussion of the presidential code by a number of speakers. Virtually the entire drug industry of Chicago was represented.

Merchants and department store officials from all parts of the country attending the convention of the Interstate Merchants' council were advised actively to support the NRA campaign. Arthur Brayton, editor of the Dry Goods Merchants Trade Journal, speaking at a luncheon in the Hotel Sherman, declared that merchants could not fail to profit from the drive.

Urges Merchants' Coöperation.

"Coöperation with the NRA administration on a rising market offers more hope for the merchant in the near future than for some years," he said. "I believe Gen. Johnson and President Roosevelt have the right idea and our best bet is to help them."

He pointed out that figures recently compiled showed that 90 per cent of all departments in stores had shown a loss last year and that those departments which had shown a profit were the ones where some appeal other than the "fatal" one of price had been made.

Carson Pirie Scott & Co. yesterday opened its new Dorna Gordon Frock plant in the wholesale building of the store at Adams street and the Chicago river. The new plant is in two sections, each of them a block long and will operate some 500 machines, apart from the cutting rooms.

President I. J. Rueter of the Buick-Olds-Pontiac Sales company announced yesterday that all salaries in the organization had been raised 10 per cent, effective Aug. 1.

YOUTH DIES OF INJURIES.

Canton, Ill., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—Tex Mercer, 18, a resident of Spring Green, Wis., died here today from injuries resulting from a collision of his motorcycle with an auto driven by C. E. Glass, Peoria.

FARMERS FIRE FROM AMBUSH ON TROOPER TRUCK GUARDIANS

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—State troopers guarding milk trucks were fired upon tonight near Little Falls, N. Y., by farmers hiding in ambush. At least a dozen bullets were sent at the trucks. Two troopers said some of the bullets whizzed within six inches of their heads.

The troopers returned the fire, letting loose a volley of perhaps 300 shots, but aimed them low in the underbrush. After the skirmish no trace could be found of the farmers in ambush and it was assumed no one was hit.

Earlier in the day came reports of other clashes in several counties between striking milk farmers and state troopers. At New Berlin troopers turned tear gas on 100 strikers who had hurled stones at the police. Six farmer guards were injured.

The strike spread in some counties, although farmers themselves organized resistance at Chittanango. The nonstrikers fought with their fists against strikers who had dumped milk from a dozen trucks. Pickets, however, drove off the nonstrikers.

Ample milk was available in most cities and towns, but Amsterdam went milkless. In Schenectady plans were afoot to establish a city pasteurization plant. Striking farmers agreed to deliver and donate sufficient milk for babies and hospitals.

Meanwhile Gov. Herbert Lehman continued to hesitate to call out the National Guard. He did, however, confer with Maj. William N. Haskell, commander of the guard, and gathered data on available troops in case they became necessary.

MILK MEETING DEADLOCKED ON PRICE INCREASE

Farmers Tell Need of Higher Return.

Representatives of the large Chicago dairies and the Pure Milk association, farmers' bargaining agency, adjourned last night after two days of conference in the Hotel La Salle on a proposed increase in milk prices. The conferees were still deadlocked and it was indicated that an effort to find a satisfactory compromise would be made again tomorrow.

It was unofficially reported after the adjournment that the conferees had telegraphed federal officials in Washington to ask what steps would be taken to enforce the milk marketing agreement already signed if an increase is granted farmers. The distributors wish to curb independent roadside dealers selling at cut prices before committing themselves to a raise. The independents have already attacked the milk marketing agreement as unconstitutional.

Farmers Ask 50 Cent Raise.

Although officials of the Pure Milk association, which has 18,000 farmer members who supply most of Chicago's milk, would not mention the specific amount of their demand, it was reliably reported they still were holding out for $2.25 a hundred pounds of raw milk instead of the present $1.75. The last figure is the amount now being paid for milk finally sold in bottles to consumers at 10 cents a quart.

An increase in the farmers' return, of 50 cents a hundred pounds, would be approximately 1 cent a quart and it is proposed that this amount be added to the consumer price, making it 11 cents a quart.

Many of the farmers' representatives at the conference declared that crop conditions this year made an increased milk price imperative. Storms, drought, chinch bugs, and now a plague of grubs, they said, have wrought havoc in their fields.

"Feed crops are so poor in my vicinity," said Leo Mulloley of Janesville, Wis., "that one-third of our farmers have been unable to pay their taxes."

Tells of Grub Damage.

Howard Klett of Elmwood, Will county, told of damage now being done by grubs, which he said are cutting down much corn in Will, Kendall, Kanes, and Du Page counties. Charles Schmaling of Delavan, Wis., asserted that the hay crop was short in his vicinity and the corn crop only 40 per cent of normal.

"Farmers who usually put in enough feed to last through the winter will be without any after Jan. 1 and will have to buy supplies after that if they continue to produce milk," said H. A. Pfister of Lake county, president of the Pure Milk association.

SLAYER OF MILKMAN HELD.

Joseph Francis, 31 years old, a Negro, was held to the grand jury by a coroner's jury yesterday for the murder of Joseph Hartel, 3423 North Irving avenue, a milkman, in a holdup at Forrestville avenue and 55th street. Francis has confessed the shooting.

BUYERS' GROUPS WILL HELP U. S. ENFORCE CODES

Labor Unions Are Part of Volunteer System.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8.—(AP)—The blanketing within the next two weeks of millions of wage earners under temporary codes to raise their wages and curtail working hours was envisioned tonight by Hugh S. Johnson as a major thrust toward increased purchasing power. Housewives and wage earners over the entire country are being organized for house to house and store to store canvasses to insure against infractions of codes and to prevail on buyers to patronize only blue eagle businesses.

To Provide Enforcers.

Miss Mary Hughes, director of the women's section of the emergency reemployment campaign, announced completion of an organization in 48 states to carry on the educational and "policing" work.

In addition to that the weapon of publishing names is to be the first swung against violators of the codes and agreements. In relation to that, Mrs. Hugh S. Johnson has been named chairman of the complaint committee of the consumers' advisory board headed by Mrs. Mary Rumsey. Along a similar line, that board will give warnings that, if unheeded, will lead to publication of names.

President William Green of the American Federation of Labor said he would ask all state and city federations to aid in supervising operation of the codes.

Meanwhile Mr. Johnson said the federal government probably would not buy products in the future from industries that won't live up to the code, asserting "it would be a curious thing if it did."

If once removed, Gen. Johnson said, the blue eagle never would return to the same store front.

Approves Beauty Code.

Mr. Johnson has approved the modified agreement for the barber and beauty shop industry that provides a 48 hour week for all operators and 40 hours for clerical help. No minimum wage was fixed, this being left for determination at hearings on the permanent code.

In addition, barbers and beauticians would be permitted to finish work on customers arriving just before closing time, without receiving overtime or the extra time being counted in the weekly average.

Hours of shop operation would not be reduced below 52 in any week unless such hours were less than 52 before July 1, in which case the owner would agree not to reduce the operating hours at all.

For the lithographic industry as approved by Mr. Johnson, the maximum work week will be five eight hour days, with restrictions on overtime for employés performing mechanical operations to not more than eight hours in one week.

For the mechanical forces, a minimum wage of 40 cents an hour for men and 30 cents for women was provided, with the scale for clerical help the same as fixed in the President's blanket agreement.

The agreements for the saw and steel products and the cooper and brass mill industries were similar, providing a 40 hour maximum work week, with a minimum wage of 35 cents for men in processing departments and 30 cents for women.

Some Further Action.

Among the day's incidents affecting industrial codes were:

Mr. Johnson asserted an agreement had been worked out for separating the automobile industry from the accessory and tire industries and that a hearing on the code submitted by the auto manufacturers probably would be set within the next two weeks. He had not yet heard from Henry Ford on the code.

The new national labor board held its first formal meeting; telegraphed to Mayor Walmsley of New Orleans that it was moving in at once in the Belt Bridge controversy there.

The NRA will import from Broadway its industrial advisers for the hearing on a code of fair competition for the legitimate theater industry. Heywood Broun, and Joseph Wood Crutch will represent the theater goers.

At New York 150 representatives of the motion picture industry created a committee to draft an NRA code. Work was started at once. Sol A. Rosenblatt of the NRA advocating 24 hour sessions, if necessary.

ROOSEVELT GOES OVER ECONOMIC FIELD WITH AIDS

Budget, Inflation, Dollar, and Taxes Discussed.

BY JOHN HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—At a four cornered discussion at the summer White House today the President and three members of his brain trust reviewed what was described as the "whole economic situation, here and abroad."

Significantly and specifically it was explained that the discussion did not portend stabilization of international exchange or a domestic program of inflation.

The three who came to Hyde Park to lunch with President Roosevelt and talk with him concerning matters economic and financial were James Warburg, one of the fiscal experts for the American delegation at the London conference, and Professors George F. Warren of Cornell university and James H. Rogers of Yale university.

Report on Studies.

The two professors brought to the President a report on the studies they have been conducting for him, including the budget, taxation, the tariffs, and particularly the possibility of adopting a dollar which would be geared to the commodity price index, rising and falling in value with the values of wholesale commodities.

The so-called commodity dollar, it was said, did come in for discussion. President Roosevelt has on several occasions stressed the advantage of obtaining a dollar which would at all times possess the same value in terms of the goods its owner must buy.

Emphasis was lent to today's conference by the fact that Secretary of the Treasury Woodin is to visit Hyde Park tomorrow. There are among those close to the President here no rumors concerning Mr. Woodin's resignation such as sprang up in Washington following the disclosure of his name on Morgan & Co.'s "preferred lists."

Anxious to Keep Woodin.

The secretary has been ill of a throat infection for several weeks and his visit tomorrow will be one of his first journeys away from his home. The President is anxious to keep Mr. Woodin in his cabinet is the word here.

While talk of inflation persists, today's announcement that inflation was not seriously considered is held to be another indication that the President is satisfied to hold in leash for the time being the inflationary power he possesses under the Thomas amendment. The explanation seems to be that he believes the price level is temporarily high enough. Eventually, if the President's purpose of building prices up to the le l of credit and debt is to be attained, prices must go higher. But, until the national recovery and farm adjustment acts have had a chance to do what they can, the President's inflationary authority is likely to be held in obeyance.

BROOKHART SEES SOVIET CREDIT "BEST IN WORLD"

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8.—(AP)—Describing soviet credit as "the best in the world," former Senator Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa, trade adviser, today predicted early developments in a program for renewing Russian-United States relations on a large scale.

He said extension of United States credit was essential in developing trade with the soviet. He expects government action relating to this within possibly a few weeks.

Brookhart has had numerous conferences with the directors of the Reconstruction corporation, which recently loaned $4,000,000 to the Amtorg Trading corporation, Russia's commercial group in this country. Russia wants credit on a 7 year basis and Brookhart says the Reconstruction corporation considers a further loan; also that there is a possibility that part of 200 million dollars available to farm administrators may be used to stimulate surplus agricultural exports to Russia. This decision would be up to Secretary Wallace.

Brookhart said Russia could use 2,000,000 bales of American cotton annually and quantities of live stock products, including beef and lard. It is, he says, a vast potential market for American industrial goods.

Brookhart called attention to the recent statement at the London economic conference of Foreign Minister Litvinoff that Russia was ready to buy up to one billion dollars in foreign goods and raw materials, providing credit were extended.

"We should get our share of that," Brookhart said. "We can afford to extend credit to Russia because there is no better credit risk. We have an abundance of goods it needs.

YOUTHFUL AMERICA ASKED BY FARLEY TO AID RECOVERY PLAN

New York, Aug. 8.—(AP)—Youthful America, regardless of party, was asked tonight by Postmaster General Farley to line up behind President Roosevelt's recovery effort.

"No attempt is being made to set up a supergovernment over business or industry," Farley said in an address, "but simply to give them the opportunity to govern themselves under the principles and purposes of the recovery program.

"As a matter of fact, the national recovery act is a new declaration of independence for business to manage its own affairs under ethical codes, to promote social justice between employer and employé, and to open up new fields for initiative and efficiency.

"There are two points about the crusade to make these plans effective. The first is that there are no politics in this movement. There is no desire for either a party or a partisan advantage. Humanity and justice and patriotism knows no party, race, or creed. This is a national movement."

The second point, Farley said, was publicity, so that every one would understand the program.

PAIR INDICTED FOR MILLBROOK BANK ROBBERY

Harold Witt, 30 years old, one of the trio of bank bandits who sought to evade identification by burning their finger tips, thus preventing the taking of fingerprints, was indicted yesterday by the Kendall county grand jury on a charge of robbery of the Farmers' bank at Millbrook, Ill.

Indicted with Witt was an unidentified man who has given the name of Joe Jed. Witt was identified by his fingerprints because the skin tissues on his finger tips had not completely been destroyed, but Jedd, believed to be, like Witt, an escaped convict facing life imprisonment, has not yet been identified, his finger lines having been completely erased.

The trial will be held in the October term of court at Yorkville. A third member of the bandit gang, Guy Ilis, was slain.

NRA REVIVES FLAG INDUSTRY, DULL SINCE WAR

New York, Aug. 8.—(AP)—The flag industry, somnolent since world war guns stopped booming, has reawakened to the vigorous flapping of the wings of the NRA eagle.

Louis Annin Ames, president of a company which did business on Fifth avenue when there were still some farms on Manhattan, said today the industry had increased its sales from 20 to 40 per cent.

The rush of orders, which Ames said are coming largely from towns, hamlets and the smaller cities, has kept approximately 600 persons busy in one factory alone.

H. Anderson of East Moline returns from a vacation, it was indicated by a source close to Gov. Henry Horner today.

ALLIS-CHALMERS AND CANNON IN ROW OVER CODE

Congressman Asks U. S. Intervention.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—Lines tightened tonight for Milwaukee's first battle over recovery code principles, with Congressman Raymond J. Cannon and the Allis-Chalmers company, one of the city's largest industries, intrenched for the fray.

Representative Cannon tonight called on Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, to take immediate action in what he terms a violation of the code by the Allis-Chalmers company. He cited the "staggering" of hours of work plan employed at the company's big plants in West Allis and asked for federal intervention.

Max W. Babb, president of the company, declared Cannon's message to Johnson gives the wrong impression; called his intervention unfair, and defended the system which Cannon compains of.

Text of Message.

This is the text of the Cannon telegram:

"Hugh S. Johnson, NRA Administrator, Washington.

"Employés of Allis-Chalmers company of Milwaukee advise that the company will force employés to vote Thursday morning on proposition of staggered hours instead of 35 hour week under code. Employés are in favor of 35 hour week. Company threatens if employés adopt 35 hour week about 60 per cent of employés will be laid off. Is this not essentially violation of recovery act? Believe this situation calls for immediate action on your part to stop this vote.

"RAYMOND J. CANNON,
"Milwaukee."

Mr. Babb explained tonight that his company has been "staggering hours" for some time in an effort to spread the work among the greatest number of men. In this way, he declared, the company has been able to retain a far greater number than will be possible if the 35 hour standard is adopted.

Code Submitted to Men.

"There isn't sufficient work to keep the present number of employés on a 35-hour week," he explained. "Under our system of splitting the hours we average 27.2 hours for the men. So when this code situation developed we submitted the matter to the men themselves. I understand they are going to vote on it Thursday, but there is absolutely no compulsion or coercion by the company. The workers' council has the matter under advisement at the request of the company.

"This much is sure, and the men understand it: If the 35-hour week is voted in we will have to reduce the force, for we haven't the work to keep that many men employed. It is up to the council of workers to make their own choice.

"There is no bitterness, no force being exerted. I sincerely believe the men will vote to keep the staggering hours plan in effect, for after all a little work, a little income for any man is better than none at all."

The Allis-Chalmers company, Mr. Babb declared, has noted a slight improvement in some of its lines. The company manufactures industrial and farm machinery and heavy mechanical equipment.

THIEVES PRIZE WAY INTO WAUKESHA, WIS., BANK, STEAL $2,000

Waukesha, Wis., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—Two armed men today escaped with $2,000 obtained in a robbery of the First State Bank of Waukesha.

Their manner of operation was unusual. They broke into the bank by prizing open a steel trap door in the sidewalk. Then, as the employés arrived for work this morning, they were seized one by one and locked in a basement room.

Charles Begley, cashier, was the last to report for work. The bandits were hidden when he entered and he opened the safe at once, unaware of their presence. Having taken the $2,000 and thrusting him into the room with the other bank workers, the men departed in a leisurely manner. George Dwinnell, president of the institution, saw them strolling away as he neared the front door, but supposed they were customers disappointed at finding the doors locked.

POLITICAL FOES RIOT IN DUBLIN; HEADS CRACKED

BY HUGH CURRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Aug. 8.—Central Dublin was the scene of wild rioting tonight when a dance being given by Gen. Owen O'Duffy's newly organized national guard, known as the blue shirts, was raided by a mob of political opponents. The blue shirts are opposed to the régime of President de Valera.

The trouble began when the mob began stoning and hooting persons arriving at the Metropole hotel, where the dance was being held. Police reserves were summoned and surrounded the hotel. The angry crowd tried to break through the police lines and were met by swinging batons.

Cosgrave is Stoned.

At this point Gen. Cronin, secretary of the national guard, appeared in the doorway of the hotel wearing his blue shirt. A howl went up from the crowd, which surged toward the entrance. A fierce scrimmage ensued in the streets surrounding the hotel, with the police swinging their clubs and the screaming mob, which included many women, hurling rocks and other missiles. Many heads were cracked.

Among the prominent persons stoned upon their arrival at the hotel was former President William T. Cosgrave. The windshield of his automobile was shattered and his chauffeur struck by a rock. Former Gov. Gen. James McNeill was also booed upon his arrival.

O'Duffy Defies Government.

Fears were expressed that tonight's occurrence was the forerunner of more serious trouble Sunday, when the national guard is scheduled to hold a parade, which the government has forbidden.

Gen. O'Duffy tonight announced that he intends to proceed with Sunday's arrangements in defiance of the government. He demanded that the government protect the paraders from interference "by communists and their supporters."

He added that the present Irish parliamentary system is "un-Irish" and detrimental to the interests of peace and that the people were ready to change the system. Party politics have served their period of usefulness, he said.

Lieut. Col. F. A. Ruggles Is Promoted to Colonel

The promotion to colonel of Lieut. Col. Francis A. Ruggles, assistant chief of staff in charge of training in the 6th corps area, was announced yesterday by Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, corps area commander. Col. Ruggles will continue in his present duties in Chicago. Col. Ruggles entered the army from civil life in 1901, served in Philippine campaign under Gen. Pershing, then a captain, and during the world war rose to the wartime rank of colonel, commanding the 7th field artillery in France.

Bathing

EDGEWATER

Where the property runs for a mile and a half along the lake front and all of it within a block or a half block of the water's edge.

It's just one of the features worth thinking about in choosing the home. There are a score of other reasons. One's the Electric Elevated Road, that's nearly completed now. Let us send you our album of views—pictures of Edgewater houses that were built to suit the buyers—on easy terms.

After Business Hours

It's different; the city isn't quite the place to spend the remaining two-thirds of a man's life. A good many of Chicago's business men live in

EDGEWATER

It takes them 23 minutes by the train from Union depot, or 40 minutes from the court house by the Clark street cars. The soon-to-be-finished Electric Elevated will be quicker still. When they get there they're in the midst of the best roads, best scenery, best surroundings of any suburb of Chicago, and without the disagreeable features that cause the other "home spots" to fall short of perfection.

Write us for an album of views—it will show you how you can own a delightful home, built to suit yourself, on easy terms. Write for the views anyway—they'll interest you.

EDGEWATER 7 MILES IN CHICAGO

1833 · 100 YEARS OF CHICAGO LAND VALUES · 1933

EDGEWATER-ROGERS PARK

To a new arrival from the environs of the star Arcturus, inexperienced in Earth's cycle of seasons, the coming of winter might seem the beginning of an endless glacial epoch.

Similarly, a major depression in real estate tests the morale of those who have not experienced one or more complete cycles of recession and recovery. But a study of the ups and downs of Chicago land values shows that since 1833, "winter" and "summer" have followed each other five times.

•

The first rise of Chicago land values occurred between 1833 and 1836. Then came a "winter" of recession which lasted until 1842. The next period of growth extended over fifteen years and multiplied Chicago's aggregate land value from $1,400,000 to $125,000,000, or 90 times. . . . After a second financial "winter" during the years 1857-1861, values advanced for twelve years, and multiplied ten-fold. . . . The depression of 1873-1879 was long and bleak, but after it land values "blossomed" for thirteen years and grew to six times their previous low. . . . When Chicago real estate began to "thaw" after the "blizzard" of 1893-1897, renewed growth went on with no great recession for thirty years, and values rose from one billion dollars in 1897 to five billions in 1928.

•

A study of the Edgewater-Rogers Park section shows that land values in this area made their first advances much later than in other parts of Chicago, but advanced rapidly in recent years and have shown unusual stability. Three of the five major cycles in Chicago land values are clearly reflected in the table, which gives averages for the tract of 500 acres bounded by Devon, Howard, Ashland and Lake Michigan.

DATE	PER ACRE	FRONT FT.
1833	$1.25	$0.005
1841	1.25	0.005
1856	150.00	0.62
1861	60.00	0.25
1873	1,000.00	4.00
1879	400.00	1.67
1892	2,000.00	8.00
1900	3,000.00	12.00
1910	17,000.00	70.00
1926	170,000.00	700.00
1933	72,000.00	300.00

Values and statistics from the study by Homer Hoyt. The complete study, "100 Years of Chicago Land Values," is to be published shortly in book form under the sponsorship of the Chicago Title & Trust Company.

On February 6, 1841, Philip Rogers, who gave Rogers Park its name, secured his first patent for "fractional section 31 north of Indian boundary line, T. 41 N, R. 14 E." The land consisted of 26.07 acres, at the Government price of $1.25 an acre.

The C. & N. W. Ry. reached Rogers Park in 1854, and by 1856 land had advanced to $150 an acre. It fell in 1861 to $60, but rose to $1,000 an acre or $4 a front foot in 1873, after Rogers' son-in-law, Patrick Touhy, had platted the village of Rogers Park in 1870 and built a fine house.

By 1879, the average value had again fallen to $400 an acre, and in 1884, Rogers Park was still a village of 400 people. Though little influenced by the World's Fair, by 1892 land in this area had doubled the peak of 1873. Yielding but little in the recession of 1893, and influenced by the coming of rapid transit, with such glowing advertisements as those pictured above, real estate changed hands in 1900 at prices averaging $12 a front foot.

Then came the "Northwestern Elevated"—and average values in the area shown rose from $12 a front foot in 1900 to $70 in 1910 and $700 a front foot in 1926. Even in the recent recession averages still stand far above all previous marks except the last peak.

So the study of land values on the North Side, as throughout Chicago and for its entire hundred years, shows that these values have always come back. Again and again they have withstood the shock of panic, war and fire. After each recession they have recovered and advanced to higher, more profitable investment levels. Conservatively valued and well purchased, land in Chicago has proved itself one of the best known forms of investment.

5 WOMEN MOURN A BIGAMIST WHO KILLED HIMSELF

Two Fiancees and Three Wives at Inquest.

Forty women gathered at a county morgue inquest yesterday to hear three wives and two sweethearts of Julius Straub, 62 year old bigamist, say that he was a "perfect man" who always stayed home evenings. Straub, who enlivened his bigamy by marrying several of his wives under an anagram of his real name, shot himself to death last Friday when the two sweethearts and one of his wives came together in his home at 6342 Newport avenue.

Mingling sighs and tears, the five women testified at the inquest that Straub had continually demanded money from his women folk. When it was not forthcoming, they added, he calmly packed his clothing and moved out of their homes. Before the hearing was concluded the women spectators also were weeping freely.

Third Wife First Witness.

The first witness was Mrs. Emily Buarst, Straub's third wife. She called attention to the fact that the name under which she knew him was merely his real name reversed with the letters "s" and "t" transposed. Then she said:

"He got money from me, but sometimes he brought money to me. He was never away evenings. He was a perfect man. He used to leave the house at 7 o'clock in the morning and was home at 6:30 in the evening. He told me he worked in a wine shop on 47th street."

Miss Mary Notch, 1527 Mohawk street, who married Straub in 1897 and resumed her maiden name nine years ago when he left her without the formality of a divorce, related almost the same story, adding that Straub always had demanded money from her.

Refused Money, He Leaves.

Miss Louise Koessler, 3456 Kimball avenue, another wife who retains her maiden name although she was married as Mrs. Buarst, was unable to speak English. Mrs. Minnie Kaufman, 1520 Garfield boulevard, one of Straub's fiancées, acted as interpreter. Miss Koessler said she married in 1930, and added that her husband left her in April, 1932, when she refused to give him money.

Mrs. Margaret Schneider, 2031 Lincoln avenue, the second fiancée, then told of meeting Straub last April, of his immediate proposal of marriage, and of his borrowings from her of sums totaling $250. In each case he had represented himself as needing the money to close litigation upon a fortune bequeathed him by relatives and awaiting probation in Detroit, she said.

Death of the Bigamist.

It was the suspicion of Mrs. Kaufman which lead to Straub's death. Aroused when he borrowed money and gave her a promissory note with a fictitious address, she had him followed to the home of Mrs. Schneider. Going there, she learned that Straub had proposed marriage to Mrs. Schneider.

The two fiancées then went to the home of Straub to confront him. When he learned from his third wife that they were present he went to the basement of the house and fired a shot into his head. The jury decided he had killed himself while temporarily insane.

"Poor man," sobbed one of the women spectators, "it was the only thing left for him to do."

GETS YEAR FOR STABBING.

Juan Saldona, 27 years old, 10000 Commercial avenue, was sentenced to a year in the Bridewell yesterday by Municipal Judge Leon Edelman after Antonio Sandobal, a rival fruit peddler, had testified that Saldona stabbed him.

Born in Canada, Mrs. Murphy was brought to Chicago in 1858 by her father, Michael Ryan, when she was a child of 13 years. For a time the family lived in a house at Madison and Wells streets. Mrs. Murphy's father's home was destroyed in the fire of 1871. She frequently spoke to her grandchildren of the marvelous growth of the city during her lifetime.

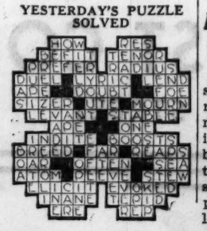
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



KINNEY AUTOPSY SHOWS DISEASED BRAIN CONDITIONS

Doctor Tells Effect on Conduct.

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—Plans for the burial of Garrett De Forrest Kinney, deceased state politician indicted on embezzlement charges, were being closely guarded by relatives and immediate friends today.

The funeral will take place "some time" Wednesday, a close friend of Mr. Kinney stated, but it will be strictly private and only the family and a few friends invited will attend. Services will be held at the residence.

Hardening of arteries of the brain, discovered in an autopsy, might have caused a change in his mental state some time before he shot himself, Dr. George W. Michell, allentist, testified in an inquest conducted today.

May Have Affected Conduct.

"I might say in justice to the man," said Dr. Michell, "that hardening of arteries in the brain localized there and in the aorta might have contributed to a change in his mental state in times past and might have been a factor in some of the things he did.

Kinney would not have lived a year if he had not injured himself, Dr. Michell declared he was convinced. There was no fatty degeneration of his heart, he said.

Dr. M. G. Bohrod, who performed the autopsy, testified to finding the localized hardening of the arteries and other conditions. He said there were five or six separate fractures in the top of the skull, some rather remarkably splintered.

Suicide Shot Caused Death.

Death was due to failure of the heart and pneumonia resulting from abscesses of the brain following fractures of the skull from the bullet Kinney fired into his head, he said.

R. B. Tamplin, assistant treasurer of the Culter & Proctor Stove company, of which Mr. Kinney was president, and Clarence Stroud, watchman, testified to the circumstances connected with Kinney's shooting himself at the plant on the morning of June 23, when he was supposed to depart for Springfield to answer a suit for an accounting.

The coroner's jury returned a verdict that Kinney died from a complication of ailments resulting from a self-inflicted bullet wound.

GIRL, 17, KILLS BOY OF 3 WITH HER AUTOMOBILE

Joseph Muhr, 3 years old, 1735 West Ohio street, was fatally injured last night when he was struck at Ohio and Wood streets by an automobile driven by Catherine Franzone, 17 years old, 1011 Townsend street. He died soon afterward at the county hospital. Miss Franzen was arrested but released after promising to appear at the inquest today.

Thomas Tatro, 3 years old, 2015 Vermont street, Blue Island, died yesterday at the St. Francis hospital of injuries incurred Aug. 5, when he was struck by an automobile as he played in the street in front of his home. The driver, Anton Berzinski, 13320 Prairie avenue, Riverdale, was charged with assault with an automobile and was ordered to appear at the inquest today. The deaths of the two boys raised the Cook county motor toll for 1933 to 692.

Mrs. Ella Lambert, 68 years old, of Spring Grove, Lake county, died yesterday in the Lake county general hospital, Waukegan, of injuries suffered in an automobile accident Saturday in Rand road near Lake Zurich. The car in which she was riding, driven by her son, Raymond, collided with another driven by Carl Knutsen, 4651 Magnolia avenue. Knutsen has been arrested on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident. He said yesterday that he had walked away dazed after the crash.

Fifteen passengers were pinned beneath a Greyhound bus en route from Chicago to Indianapolis when it overturned in a ditch near Dyer, Ind., yesterday after Ernest A. Miller of East Chicago had driven his automobile head-on into the bus. None of the passengers was seriously injured. Miller was critically injured. Liquor was found in his automobile.

Bury Andrew T. Hessner, Spanish War Vet, Today

Hessner, a veteran of the Spanish-American war, will be buried with military honors in Mount Olive cemetery at 2 o'clock this afternoon, following services in the chapel at 3421 Fullerton avenue. He died Sunday in his home at 5211 Warwick avenue. Hessner, who was 56 years old and a veteran printing house employé, served in the Philippines with the 4th Illinois volunteers during the war of 1898. He was a member of McKinley camp, Spanish War Veterans. Surviving him are his widow, Emma, and three daughters, Alice and Dorothy Hessner and Mrs. Lillian Pioch.

Messenger Confesses He Faked Story of Holdup

Floyd Pearl, 19 years old, a messenger for the Furniture Mart, who reported Saturday that bandits had robbed him of $195 which he was taking from his employers' office to a bank, confessed yesterday that he had taken the money and made up the story of the robbery. He said he planned to use the money to recoup losses in horse race bets.

CHORUS GIRL SUES FAMED ENGINEER FOR HALF MILLION

New York, Aug. 8.—[Special.]—Dr. Ralph Modjeski, who won international fame as a bridge builder, was named today in a $500,000 breach of promise suit brought by Jeanne De La Mar, a chorus girl. She charged that Dr. Modjeski, now 72 years old, promised to marry her in December, 1930, when he still was the husband of Mrs. Felice Benda Modjeska. She did not know of his marital status, she claims, and because of Dr. Modjeski's promise, permitted him to take advantage of her.

Miss De La Mar says she first learned of the engineer's wife when the latter obtained a divorce at Reno, Nev., July 6, 1931. The next day Dr. Modjeski married Mary T. Giblin of New York and Miss De La Mar started a breach of promise action for a million dollars.

In today's action in Manhattan Supreme court, Miss De La Mar seeks the return of letters written her by Dr. Modjeski, a release she signed in his favor and a $500,000 cash settlement. She charges the letters and release were obtained from her when the engineers' lawyer plied her with liquor.

Dr. Modjeski's answer was a general denial. He granted he made a payment of $1,500 to Miss De La Mar and said he got back forty-five friendly letters and four telegrams.

Dr. Modjeski, a former Chicagoan, is the only son of the late Helena Modjeska, famous actress, and has won six medals for his engineering feats. Mrs. Bella Silvera, Chicago illustrator, committed suicide in his apartment here in 1930. In May, 1932, Miss De La Mar took poison in a friend's room in the Hotel Embassy. Nearby was a photograph of Dr. Modjeski.

COL. ROOSEVELT HAS AUDIENCE WITH POPE PIUS

Visit Recalls Incident in Career of Father.

ROME, Aug. 8.—(AP)—Pope Pius XI. today received in audience Theodore Roosevelt, son of the former President of the United States. Msgr. Eugene Burke, rector of the American college, accompanied Col. Roosevelt on his visit to the pontiff.

Col. Roosevelt's visit to the Vatican recalled an incident in the career of his distinguished father, the former President of the United States, who on a trip to Rome in 1910 failed to see the head of the Catholic church under conditions which were quite unusual.

Declined to See Fairbanks.

In the course of his foreign travels in that year ex-President Roosevelt came to Rome. An audience was arranged for him with the pope, Pius X.

Some time earlier his holiness had declined to see former Vice President Charles W. Fairbanks because Mr. Fairbanks had made an address to the Methodists in Rome. Through the American ambassador the following message was conveyed to the former President of the United States:

"The holy father will be delighted to grant audience to Mr. Roosevelt on April 5 and hopes nothing will arise to prevent it, such as the much regretted incident which made the reception of Mr. Fairbanks impossible."

Text of Roosevelt's Reply.

To this Mr. Roosevelt replied at once through the American ambassador in these words:

"It would be a real pleasure to me to be presented to the holy father, for whom I entertain a high respect, both personally and as the head of a great church. I fully recognize his entire right to receive or not to receive whomsoever he chooses, for any reason that seems good to him, and if he does not receive me I shall not for one moment question the propriety of his action.

"On the other hand, I, in my turn, must decline to make any stipulations or submit to any conditions which in any way limit my freedom. I trust on April 5 he will find it convenient to receive me."

The Vatican's Response.

The Vatican's response to this was that "the audience could not take place excepting on the understanding expressed in the former message."

At once the former President replied: "The proposed presentation is, of course, now impossible."

When the Methodists at Rome sought to exploit the incident Mr. Roosevelt canceled an appointment to meet them at a reception.

Stage Is Set for East-West Polo Matches

Team from New York Will Arrive Friday.

BY JUDITH CASS.

"THE stage is set for the greatest series of polo games ever to be played in America."

In this sentence yesterday Maj. Frederic McLaughlin summed up the event on which the attention of society is focused this week. At 4:30 Sunday afternoon the best of the east and the best of the west will line up on the Onwentsia polo field before a brilliant throng of polo enthusiasts from all parts of the country for the first match of a three game series.

For the last five days the westerners . . . Elmer Boeske, "Rube" Williams, and those two good looking bachelors, Aidan Roark and Cecil Smith . . . have been rehearsing on the well manicured Onwentsia field to the approval of crowds of Lake Forest spectators. There will be another practice match with the Army at 4 o'clock today.

By special train Friday the eastern team, that the blazing "Tommy" Hitchcock picked Monday after the finish of the junior championships on Long Island, will arrive in town and proceed at once to the Deerpath inn in Lake Forest where the Pacific coast representatives are already established. And by noon Saturday every local polo fan summering at nearby resorts will be returned to the city and every visitor from the east and west will have arrived.

Mrs. Frederic McLaughlin will arrive this morning after a three weeks' holiday, just before her house guests of the next fortnight, the Carleton Burkes, arrive from the west coast. Many is the time Mr. Burke, who is the manager of the western team, has played polo with or opposing Maj. McLaughlin.

Sees Eastern Team in Action.

Mrs. McLaughlin will have some interesting sidelights on the eastern team, no doubt, for she has seen all of the members. . . . "Mike" Phipps, Winston Guest, Raymond Guest, William Post II., and Earle Hopping, as well as young Mr. Hitchcock. . . . in action in the junior championships. She has been the house guest of the junior Bradford Normans and the "Jock" Whitneys. During the latter stay she had a taste of Saratoga racing.

Also coming home from the east for the polo games are the Austin Niblacks, who have been enjoying Saratoga as the guests of the Whitneys. They will have a luncheon party for several of the eastern visitors at their Lake Forest house before the first match Sunday afternoon.

Although the Charles F. Glores went to a Wyoming ranch last week for a month, word yesterday was that they would be back in town this week-end for the polo series.

One of the nicest Sunday luncheons will be the one the Max Epsteins are giving at their beautiful Winnetka residence for that distinguished Hindu, Prince Singhi of Nepal, who arrived in the city yesterday. Mr. Epstein met the prince three years ago when they were both visiting in London.

The junior William E. Clows have invited several dozen of their friends to motor over to their Ridge Lane home in Lake Forest after the game Sunday to meet their house guests, the J. Watson Webbs of New York, and to enjoy a buffet supper. The Webbs arrived the first of this week to have a look at the Fair with their son, Watson Jr., and their daughter, Leila, before the polo games start. Other easterners at the Clows' party will be the Louis Stoddards and Mr. and Mrs. F. Skiddy von Stade, whose names are so indelibly linked with polo through their own interest in the game and that of Mrs. von Stade's sister, who married Devereux Milburn of the 1933 international polo cup team.

Mrs. W. H. Hubbard to Give Luncheon.

The polo games are one reason for the luncheon Mrs. William H. Hubbard is to have for fourteen guests next Wednesday noon at the Deerpath inn. The other reason is Mrs. Hubbard's good friend, Mrs. Wat T. Cluverius, who is soon to leave these parts with her husband, Rear Admiral Cluverius. After luncheon the party will move to Onwentsia for the second of the three games.

The Onwentsia has issued cards for a special buffet supper on Wednesday evening for the players and their friends, and on Thursday and Saturday nights there will be more gayety at the club when the usual supper parties are held with the addition of the out of town polo fans.

Families of Players to Stay in Town.

Though the eastern and the western teams are making the Deerpath inn their headquarters, their families and friends are preferring to stay in town at the Ambassador East and the Drake hotels. Player McCarthy has brought east with him Mrs. McCarthy and their son, Dillon, and daughter, Rosemary. Also here with their husbands are Mrs. Elmer Boeseke and Mrs. "Rube" Williams.

Interesting among the eastern spectators who will be here Saturday will be the junior and senior Mrs. "Tommy" Hitchcock. Quite as much of an enthusiast over the galloping game as her son is the senior Mrs. Hitchcock. Today at 68 she is the foremost woman polo player in the country. In the winter she is master of the hounds in Aiken. The junior Mrs. Hitchcock is the former Margaret Mellon.

The two Mrs. Hitchcocks have one of the center boxes for the three game series. Other visitors who have ordered boxes and reserved seats are the junior Robert E. Strawbridges, J. Ford Johnson Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Hugh J. Chisholm, Mr. and Mrs. A.

Smart Clothes, Right Coiffure and Proper Makeup Change Wallflower Into Girl With Personality

The wall flower, in an innocuous gown of embroidered white silk voile, a string of turquoise beads to match her wide taffeta sash and a girly-girly touch in the pink pumps and the artificial flower on her shoulder. She's without makeup and her hair is held back by two barrettes,

Enter the glamorous girl—after a skillful transformation by style and beauty experts—in a demurely dangerous gown of geranium red crepe with slippers to match, and rouge and lipstick that echo the color of the gown. Her hair is arranged in wide top waves, with soft curls at the back of the neck, and the barrettes have been abandoned forever. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

Beauty Shows Have Lesson for Women

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Yesterday concluded our experiment [noble, I calls it] to prove how vital a part of modern beauty are clothes and clever makeup. And it sure was proven!

Every day for six days we saw young women converted from plain, tired, drab, uninteresting, negative or too flamboyant types into extremely attractive ones. The cleverly chosen clothes selected by Mrs. Ford Carter, style director of the Fair, smart makeup and coiffure effected the miracle.

The evolution of our Plain Jane into a strikingly smart young woman was one of the outstanding feats. It carried an important message to girls and women who nurse the grudge that "they weren't done right by," the message being that they're not doing right by themselves. They could choose clothes that are very smart and learn more about makeup and coiffure to their great pictorial advantage.

Then, there was the business girl lesson which taught that appearance has everything to do with getting a job these days. There was the tired business woman taught the psychological value of changing into another person with the help of feminine dress and cheering makeup at night. And the high school girl, with her well known penchant for trying to look years older, was shown how much more devastatingly lovely she is when acting her own age.

Yesterday we saw the evolution of the wallflower type, the girl who unhappily fails to register with the boys. She isn't remembered because there's nothing about her to remember. A colorless personality, rendered more colorless and uninteresting by the kind of colorless clothes she adopts. Her makeup is negative. Her coiffure just so-so. She may be a dear, but she just doesn't stand up under the vital, interesting, personality-charged girl competition of the times.

The change in Miss Wallflower was remarkable. The girl actually was charged with a new personality when Mrs. Carter changed her from her simple, naïve white frock into an ultra chic flame colored party gown, simply cut, young—but stunning. Her hair was completely modernized in cut and wave and curl. Her makeup converted from a dullish thing into something as strikingly modern as the frock. A red coral rouge and matching lipstick was used. A blue-green eye shadow to emphasize the girl's real eye beauty, lashes lightly mascared and touched with eyelash grower. Throat and neck and back [for the semi-backless gown] were treated. A bleaching cream was recommended, a youth preserving tissue and a toning lotion.

Yes—the experiment proves beyond shadow of a doubt that there's a powerful lot of beauty, as beauty is now judged, in the three aids—good taste in dress, clever makeup and smart coiffure.

A NICE example of coincidence occurred the other day at the Brown University alumni luncheon held in the Trustees' lounge at the Fair in honor of Theodore Francis Green (class of '78), governor of Rhode Island, and President Rufus C. Dawes. The committee had obtained four flags to decorate the speakers' table, the Century of Progress emblem, the Brown university flag, the national colors, and the Rhode Island state flag (sent from Rhode Island after a hastily dispatched wire). The flags were only six inches square, so the committee decided that if the Rhode Island flag were not placed directly in front of the governor he would not see it, and, as it was doubtful if any of the old grads would recognize the yellow anchor and motto, "Hope," the placing of the little flags was important if the committee's efforts were to be noticed. As no one knew exactly where and how the guests would be seated, the four flags were lined up on the table without plan, and the committee embraced Rhode Island's motto for its own. Strangely enough, after the luncheon party was seated, it was discovered that President Dawes was directly behind the Fair's official flag, Gov. Green wa seated behind the Rhode Island standard, Col. Noble Brandon Judah, former ambassador to Cuba, the toastmaster, had the national colors in front of him, and Tuss McLaughry, head football coach at Brown, was seated behind the university's flag.

Coincidence—Luncheon—Explanation—Town Talk.

MIDSUMMER luncheon in the country. Alexander cocktails and appetizers beside a stone balustrade under the elms, gardens stretching beyond, a blue swimming pool to the left, reflecting blue glints upward on one of the most beautiful of Carl Milles' bronze figures. Chic, gracious, blue eyed hostess in a gray and blue gown; face by Fragonard. Luncheon at a table overlooking the terrace, with a view of the Skokie through the garden trees. Artichokes and mushrooms en casserole. Salad in a great turquoise bowl. Dessert a delicious pink ice in a flower pot mold, with real pink geraniums nodding from the top. Guests, both charming and distinguished. An architect, an ex-ambassador. An author, a critic. An authority on Russia, an allenist. A sculptor, a foreign relations expert. From the interest offered by the combination of guests it would be possible to guess the host and hostess without mentioning the collection of fine paintings on the walls, the amazingly beautiful flower arrangements in the vases, the highly individual and delightful taste throughout house and gardens. The Walter S. Brewsters, of course.

IT was at the Selwyn theater, and K. V. Carney reports that the attention of the young woman in the seat beside him was drawn to the panels encircling the top of the stage, wherein the names of famous composers are inscribed. She read them off one by one to her boy friend—Mozart, Beethoven, Liszt—and when she came to Chopin pronounced it "Chop in."

"That must be in case of fire," she explained.

THE GOSSIP SHOP. A black crow hangs around the Board of Trade building and some o the operators noticed him first just before the break in the market a couple of weeks ago. As a matter of fact, he belongs to the flower shop in the building and has been around a couple of years. . . . We are pleased to note that Winnetka seems, in a mild way, to be helping run the government, what with its various citizens serving on government posts. . . . And probably you had heard that Donald McPherson was offered the post of assistant secretary of the treasury. . . . The other day a lady arrived at a cocktail party and found the Hollywood (Fair) ape among the guests. He really is a nice lad from Philadelphia named Van Horn. . . . The Gordon Kelleys played bridge the other evening at a twentieth of a cent a point and one rubber lasted for four hours. Mrs. Kelley owed her husband 50 cents at the end of the evening. . . . Ben Abramson, book-man extraordinary, is busy writing a novel which he says is an imaginative romance with philosophic overtones and economic implications. On the Doubleday Doran list for next spring. . . . Fay Bainter has been busy showing the Fair to her son, Reggie Venable, when she is away from the theater. . . . A topical verse in the last mail begins:

"Gad, I'm tired of Sally Rand Prancing around with a fan in her hand . . ."

Scouts Chorus "Yes" to Question on World Peace

GODOLLO, Hungary, Aug. 8.—(AP)—A chorused "yes" went up today from Boy Scouts gathered at the international Scout jamboree to this question from Sir Robert Baden Powell, founder of the order: "Will you do your best to make friendships among yourselves and peace in the world?"

WE WOMEN MUST KEEP OUR YOUTH

OH, bother the birthdays! Staying young is really very simple . . . if you know your proteins and minerals, your carbohydrates and vitamins. These are the vital elements Nature so generously stores in whole wheat. And you can have them, every one, in delicious golden-brown biscuits . . . Shredded Wheat.

Vitally different!

It's the very food of youth! Just whole wheat with nothing added or taken away. Ready cooked, ready to eat. Yes, ready to serve in many delightful ways . . . with milk or cream, with fresh or preserved fruit.

Try it tomorrow, and the next day; try it for ten pleasant meals. Perhaps you'll find, as millions have, that it's youth . . . by the bowlful!

When you see Niagara Falls on the package, you KNOW you have Shredded Wheat.

BLOOD MONEY

By IRVIN S. COBB.

SYNOPSIS.

Gilbert Jonathan Redd, who lives in a village near the eastern end of Long Island, is called to the home of his wealthy stepbrother, Uncas Cresap, four miles distant, who was found dead by violence in his boathouse on Kettle pond. His Chinese servant is also found dead in the same room. The chief of police and physician of the village arrive and they are taken to the scene of the crime by a guard on the estate.

INSTALLMENT III.

MURDER COMES HOME.

I went downstairs and I went around the lea side of the boathouse and sat down on a bench so placed as to run parallel with the top of the little sloped ramp upon which boats are drawn back and forth. It was a gorgeous fall morning—a red-and-yellow bouquet right out of the heart of Indian summer, the air almost balmy enough for summer, the leaves all shades, a kind of intangible soft pollen like a glow of floating gold dust over everything.

All this autumnal beauty here, and up above in the bespattered room—that! In my time as a newspaper man I have covered many a morbid and mussy assignment. I have had much acquaintance with murders and some acquaintance with murderers, and I have looked, often's the time, upon a murderer's lethal leavings. But today I found out this much: Murder when it comes home to you, when it claims one you have known all through your life, when it somehow threatens, whether or no, to drag you into the scope and orbit of it, is vastly different from any murder you read about in a fiction tale or in a newspaper. As that Englishwoman, Mrs. Belloc Lowndes put it, murder is the one chink in the armor of civilization for which no provision is ever made.

The news must have spread fast. After awhile—perhaps twenty minutes, perhaps as long as half an hour—I was aware of the coming of the first members of what was to prove quite a crowd. In a broken trickle which presently swelled to a stream, townspeople began approaching by way of the private by-road. From behind my corner of the boathouse I could see these intruders although as yet none of them apparently saw me. Little Boothby, the editor of the local weekly, bustled up wearing an almost comic air of importance.

Dr. Finch edged along the north side of the boathouse and took a seat on my bench. He must have guessed this was where he would be likely to find me. In his quiet way he is a very canny and observant person. He is a small man and dapper, with quick, competent movements.

"A tolerably nasty layout upstairs, Mr. Redd," he said.

"What do you make of it?" I said.

"There's only one thing I can make of it. Offhand, I'd say both of 'em have been dead somewhere between six and twelve hours. For the sake of the argument let's compromise and say they've been dead nine hours, more or less. All right then, here's how I'd reconstruct this thing, fitting in my own pet notions as I've just now framed it, to match with the physical setting and all: Uncas Cresap is sitting there by his desk diagonally in front of his fireplace. He has taken off his coat and vest. He's wearing a dressing gown. Maybe he has been writing, maybe reading. Or maybe he's just sitting a spell before he turns in."

"He occasionally slept here instead of going back to the house, I know that," I told him. "I believe that sofa arrangement is one of these day beds, as they call them. And when he renovated the upstairs of this building he put in a bathroom."

"Precisely. Well, we'll agree then that he's just killing time until he gets good and sleepy. Somebody he knows comes walking in by the only way a person can walk in—and that's through the doorway facing him. He must know the other person, otherwise he would get up or, if he thought he was in any danger of being molested, make some move to protect himself. Well, this somebody walks up to him and probably goes on past him, still without causing him any alarm, and turns crosswise and stops behind him and lets him have it right through the skull and on into the brain, with a weapon that's been hidden until that moment—some kind of slender, sharp-edged cutting implement such as a hatchet or a narrow-bladed ax or even a very broad chisel.

"The murderer can tell instantly that the job is done. So, unless his object was to steal something—though from the looks of the place nothing appears to be disturbed—he beats it then, taking his implement with him. I looked around and I didn't see hair nor hide of anything answering to the vague description of it as I've built it up in my mind from a cursory examination of the wound. Well, a little while later, but probably not very much later, that tottery old living skeleton of a Chinaman comes up those steps and turns the electric lights on. I'm assuming, you see, that the murderer turned the lights off before he left. Or maybe he left them burning. They're burning now. Be that as it may, the Chinaman comes paddling in. He comes in and all of a sudden he sees what's happened to his boss. He takes one look and being old and pretty shaky—"

"He hit the pipe—that's an admitted fact in this weird household," I put in.

"So I'd have suspected myself," conceded Dr. Finch. "He's got opium addict written all over him—skin, cadaverous frame, everything. That being the case, it makes the hypothesis better than ever. . . . This feeble old shell of a Chink takes one look and over he keels across that settee-thing. The way he falls, his head is dangling down until it brushed the floor, and either he dies of a heart attack right there or else the blood rushes to his brain and apoplexy gets him.

"And so, if you're asking me, that's how it all was. . . . Well, Mr. Redd, you've heard my ideas and if anybody's got a set of better ones I'd be glad to hear what they are!"

"For one, I'm not prepared up to now to quarrel with your conclusions," I said. "I didn't take a very close survey of the room—I'll have to confess I felt a little bit squeamish—but from what I did see, I think I'd probably say what you've just said. Of course neither of us is taking into consideration any imaginable reason that any individual might have for wanting to put Uncas Cresap out of the way, even conceded that he was not greatly beloved."

"Not many people up and assassinate an elderly, helpless man merely on the grounds of his being unpopular," said Dr. Finch. "You might get a craving to kill such a one if thrown with him much, but the average normal person wouldn't give way to the craving. Besides, if I'm one to say, this killing wasn't done in sudden heat and passion. I'd say it was premeditated, worked out in advance."

"Well," I said, "I don't know so well about all of that. It has been my observation—and once upon a time, doctor, I had plenty of chances to observe—that as a rule a planned and calculated killing is accomplished by other means than the effective but rather crude means used here: by poison, say, which is more subtle, or by a pistol, which is cleaner, or by a knife stab, which usually is surer. Of course there are exceptions to all rules. I'm just generalizing."

About that time a poor defective known by the cruelly appropriate name of Fitified Jake supplied the crowd at the front with a supplemental diversion by falling down in one of his seizures. Dr. Finch went to give the sufferer aid, and I took advantage of the opportunity to cut across the turf to the rear of the big house.

Creating Home Described as Artistic Task

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

It was in the sunroom—I mean, solarium—of a big, beautiful new hospital.

Several women were talking.

One—a vivid middle aged homey sort of person with crinkly hair was in a haze of joy.

"I'm going home," she said. "Tomorrow I'm going home to see my baby."

"Huh! Baby!" almost snorted another woman who happened to be a neighbor of the first. "Baby! Twenty-one years old! That great big thing!"

Not in the last taken aback by the snorting comment, the homey, crinkly haired one looked out into the sky.

"He'll always be my baby," she said, "as long as I live."

Many of our babies are twenty-one and have just graduated from college. Our hearts hang over them—it is hard to look at them and see men and women instead of our little boys and girls.

It is said that to no two people do objects look the same. Certainly these young graduates don't look to the world as they do to their mothers and fathers. Their colleges talk to them as men and women, which is as it should be. Some fine addresses were delivered to graduates this year. I liked especially some of the things that Dean Virginia C. Gildersleeve said to this year's graduating class at Barnard college. She told them that "any kind of work done honestly and well has dignity," and that:

"Creating a home is an art that will call forth all the powers that a woman has. Do it with finish and distinction. Don't be a sloppy housekeeper. Don't be a mother who does not know what to feed a baby. Don't neglect the art of cooking, which is an art. Don't think this side of life beneath the dignities of education. Accept the artistic task in a wise, sensible and competent way."

Commenting on civic duties, Dean Gildersleeve said that, "I hope that every single one of you, in whatever community you go to live, will do something to make that community better. Never did the world need you more and never was there a better chance for you to achieve something."

MINUTE MYSTERY

By H. A. RIPLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

THE AUSTIN JEWEL ROBBERY.

"Well, Kelley, here's what I have so far learned about the Austin jewel robbery."

The inspector looked inquiringly and said, "Shoot!"

"First of all," Fordney continued, "there are four men in this small but powerful gang, Kennedy, Isham, Fitch, and Sodini. One of the four actually stole the jewels while the others played their parts in the theft.

"The leader of the gang is exceptionally tall while the thief is unusually short. Sodini and the thief had planned on double crossing the others if the robbery came off successfully. Isham and the leader had arranged with a fence for the disposal of the loot but at a price that was ridiculously low, considering the value of the jewels. The fence is your good old friend, Marshofsky. Of course, at present, we have actually nothing on him. Now . . ."

"Wait a minute," Kelley interrupted, "I know . . ."

"Hear the rest of it," Fordney exclaimed, ignoring the inspector's puzzled look.

"Kennedy and the actual thief had both insisted that the leader arrange for a getaway in an old Ford, but the leader persisted in his contention that a high powered car was the thing in which to effect their escape.

"Both the leader and the thief are cousins of Fitch. Of course you will now see, Kelley, who is the leader and who is the thief."

"What the hell are you talking about?" exploded his friend, who by this time was so confused he wasn't even trying to follow Fordney's reasoning.

DO YOU KNOW WHO WAS THE GANG LEADER AND WHO THE ACTUAL THIEF? YOU SHOULD!

Joan Crawford Learns Dance from Astaire

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—The "runaround" dance number which Fred Astaire danced for ten years with his sister, Adele, while they were co-starred behind footlights and which Astaire never danced with any one else, he is now teaching to Joan Crawford for one of their sequences in "Dancing Lady" at MGM.

Adele Astaire is now Lady Cavendish. The character of "Patch" in the story has finally been awarded to Clark Gable and the studio will "shoot around" him while Gable is recovering from his recent operation in the hospital.

Phyllis Barry, the young English actress whom Sam Goldwyn ushered into movies, is to have a main rôle with Charlie Ruggles in "Alimony Racket," now being prepared at Radio. Helen Vinson and Verree Teasdale are two more of the reasons for alimony in the cast.

Producer Sam Goldwyn tendered a big party for his new star, Anna Sten of Russia, at United Artists studio, and dinner was served at a semi-circular table set up in the great stone inclosure that's being used as Eddie Cantor's slave market in "Roman Scandals." Miss Sten appeared in a red dress with bustle effect of the nineties, with little tilted hat, black veil with red dots, curls, bangs over the forehead, and a black jacket. All the girls on the lot registered interest in the dress and had the blonde Russian walk and turn around, twist sideways, while they made mental notes. The actress, who has not spent one day in 16 months without an English lesson, expressed herself wittily in the American tongue with a vocabulary not yet Hollywoodized. She got a great laugh when, after Lynn Farnol of Goldwyn's staff had explained that the dinner was all Russian dishes in her honor, Miss Sten innocently asked if it was common to serve such Mexican food here.

FROZEN DESSERTS.

Aren't dessert ruts simple to fall into—and the very "old Harry" to climb out of? That's what Mary Meade, TRIBUNE cooking editor, thought until she began experimenting with refrigerator trays and freezers packed neatly in ice and salt. Then she came across so many tantalizing possibilities that she just couldn't help writing a booklet about them. "HOME FROZEN DELICACIES," her newest booklet, contains 50 frozen desserts and 6 ice cream sauces. There are recipes for hand freezer enthusiasts and the same recipes revised to be frozen in the refrigerator without danger of becoming icy, soupy, or otherwise sad. To obtain "HOME FROZEN DELICACIES" by mail, send 13 cents in stamps or money order to Mary Meade, Tribune Tower, Chicago. The new booklet is also on sale at the Tribune Public Service Office, 1 South Dearborn.

Sally Will Select Guests Today for Jolly Theater Party

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

I hope all of you boys and girls who want to come to my party on Aug. 17 have your letters written and mailed. They must reach me some time today, you know, in order to be considered for either invitations or our prizes.

From the mail received so far I know you're all anxious to see "Little Lord Fauntleroy" as the talented young Jack and Jill group will present it. The play will be given in three acts. The first scene is a sitting room in New York, and the second, in great contrast, is a room in Dorincourt castle, where Cedric Errol is transformed into a lord.

The prizes mentioned are two beautifully illustrated books which are to be awarded to the boy and girl who write the best letters in the entire mail received. The author, Olive Beaupre Miller, who is well known throughout the country as a children's writer, will autograph one of her books on Japan, and another one about France, and present them to the winners. They are extremely nice volumes of the sort that any boy or girl may be very proud to own.

Philosophy of Life Is Told by Tomlinson

Meaning Is Hidden Under Surface of Novel.

BY FANNIE BUTCHER.

"The Snows of Helicon," by H. M. Tomlinson. [Harpers.] Published on Monday.

H. M. Tomlinson is no writer for the man who would read as he runs.

H. M. TOMLINSON.

There is no surface splashing and sparkling in his work, like the waves of a shallow pool. Calm, still, his literary waters run deep, deeper than ordinary plumb lines can fathom. What he really says is all in those little known depths. The surface words lure one to their exploration.

Especially is that true of his latest novel, "The Snows of Helicon." Surfacely, it is the tale of a famed architect, returning from America, caught in the idea of the destruction of an ancient ruined temple for the sake of a radio station . . . ancient beauty traduced for mechanical efficiency . . . and so passionate in his wish to save beauty that he forgets wife, work, and the world and finally perishes in the dynamiting of the obstruction to modern progress.

But "The Snows of Helicon" is no more a novel than Bacon's Essays are novels or than "Paradise Lost" is a novel. It, like them, is a statement of one man's philosophical concept of man. In this book Mr. Tomlinson is stating his philosophy. I believe he has chosen a form less effective than the frank essay. But that, one must grant him, is his choice.

The bo'sun, who follows the hero, Mr. Travers, to far parts, is puzzled, as the reader must be puzzled, by the words that Mr. Travers uses. "The same as the words on a valentine, as near as the bo'sun could fathom it," Mr. Tomlinson writes of his hero's words: "They were good words, but what did that matter? What Mr. Travers talked about was not down in the chart. It was off the map. It had no bearings and you couldn't pick it up. The stuff was all right to listen to, if you understood it, but you couldn't make it fast to anything handy to hold your weight. It wouldn't bear weight."

But finally the puzzled bo'sun is as sure as he is of life and death that Mr. Travers was talking about something that was more important than the things that are on the map. And the reader has much the same feeling about Mr. Tomlinson's words when he finishes the book. They are off the map. The whole book is. But those black unplumbed depths have something for the intelligent reader that is right and real.

A world turned into machines by machines is as crazy an idea to Mr. Travers as a world in which machines are taboo is a crazy idea to the engineer. Mr. Tomlinson tells his readers what Mr. Travers thought, but never with the direct blow does he bring home his point. That isn't on his map. Always by implication, always by allowing the reader to mine his own nuggets of thought does the author do his work.

To those who look upon H. M. Tomlinson as one of the great writers of his generation—and many do—the beauties of his implicative style are legion. Where, for instance, have you read a more beautiful, or so far as that goes, more exact statement of the power of a woman over the man who loves her than this: "The sight of her that morning was as good as that sunrise long ago in Taormina. It was dark in a strange room and he opened the shutters and stepped out. The truth had dawned and there he was. It made him young and stark in an uprising of light. No more age and disbelief. . . . The sea had the colors of a dove's throat, and the sky was celebrating. Fanny was the same as that dilation of glory over the world. She wasn't reason, but she was meaning, though it was hard to say what the meaning was, except that it was good. She was perpetual life. She never knew that his best work had flowed—just when it was jammed, too—because she had come in with a laugh and was nonsensical. The right things were born when she laughed. She was a good mother, but didn't know it, and regretted that she was not."

Paris Favors the Two Piece Linen Frocks

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Paris has her own way of dealing with linen frocks for midsummer sports wear. She likes to divide them into two parts, so that the linen skirt occasionally can function with a sweater. She puts a kind of nunlike plastron on the jumper blouse, as shown in our sketch today, which suggests sleeves and gives a demure aspect to the dress.

Vera Borea, who designed this frock, makes it of a coarse dark blue linen, and she trims it with rings that are white leather on the outside and silver on the inside. Two of these rings are clamped into the round neck and three of them act as a buckle to the white leather belt, which is cut into three thongs.

By means of the plastron yoke on the jumper blouse and the narrow, low flared skirt this sports frock arrives at the popular midseason silhouette that Paris is pushing.

The skirt is straight, with an inverted box plait at the side back, which is stitched down almost to the knees. The front of the skirt has a wide center panel, with knife plaits hidden under the sides from a point just above the knees.

Drink Mixers Get Attention in Gift Shops

BY RHEA SEEGER.

The small change you can count after one of those thrilling fur coat buys that every shop and store is stressing this month can be used for gifts and gadgets and as usual the kids, the mixers and drinkers are getting the best breaks as far as new things are concerned.

For instance, a mixing stick that is much more than it sounds . . . a long businesslike affair of wood shaped like a pestle has a wide rounded flat bottom for properly squelched fruit and mint leaves if that is the way you make your juleps! The shaft is long and slender and can easily mix with anything, while cleverly fitted into the top to form an added decoration is a metal corkscrew and combined bottle opener, all for the smallest sum you can dig out of the bag.

What stern minded grown-ups can invent to inveigle a persnickity youngster to eat are legion, but this time they have really accomplished something. It's a set of eating tools patterned after garden gadgets . . . the spoon looks exactly like a shovel, the fork has been patterned after a tined spader, the pusher is of course made like a hoe, and the milk mug is a clever fat squatty silver cup made to look like a water sprinkler . . . you can buy the things separately or they can be bought all assembled in one box.

There are a lot of new chest pins or brooches for grown ups that will please any pin fancier . . . they are large and glittering, made of chromium in some new patterns, the inevitable long safety pin, a wish bone, and some knockout looking large keys evidently consolation affairs for the not so well known celebrities who didn't rate the official key to the shopping section of the town.

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie A. Rankin of Vine avenue, Highland Park, announce the engagement of their daughter, Eleanor Loretta, to Forrest Raymond Keach of Chicago, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Keach of Chalmers, Ind. Mr. Keach attended Northwestern university. The wedding will take place in

"I Used to Have a FUSSY little APPETITE"

"... always raised a ruckus at meal-time because I didn't like the things set before me. But after they started giving me CREAMETTES I forgot all about objecting! I like CREAMETTES because they taste good. And Mother says she's glad because they're good for me." (Two big packages of this delicious Macaroni product at your grocers cost only 15c.)

Stage Is Set for East-West Polo Matches

Team from New York Will Arrive Friday.

Local boxholders include Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy, the Solomon Smiths and the Byron Smiths, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Butler, both the junior and senior Albert Blake Dicks, Ernest R. Graham, the Ralph Hineses, the Howell Howards [Mr. Howard is bringing a polo team from Dayton to play in the intracircuit tourney], the John F. Jelkes, Cyrus Adams, the Darrow B. Fultons, George A. Bates, Fred A. Poor, the junior John T. Piries, and the Charles H. Schweppes.

Junior League to Aid Parade.

The Junior league girls have become so attached to costumes, grease paint and acting that even when they have a vacation from the Children's theater on the Enchanted island at the Fair they carry on with the same sort of work. Yesterday afternoon Miss Margot Atkin, president of the league; her sister, Miss Adelaide Atkin; Miss Margaret Quan, Mrs. Maurice Patrick Geraghty, the former Helen Tieken; Miss Frances Oliver, and several others spent most of their time trying on costumes in the Wings of a Century for their next rôles, which are the impersonation of belles of 1833 in the Pageant of Old Chicago that the Historical society and A Century of Progress are presenting in celebration of Chicago Incorporation day Saturday.

These ceremonies start at 10 a. m. at the Historical Society building in Lincoln park, when Dr. James A. James introduces Dr. Otto L. Schmidt, who will give a talk on "Chicago's First Century." After this short speech the participants in the pageant will be taken down to the Fair grounds, where they will parade from the Court of Honor in the Science building to the Travel and Transport building. The parade will present a colorful and authentic picture of the days of 1833, with most of the vehicles and actors borrowed from the Wings of a Century . . . traders, prominent men, Indians, even soldiers from the two companies of infantry that were then stationed in Fort Dearborn. All these characters will be escorted by two hundred soldiers of today's cavalry and infantry and by an army band and marine corps representatives. The paraders will be received at the Travel and Transport building by Mayor Kelly, Rufus C. Dawes, the city council and representatives of the army and navy. As part of the program Wallace Wright's "Ode to Chicago" will be read.

That evening Mayor Kelly and other distinguished guests will be invited to attend a Wings of a Century performance.

Olga de Tarnowsky Sets Wedding Date.

Miss Olga de Tarnowsky, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George de Tarnowsky, has chosen Saturday, Sept. 9, as the date for her wedding to William J. Hudson, son of the H. Newton Hudsons. Their engagement was announced early last June, just before the bride's aunt and sister, Miss Mary Nixon and Miss Mary de Tarnowsky, returned from Italy, and her wedding will take place before Miss Nixon leaves for Europe again. It is to be an evening affair at 8:30 o'clock, and the service will be performed in St. Peter's church. A reception will follow at the home of the bride's parents.

Miss Mary de Tarnowsky will be her sister's maid of honor, and for bridesmaids Miss de Tarnowsky will have Miss Jean Wegener and Miss Helen and Miss Marietta Gillette, who spend their summers on Lake Beulah near the De Tarnowskys. Nixon de Tarnowsky, the bride's brother, will serve Mr. Hudson as best man. The ushers have not yet been selected.

Mrs. John W. Root is entertaining between five and eight this afternoon at her Walton place apartment for her sister, Mrs. James Porter, who arrives this morning from her home in East Orange, N. J. Mrs. Porter will be here for most of a month to renew acquaintance with Chicago friends and see A Century of Progress.

Several dozen friends of the Paget Cadys stopped in at their near north side apartment yesterday afternoon for a double purpose—a cocktail and to meet Harry Bull, the magazine editor here from New York. Mr. Bull has been entertained at a round of Lake Forest parties the last week.

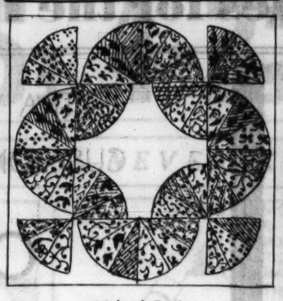
"Mohawk Trail" Easier to Make than It Looks



Mohawk Trail.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Mohawk Trail" takes its title from a certain technique used by the Indians, in an effort to keep under cover and to baffle possible followers, when traveling along a winding trail. The piecing of the pattern is not so tricky as it would seem. The wedge-shaped prints are first joined fan fashion and then appliqued onto a white block.

For a quilt pattern of this design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn.

Hazel Felman Compositions Heard at Fair

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Hazel Felman, composer, and Frederic Jencks, baritone, were the leading figures in yesterday's music at A Century of Progress. The composer was responsible for a complete program of compositions in the afternoon and a liberal representation in the evening, and the baritone appeared in both.

The afternoon program was given in the lounge of the Federal building, a stately, dignified room so nearly ideal for recitals and chamber music that it should have much use during the summer and be reproduced somewhere in Chicago when the Exposition is over. Here the music was presented, in addition to Mr. Jencks, by a quintet consisting of Ebba Sundstrom and Evelyn Davis, violinists; Sara Shatz, violist; Goldie Gross, cellist, and Nina Mesirow Minchin, pianist.

Mrs. Felman has inventive gifts as a composer and would seem to have developed a facile and fluent technic wherewith to present them. She solves the problem of being modern in manner without being dissonant, which is always a wise middle course. Six songs with quintet accompaniment displayed Mr. Jencks' fine, brilliant voice to excellent advantage. Of these, a setting of Kipling's "Boots" cannot help but be popular, and two settings of poems by Siegfried Sassoon deserve high rating as art songs. The final number on the program, a prelude and fugue for the quintet, is a closely woven, well wrought work which would probably transcribe well for full orchestra.

Mr. Jencks' evening assignment brought him to the Floating theater, where he appeared in connection with A Century of Progress quintet. Here his chief presentations were a group of cowboy songs, in which he is a specialist, and another group by Mrs. Felman which included a repetition of "Boots," as favorably received as it had been by the smaller audience of the afternoon. Still another Felman composition was the "Mystery Waltz" played by the quintet.

This program was preceded by several others. Elizabeth Jordan, soprano, of Birmingham, Ala., gave a brief song recital early in the evening. In the court of the Hall of Science a Boy Scout band gave a dinner time concert, and after the Arcturus ceremony a small Negro chorus from New Orleans university presented another program featuring spirituals and songs by the Negro composer, Coleridge-Taylor.

An attraction for tonight will be Mme. Olga Kallivoda, Hungarian dramatic soprano, who will appear on the terrace of the Hall of Science and present Hungarian folk songs. With her will be Elizabeth Jordan, who will sing American folk songs.

BY MARY MEADE.

"Borrowing from the neighbors" seems to be quite the fashion among nations—so why not among cooks? And if you have the notion about foreign goods in general that one writer in had who asked for "a recipe for a dish that is foreign and still fit to eat"—then pack it away with the rest of the wornout ideas. For if we choose sensibly—considering the tastes of our diners—and work as per direction, favorites of other countries can be perfectly appropriate and utterly delicious on our most modern apartment tables.

And don't go around looking for a special occasion. We're smack in the midst of all sorts of them. For in line with all the special days at A Century of Progress this summer, devoted to various countries, there are all sorts of new and old recipes going about—each speaking its own language.

First for a Norway special which economizes by using those dry pieces of bread left over from toast or sandwiches:

NORWEGIAN BREAD PANCAKES.

1 quart milk
6 slices white bread (soaked in milk until soft)
2 cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon baking powder
2 eggs, separated

Pour the milk over the bread and when it is soft and smooth stir in the sifted dry ingredients and the beaten yolks of eggs. Fold in the stiffly beaten whites and bake as for ordinary pancakes. Serve with sirup, honey, or brown sugar and butter.

Another Norwegian recipe which turns out a much daintier treat than the usual homely pancake is:

CRISPY NORWEGIAN PANCAKE.

6 cups milk
1 tablespoon sugar
½ teaspoon grated lemon rind
6 egg whites, beaten stiff
2 tablespoons melted butter
Flour

Combine the ingredients with enough flour to make the batter a little thinner than for ordinary pancakes. Spread the cakes thin on a hot griddle.

Another something both appetite teasing and unusual is:

GERMAN COTTAGE CHEESE KUCHEN.

2½ cups cottage cheese
2 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons cornstarch
½ teaspoon salt
5 eggs, separated
1 cup sugar
Juice of one lemon

Press the cottage cheese dry and then put it through a ricer three times. Melt and add the butter, then add the cornstarch and salt. Beat the egg yolks till thick and creamy and add with the lemon juice. Stir until smooth. Finally add the sugar and fold in the stiffly beaten whites of eggs. Have the following prepared:

MUERBE TEIG.

1½ cups flour
2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon baking powder
Pinch of salt
Yolks of two eggs
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2-3 tablespoon cold water

Cream the butter. Add the eggs and salt and mix with the rest of the ingredients. Pat and press the dough until it is one-quarter inch thick in a pie pan. Fill with the following cheese mixture and bake until well set and browned:

2½ cups cottage cheese
2 tbsp. melted butter
4 tbsp. cornstarch
¼ tsp. salt
5 eggs, separated
Juice of 1 lemon
1 cup sugar

Press cottage cheese dry and put through a ricer or colander several times. Mix in the butter, cornstarch, and salt. Add the stiffly beaten egg yolks, then the lemon juice and sugar. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour at once into a pan lined with Muerbe Teig.

WOMEN'S DRESS.

The soft, graceful neckline of this smart dress cuts the bodice breadth. The pointed seaming is another slimming feature, and the skirt panels give height. A novelty silk crêpe in a rich chestnut brown or black satin are pleasing suggestions.

Shall She Wed Ex-Escort of Married Lady?

BY DORIS BLAKE.

She's anticipating marriage soon with a gentleman of 32, who for ten years has been the constant companion of a married woman. He's been seen out and around with this woman so much that there's considerable talk. The woman's husband seemed to encourage the pair. It left him free on many evenings—and about this gossip also has a tale to tell.

Though our inquirer has known the man for years and liked him, in spite of the talk, it's only recently he became attentive. Now, he wants to marry the girl. She wonders if the other woman will make trouble. It she, herself, will suffer a lot of talk. Also, if the man can be depended upon to give up the woman entirely. He admits he is fond of her, feels a bit sorry for her, and somehow found himself drifting into a situation as her escort he had not planned in the beginning.

The other woman could not make trouble without making herself ridiculous. She has no claims on the gentleman so long as she is legally married.

At first thought, one is contemptuous of the young men who let themselves be taken on as "escorts" for women endowed with a perfectly good legal mate. It isn't a particularly glowing rôle for a man to play under any circumstances. But it is a known fact that some of these men, in their twenties, are persuaded into such associations by clever women with means and social prestige which they dangle before the youth's eyes. Many young chaps have a taste beyond their incomes and these women make luxuries possible for them. Presently, the man finds himself enmeshed against his will. A certain sense of obligation may hold him to the woman's side—and there is also her usually very clever flattery to bind him. Of course, he's not the stuff heroes are made of. But he might, indeed, be worth resuscitating by a girl who loves him and is willing to marry him.

Once this girl gets him, the other woman, the married woman, withdraws from the scene. Usually her pride won't stand the assault. If, however, she tried to angle for the now married one's company, the wife could make pretty short work of that competition by serving notice that finis has to be writ to that chapter—and pronto.

Lines of 1912 Styles Shown by Mainbocher at Autumn Opening

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Aug. 8.—Mainbocher shows, in the display of autumn and winter fashions here, a sensationally successful modernization of lines associated with the 1912 period. He is reviving long sheathe skirts, flaring cutaway peplums, flounced bustle or cascade back vogues, and also basque jackets with flaring backs. Fur trimmed, instep length wool afternoon suits, satin blouses, ruffled pigeon breasted jabot or plastron trims, all typical of this epoch, are also seen in his collection.

There is but little differentiation between afternoon and evening skirt lengths. There are but few trailing evening gowns; removable tie-on trains constitute the only exception. They are very striking.

THE STAGE

"Let 'Em Eat Cake," written by the authors of "Of Thee I Sing" as a sequel to that nationally popular musical comedy, will be placed in rehearsal in New York next Monday by Producer Sam H. Harris. Many of the principal players in the original "Of Thee I Sing" company have been engaged.

The title of this work calls for repeated explanations. The phrase is supposed to have been uttered by Marie Antoinette when she heard that the poor people of Paris wanted bread. "Why don't they eat cake?" is the form in which the remark is usually quoted. But Marie Antoinette never said it.

There is another legend of the French revolution that runs in this pattern. A certain financier of the tax collecting group is alleged to have said of the suffering masses, "Let them eat grass." When the revolution was well under way the Paris mob dragged him out of his château and back to town, where he was torn to pieces. His head was carried about the streets on a pike, with the mouth stuffed full of grass. This incident is authentic.

From all of which it would appear that the libretto of "Let 'Em Eat Cake" deals with a mythical revolution in this country.

Addison Fowler and Florence Tamara, the ballroom dancers in the Drake hotel's Summer Garden room, will introduce a series of Spanish dances at tonight's program. They spent several years in Spain and have made a close study of the national dancing technique.—C. C.

NEWCOMER TO NATIONAL GOLF TOPS AMATEURS

Bill Lain's 149 Best in Chicago Trials.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

There were a lot of very hot golfers out at the Bob O'Link club in Highland Park yesterday on the hunt for the 19 places allotted to the Chicago district for the qualifying round of the national amateur tournament, but they didn't bother young Bill Lain of Beverly. Lain, whose father, Van Lain, is president of the Beverly Country club, shot 74—75—149, five over par, to win the local qualifying medal.

Bill, who plays a very handsome game of golf around the Chicago district but until recently hasn't indulged in national competition, will lead a troop of 19 golfers from the Chicago district and Wisconsin into the national amateur tournament proper, which will be decided at the Kenwood Country club in Cincinnati, from Sept. 11 to 16, inclusive.

Iowans Lose Places.

Two visitors from Des Moines, Ia., Denmar Miller and Pete Jordan, shot well enough to be included in the chosen nineteen, but were excluded because they were not competing from their regular district center, which is Omaha, Neb. Miller shot a 151, and Jordan 154.

One stroke back of Lain for the medal were Don Armstrong of Aurora, Ill., state champion, and Hunter Hicks of Skokie. Chick Evans of Edgewater, winner of the national in 1916 and 1920, put on the best rally of the day and with it the best card to tie Don McKenna of Milwaukee for third place at 151. After shooting a 79 on his morning round, Evans came back with a par 72 in the afternoon.

Five Compete in Playoff.

A playoff among five 157 scorers was necessary to determine the last qualifying berth. The quintet was composed of Winfield Day of Elmhurst, Chicago district junior champion; Art Sweet of Ridgemoor, John Lehman of Olympia Fields, John Morrell of Glen Oak and Bob Bohnen of Midlothian. Bohnen, Lehman and Morrell were eliminated at the first extra hole. Bohnen's great try for a four bouncing out of the cup. Day won the 19th position at the second hole with a par four, after Sweet sent his second shot into a trap at the left of the green. Day had taken a nine on the 10th hole of his afternoon round, going out of bounds twice.

Lain Slips at 18th.

Lain was two over par on his morning round, during which he had three three putt greens. He missed a short putt on the first green, sank a long one for a birdie at the second, but three putted the third. He ran down a 20 footer for another birdie at the sixth, and needed three to get down at the eighth. He followed the card perfectly from there on until the 18th, where he took three getting down.

In the afternoon Bill dropped his second shot to the first green close for a birdie, but missed a short effort on the next hole. He found one of Jack O'Link's yawning traps at the 10th and couldn't go away from there with less than a seven. He redeemed that with a 20 foot putt for a birdie at the next hole, and sank two long putts on the 10th and 11th for two more birdies. He shanked an iron shot at the 13th and three putted the next two holes. He needed three also to hole out on the 17th green.

MALLETS FLASH AND HOOFS THUNDER AS WEST PREPARES TO BATTLE EAST

Capt. Wilkinson and Rube Williams fight for possession of the ball during yesterday's practice game between the western all-stars and Fort Sheridan at Onwentsia. Capt. Wilkinson is mounted on the gray pony. Stub Davis is in the center and Cecil Smith is checking his mount at the left. For four chukkers the army team played the westerners to a standstill, but in the closing stages the all-stars forged ahead and won by a score of 11 to 6. It was the all-stars' second game in preparation for the intersectional series with Tommy Hitchcock's eastern team, which starts Sunday.

Hines and M. Dutra Tie for P.G.A. Medal with 138 Cards

BY CHARLES NEVADA.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 8.—Old man par was shamefully abused by the country's leading professionals today as the 36 hole qualifying round was completed in the 15th annual national P. G. A. tournament. Par 70 for the 6,330 yard Blue Mound Country club layout was broken or tied 16 times during the play, which saw Mortie Dutra of Detroit, Mich., brother of the defending champion, and James Hines of Timber Point club, Great River, L. I., finish in a tie for the medal with 138 each.

Hines took the lead early this afternoon when he carded a 68 to go with his 70 this morning. Dutra then turned on the best golf of the day. He posted a sizzling 66 for his second round after taking a 72 in the morning.

Play Off for Trophy.

The two will play off later in the week for the Alex Smith cup, the medalist reward.

Competition was so keen today that only those carding 146 or under among the 97 starters qualified for the first round of match play tomorrow. There are 32 eligible for the match play, including Olin Dutra of Los Angeles, defending champion, who was not required to qualify. Among the stars eliminated were Billy Burke, a member of this year's United States Ryder cup team, and the two Turnesas of New York, Joe and Mike.

Johnny Revolta, whose home is Oshkosh, Wis., but who is representing the Menominee, Mich., club, finished third today with a medal card of 68—71—139, his morning total being one of the four 68's reported during the first round. Gene Sarazen of Miami, Fla., and Willie Klein of East Williston, Long Island, N. Y., were tied for fourth with 140's. Klein had a pair of 70's, while Sarazen, who attracted most of the gallery, came up with a 68 and a 72.

Dutra Has Putter Trouble.

Paul Runyan of White Plains, N. Y., and Al Houghton of Washington, D. C., tied for sixth with 141. Tom Creavy of Albany, N. Y., and Victor Ghezzie of Rumson, N. J., were one stroke behind.

Dutra scored his 66 despite two three-putt greens on the first nine holes, his putter refusing to heed his touch on the seventh and ninth greens. Coming in on the last nine this afternoon, he never went over par and reached his climax with birdies on the 13th, 14th, 15th and 16th holes.

Hines, who was put out in the first round in last year's tournament by Creavy, got a good start by scoring birdies on the fourth, fifth and sixth holes on the first ninth this afternoon. He went over par on the seventh when he found the rough with his tee shot, took a three on the eighth and finished the outward journey with a par four. He clipped two more strokes from par on 11th and 12th, weakened at the 13th where he went one over, only to finish strong with birdies on the par four 16th and 18th holes.

Vines' Status as Amateur Under Inquiry

New York, Aug. 8.—[Special.]—An investigation into the amateur status of Ellsworth Vines, national tennis champion, is under way, the United States Lawn Tennis association revealed today.

Metropolitan newspapers reported a day or two ago that "attractive offers" have been made to Vines, Henri Cochet, Fred Perry, and Jack Crawford to turn professional and go on a tour of the world.

Expressing himself as "distressed" over the reported intention of Vines to join professional ranks, Louis J. Carruthers, chairman of the U. S. L. T. A.'s amateur rules committee, said today:

Vines Welcomes Investigation.

"We will give Vines an opportunity to explain just how he stands on the question of professionalism. It will benefit both him and the game of tennis if the public is informed exactly what the American champion intends doing about the offers made to him; provided, of course, such offers actually have been made."

Informed of the proposed move of the association, Vines had this to say: "It's a good idea. It will save me the trouble denying these rumors every day."

Only One Offer Made.

Vines declared that he had not been officially notified of the proposed investigation, but reiterated that he would welcome it.

The champion was quoted as saying that only one offer had been made to him to turn professional, and that he had not given it serious consideration.

Western Polo Stars Defeat Army, 11 to 6

BY HOWARD BARRY.

The western all star polo team defeated Fort Sheridan, 11 to 6, at Onwentsia yesterday in a practice game preparatory to the intersectional series with Tommy Hitchcock's eastern squad.

The first of the east-west contests will be played Sunday and the second next Wednesday. If a third is necessary to decide the series, it will be played on the following Sunday.

Smith Struck by Ball.

In the seventh chukker Cecil Smith was struck in the stomach by the ball, hot from the mallet of one of the Army players. Slipping from the saddle, he dropped to the turf, apparently seriously hurt. But he, too, resumed play after a few minutes' rest.

SENATORS WHIP YANKEES, 5-1, TO REGAIN GROUND

New York, Aug. 8.—(AP)—The Washington Senators, combining timely hitting with Earl Whitehill's five hit pitching, today recouped half the lead they lost in a double header yesterday, defeating the New York Yankees, 5 to 1, in the third of the four game series. The victory increased their advantage as league leaders to two full games.

Whitehill held the Yankees at bay in every inning except the fourth. The Senators started their attack off Johnny Allen in the same inning, picking up two runs, one of them unearned. They added two more in the fifth when Buddy Myer followed Whitehill's single with a home run and got their final run in the eighth as the result of Heinie Manush's homer, hit with the bases empty.

Rules Ball Had Struck Screen.

Myer's home run followed a disputed decision by Umpire McGowan. Bill Dickey rushed back to the screen to catch Myer's foul fly and succeeded, but McGowan ruled the ball had struck the screen. Granted another chance, the Senators' second baseman drove the ball into the right field bleachers.

For three innings Allen set the Senators down in order. In the fourth, however, with one out Goose Goslin, Manush, and Joe Cronin connected with successive singles, sending Goslin across the plate with the first run. When Frank Crosetti overthrew first base on an attempted double play of Fred Schulte's grounder Manush raced home with the Senators' second score.

Ruth Spoils Rally in Ninth.

The Yankees' run came in the fourth when, after Earl Combs and Joe Sewell had singled, Babe Ruth hit into a double play and Combs scored.

Ruth again cut short a promising ninth inning rally when he hit into a double play after Sewell had opened the final inning by drawing a base on balls, one of three issued by Whitehill. Gehrig then singled, but Chapman flied to Goslin for the final out.

BUNCH 8 HITS OFF DIZZY TO WIN FOR ROOT

Victory Cuts Giant Lead to 4 Games.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Jerome Dizzy Dean, the well known capital "I" man, mislaid his strikeout ball yesterday and the Cubs made merry whereas they had anticipated only misery. The Cubs, instead of fanning except in rare instances, treated the St. Louis Cardinal wizard to a shower of timely hits, thus capturing a spectacular 4 to 2 victory for a 25,000 ladies' day crowd and at the same time closing in on the league leading Giants. The third place North Siders now trail the pacemakers by only four games.

The lathering of Dean with base hits as compensation for the 17 strikeouts he hung on the Cubs in their last meeting was one thing, but there was another of importance. That was the pitching of the veteran Charley Root, who kept the limited number of enemy hits so well scattered that their value was lost except in one instance. That was in the fourth, when the visitors produced a flurry that shoved them into the lead. After that mishap Root was well nigh invincible. In the last four innings he didn't permit a runner to reach second base.

Fans Only Five.

In behalf of Mr. Dean it should be mentioned that he injured his pitching wrist while fielding a ball in a recent game at Pittsburgh. Before he started he modestly admitted he couldn't guarantee an exceptional performance such as even a dozen strikeouts. But he started off as if determined to make the attempt. He whiffed two of the first four to face him. Then he slowed down a bit, probably due to discouragement over the way the Cubs were hitting him, and finished his nine innings of work with an every day total of five.

Gabby Hartnett, who didn't get in on the 17 strikeouts at St. Louis, was present yesterday and Dean used him for a victim on two occasions. Gabby, however, had no reason to regret that embarrassment. Before falling for the strikes he hit a triple that drove in the first Cub run, and after the two unfortunate incidents he singled to send across the final Cub run.

Cuyler, Herman Hit.

Ki Cuyler and Babe Herman were two of Dean's most persistent patrons the day he fanned 17, but they had the pleasure yesterday of recovering some of their lost prestige. Cuyler contributed two to the 17 total and fanned yesterday in his first appearance, but later came through with a single and then a double, the latter accounting for two runs that sent the Cubs into the lead in the fifth. And the artless Babe, who whiffed three times at St. Louis and again in his first attempt yesterday, ripped off a two bagger that started the last run on its way in the eighth.

The spectacular Mr. Dean started right where he left off a week ago last Sunday. He fanned Cuyler for the third out in the opening inning. He gave Herman the Babe a dose of strikes to start the second. Then Dizzy struck an unexpected snag. He walked Demaree, and Hartnett, after getting in the hole with two strikes, blasted a triple into right center to score Demaree. With only one out Hartnett naturally had hopes of getting home, but Grimm was tossed out by Durocher and Jurges flied to Orsatti in center.

Root Has Troubles.

Root's troubles began in the second when Collins led off with a single. It proved harmless. In the third the situation was a bit more aggravating. Durocher singled with one out and Orsatti walked after two were out. Crawford's fly to Demaree concluded the inning.

The Cubs produced the needed ingredients for a run in their half of the third, but didn't get the run. Root's liner hopped off the ends of Durocher's extended fingers for a single. English tried to sacrifice, but instead forced Root at second. English endeavored to steal, but was an easy out. Billy Herman walked and hiked to third on Cuyler's single to center. Then Babe Herman hit one right well, but the fearless Mr. Dean knocked it down with his gloved hand and made the throw to first.

There was so much activity at the

FIRST WARD HAS PARTY; COUGHLIN LONG SHOT WINS

Foul Aids Camp Douglas; Payoff Is $126.62.

BY FRENCH LANE.

There should be great joy in the First ward this morning for Ald. John (The Bath) Coughlin trotted out his 4 year old Camp Douglas in the Park Ridge purse at Hawthorne yesterday and watched him win the 6½ furlong dash. Camp Douglas paid off in the mutuels at $126.62.

It was a stirring finish in which the wearer of the Coughlin apple blossom jacket got up in the last stride to win by an inch from the Audley Farm stable's Royal Blunder. The two leaders were two lengths in front of the odds-on favorite, Monel.

There probably will not be much hilarity in the First ward, however. The Coughlin horses have won so seldom in the last two years that only a few lads and lassies from Chicago's First have remained loyal to the stable maintained by the alderman.

Victory Was a Fluke.

Even the loyal lads and lassies had sort of a guilty look in their eyes when they collected their tickets. For they, like all the other folk in the crowd, realized it was a fluke victory the Coughlin colorbearer scored.

The best horse in the race was Monel by many lengths. A foul against her which went unpunished caused her to be beaten. The foul wasn't committed by either Camp Douglas or Royal Blunder, which finished in front of her, so there couldn't have been a disqualification.

Monel was fouled by Hope to Do from Admiral Grayson's stable.

Monel and Hope to Do headed into the stretch head and head. Monel started to drive on past Hope to Do. Just as she made the move Jockey Tipton let Hope to Do go wide, carrying Monel with him. As a result of the move Band Wagon, running as an entry with Hope to Do, momentarily moved into the lead. It seemed to be a perfect setup. Tipton and Hope to Do had caused Monel to lose a half dozen lengths and at the same time let their running companion dash to the front.

Band Wagon Lacks Speed.

Band Wagon wasn't good enough to go and win. Despite the ground she lost, Monel had little trouble beating Band Wagon, but during all the skirmishing Royal Blunder and Camp Douglas had also saved many lengths by clinging close to the rail. It soon developed into a battle between these two. Royal Blunder seemed to be the winner 20 strides from the line of finish.

Jockey Wright on Camp Douglas started whipping desperately with his left hand. He must have found a tender spot on Camp Douglas' flank. The Coughlin horse, to the amazement of the crowd, moved up a few inches at a time until his nose was showing in front when it ended. Wright had outridden the veteran Earl Pool, who was in the saddle on Royal Blunder.

Camp Douglas ran the 6½ furlongs in 1:19 1-5. It was a second off the track record, but a sparkling effort made possible by the ground he saved when Tipton on Hope To Do carried Monel out into the center of the track on the turn into the stretch.

Pool Stages Comeback.

Trey was a very tired horse when the real battle started half way down the stretch, but Pool kept the son of Sir Barton going long enough to get the decision over the fast finishing Light Up from Jim Norris' Peconic stable. Essie Wessie was third and she, too, was going very fast near the end.

Trey had many backers and paid $7.32. Ima Count, from the Norman W. Church stable of Los Angeles, had outrun his rivals in the early stages, but the son of Reigh Count had little left by the time the field hit the head of the stretch so dropped back out of the money.

WASHINGTON NINE BEATS CHICAGO PRINTERS, 12 TO 4

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 8.—(AP)—The defending champions from Washington were out in front tonight in the union printers' baseball tournament, a 12 to 4 victory over the heretofore undefeated Chicago team giving them a record of three wins against no losses.

A seventh inning rally, in which they scored seven runs, gave the Washington printers the victory and a tremendous start toward the championship that will be settled at Navin field Thursday. New York, which has won two games and lost none, was idle today.

Fred Burton of Chicago, who was at Hawthorne yesterday, forgot all about trying to pick the winners after the news that his fleet filly, Wise Daughter, had won the Sales stakes at Saratoga. The daughter of Wise Counsellor beat some of the leading eastern juveniles in the race.

"When legalized racing gets under way in California, it will be conducted on a high plane," he said. "We hope to be able to keep every undesirable element out of the sport as far as track ownership is concerned."

He hinted that there is likely to be no racing in California until about Jan. 1. Burke is one of the leading polo enthusiasts in the country and captain of the Midwick team of Los Angeles.

Cabouse and Burning Up completed the daily double yesterday, which paid off at $23.66. When Burning Up won it was the first victory in many months for a horse from the Emil Denemark stable.

Durga changed hands after the second race. W. H. Harris claiming the 2 year old from S. W. Labrot for $1,500. Sam Gorbett claimed Snaplock from A. A. Baroni for $1,750 out of the sixth race. D. Levy took Don Tasker out of the last race for $1,200.

The first two nominations received for the Chicago Derby on Sept. 2 were Adolph Pons' Swivel and T. H. McCaffrey's Big Red. Among the early nominations received for the John C. Schank Memorial handicap on Aug. 26 were J. F. Adams' Rehoboth, T. H. McCaffrey's Big Brand, C. L. King's Mr. Sponge, D. A. Wood's Indian Runner, and Bahamas, owned by The Oak Tree stable.

WHITE SOX TAKE ONE MORE DAY TO CATCH BREATHS

They Go Back on Trail of 1st Division Tomorrow.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Chicago White Sox, home for their longest stay of the season, today, as yesterday, will enjoy a day off. For suffering ball players, as well as other kinds of patients, there is nothing better than rest for shattered nerves, unless it's a few victories.

The days off are realities. The victories are problematical. Therefore, the Sox are spending their two days respite in soothing relaxation.

There is no reason to suspect the Sox will not win a goodly share of the games against the impending invaders from Detroit, Washington, New York, Boston, Philadelphia, and Cleveland, who will come to town in the order named.

Sox Still Have Hope.

A little discouraged in their earlier ambition to grab off some $650 per man for third place cut in the world series pot, or even the $350 awarded each member of the fourth placers, the Sox have not given up. In fact, they expect to have a lot of fun in the beans spilling rôle during the next seven weeks.

Tuesday, Aug. 15, should be the date on which the real malicious fun begins. That's the day the Washington Senators come to town, to be followed immediately by the New York Yankees. The Chicagoans will play four games in four days with the Senators and four in three days with the Yankees. If they can't do some upsetting in some of those eight games, then there's little fun left in baseball.

After the league's two big shots depart glee will not be so rampant, for then will come Boston, a team which the Sox have defeated only twice for the worst team-against-team showing in the entire league. And have you heard about the schedule while the Red Sox are in town? Here it is: Double headers on Aug. 22, 23, and 24, and a single game on Aug. 25.

They'll Play Some Ball.

On Aug. 26 there will be a single game with the A's, followed by a double header on Aug. 27. From Sunday, Aug. 20 through Aug. 27 the Sox will play 12 games, the toughest string in the memory of the oldest White Sox observer from the standpoint of sheer physical exertion. It will not be surprising if Vice President Harry Grabiner and Secretary Joe Barry are called upon to pitch a few innings.

The team returned to Chicago yesterday morning in good spirits, despite the disappointing showing against the tail end St. Louis Browns, against whom they were lucky to salvage one 11 inning victory in four games played.

In their last two games against the tail enders, their only run was a pinch home run, but it is not reasonable to suppose that such weak work on the offensive will continue long. There are a lot of things that the Sox cannot do well, but until recently they have shown a very special talent in the use of baseball bats.

Fonseca Has Worries.

Manager Fonseca is girding for the invaders with all the enthusiasm he can muster, this despite many discouragements, not the least of which is the daily reading of reports that some one or other has been selected to succeed him as manager of the Sox.

This week's installment has Simmons as the next manager, and, while Al probably would be the choice in the event of Fonseca's withdrawal, there, so far, has been no official announcement that Fonseca will not continue as skipper for some time.

MOON MULLINS—A SURPRISE PARTY

Grimes to Face Former Mates on Mound Today

Frankie Frisch, the Cardinals' manager, thinks Burleigh Grimes still is good enough to beat the team that booted him into temporary discard ten days ago. Frisch will give the veteran his chance in the second and last game of the series this afternoon. Bud Tinning will be the Cub starter.

Dean's defeat yesterday was his twelfth of the season, but he has won fifteen. The victory was Root's tenth against eight defeats.

Frisch is keeping himself out of the lineup for the time being. He is suffering with a charley horse.

When Dean lunged to catch Root's pop bunt in the fifth inning he twisted his right leg and called for time while he threw a few balls to determine whether he had suffered injury. He found nothing amiss and continued. Doubles by English and Cuyler followed.

The Cubs at home record continues to grow more elaborate. They now have won 26 of the last 30 games on their own field.

A number of the White Sox, who had an off day, were present. Their excuse for going to a ball game was that they wanted to see Dizzy Dean work.

start of the Cards' fourth that it appeared as if nothing short of a miracle would save Root from complete erasure. Martin opened with a pass and Collins singled over first base. Medwick whacked a double against the sawed-off end of the jury box in left field, sending Martin and Collins across the plate. Then Root got hold of himself. Watkins was retired on a roller to Grimm. English reached into the dugout for a pop foul off O'Farrell's bat and Root personally threw out Durocher. Root also was in a fix in the fifth on a pass to Orsatti and Crawford's single with one out. Neither Martin nor Collins could do any good for themselves.

Cubs Regain Lead.

Free passage for Jurges at the start of the fifth put the Cubs on the path to two runs and a 3 to 2 lead. Root bunted, but Dean speared it on the fly. English crashed one into the right field corner, and it landed fair by inches for a double, Jurges halting at third. Prospects of scoring faded when Billy Herman bounced to Crawford but Cuyler salvaged the situation. He lined a two bagger over first base, Jurges and English running home. Babe Herman flied to center for the third out.

Martin made a slick stop and throw to retire Billy Herman in the eighth and Cuyler lined to Crawford. Babe Herman forgot the strike out hazard and doubled to center. Demaree scratched a hit to Durocher, putting the Babe on third. Hartnett leaned into the first pitch and sent it on a line to right center for a single, Babe Herman scoring. Grimm then had the pleasure of taking the last Cub swing of the day. It resulted in a pop up to Crawford.

Pinch Hitters Squelched.

Collins nicked Root for a single with two out in the eighth and it caused no excitement. But a safe tap by O'Farrell after one was out in the ninth did stir up a little fuss, especially on the Cardinal bench when Manager Frisch began looking around for emergency help. He picked Slade to run for O'Farrell. Allen batted for Durocher and forced Slade at second on a bounder to Root. Frisch then delegated himself to swing for Dean and his roller to Billy Herman concluded the performance.

JEBY DEFENDS TITLE AGAINST BROUILLARD

New York, Aug. 8.—[Special.]—Lou Brouillard, barrel chested southpaw fighter from Worcester, Mass., tomorrow night will try to wrest New York's recognition as middleweight champion of the world from Ben Jeby, east side Hebrew. They will fight in the Polo Grounds, before an anticipated crowd of 10,000.

Brouillard has looked so well in his training that he has been made a slight favorite. In addition he recently whipped Mickey Walker in Boston. He at one time was welterweight champion.

DODGERS WIN IN 11TH, 1 TO 0, ON VERGEZ'S ERROR

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 8.—(AP)—In a pitchers' battle between Ray Benge and Hal Schumacher an eleventh inning error by Johnny Vergez today gave the Brooklyn Dodgers a 1 to 0 decision over the New York Giants. The defeat reduced the Giants' margin over the idle Pirates to three games.

Benge held the Giants to three hits, while his teammates collected nine off Schumacher. The Giants' right hander, however, was effective with men on the bases, except in the eleventh. Two of the hits off Benge were made by Schumacher, the other by Hughie Critz.

ATHLETICS, 7; RED SOX, 6

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 8.—(AP)—Lefty Grove found the Boston Red Sox troublesome today, but managed to hold them in check while his teammates were connecting for extra base hits to give the Athletics a 7 to 6 triumph.

Jimmie Foxx's 32d homer and home runs by Mickey Cochrane and Doc Cramer accounted for five runs. Cochrane's double in the first and Bob Johnson's double in the third sent in the remaining scores.

For the Red Sox R. Johnson scored when Rick Ferrell singled in the fourth and Ed Coleman fumbled. Ferrell then tallied on Marty McManus' safety. In the fifth Buck Walters and Ferrell hit to send teammates in. Ferrell doubled to send another run home in the seventh, and Tom Oliver singled to score McManus in the eighth.

Medalist Loses in First Round of Women's Golf

The defeat of the medalist and the collapse of other favorites marked the first round play in the Women's Western golf tournament at the Oak Park Country club yesterday.

Miss Bernice Wall of Oshkosh, Wis., whose 79 gave her the medal honors in the qualifying round, was eliminated by Mrs. Melvin Jones of Lincolnshire, 1 up.

Mrs. O. S. Hill of Kansas City, the defending champion, was forced to the 18th green before she was able to dispose of Mrs. H. Austin Pardue of Minneapolis, 1 up.

June Beebe Beaten.

June Beebe, Chicago's favorite in the title scramble, was vanquished by Elizabeth Abbott of Los Angeles. The Chicago girl, who in the last month had won three major golfing titles, was obviously off her game, losing 4 and 3.

Virginia Van Wie of Beverly, national women's champion, won her first round match by defeating Mrs. Lee W. Mida of Butterfield, 4 and 3.

The close of the first round of play found seven members of Chicago's contingent still in the thick of the sharpshooting. In addition to Mrs. Jones and Miss Van Wie, they are Jane Weiller of Northmoor, who defeated Mrs. R. J. Kohn of St. Louis, 7 and 6; Mrs. L. M. Zech of Tam o' Shanter, who won from Mrs. John Arends of Detroit, 3 and 2; Mrs. S. L. Reinhardt Jr., of Northmoor, winner over Mrs. R. I. Bullard of Springfield, 4 and 2; Jean Armstrong of Indian Hill, who defeated a fellow club member, Helen Mac Moran, 3 and 1, and Rena Nelson of Exmoor, conqueror of Mary Pietsch of Glen View, 2 and 1.

Mrs. Jones 1 Up at Turn.

Mrs. Jones, who has been one of Chicago's foremost golfers since she won the women's western title in 1921, never once let up in her match with Miss Wall. After going 1 down at the fourth, where she was trapped, Mrs. Jones rallied to win the 7th with a birdie and then proceeded to go 1 up at the turn by capturing the ninth with a par 4 while Miss Wall was short and required a 5.

They halved the next two holes. Both had trouble in traps at the 12th, but the Oshkosh girl took a 6, while Mrs. Jones was down in 5. Miss Wall cut her opponent's lead to 1 hole by winning the 13th with a par 3, as Mrs. Jones missed the green, and the next three were halved. The match was squared at the 17th, where a short drive and a missed putt caused Mrs. Jones to take a 4 while Miss Wall was down in par 3.

Birdie Decides Match.

At the 18th Mrs. Jones had a perfect approach, enabling her to drop her chip shot 5 feet from the pin, where she holed out for a birdie 4 to win the match. Her medal score was 43—43—86. Miss Wall had 44—43—87. The cards:

Mrs. Jones, out.....645 654 454—43
Miss Wall, out.....735 554 555—44

Miss Wall, in.....556 355 635—43—87

Another match which went the full 18 holes involved Mrs. Hill, the defending champion, and her rival of long standing, Mrs. Pardue. Mrs. Hill reached the turn 1 up, having shot a 42, two over par. Mrs. Pardue squared the match at the 10th with a birdie 4 after reaching the green in 2. The lead alternated until the short 17th where Mrs. Pardue's drive was off to the left and she needed a 4, while Mrs. Hill was on and down in 3. They halved the 18th. The cards:

Mrs. Hill—Out.....635 545 455—42
Mrs. Pardue—Out ....536 553 664—43
Mrs. Hill—In .....554 454 734—41—83
Mrs. Pardue—In .....455 355 644—41—84

Miss Van Wie Regains Form.

Miss Van Wie reached the turn with a 2 hole advantage over Mrs. Mida. She won the first three holes and then proceeded to drop the next three in a row. She won the 7th and 8th, while the 9th was halved in par. They halved the 10th. Miss Van Wie won the 11th when Mrs. Mida was short with her drive. A birdie 2 on the 13th gave Miss Van Wie her 4 hole lead and halves on the next two holes ended the match, 4 and 3. The cards:

Miss Van Wie—Out .....534 654 644—41
Mrs. Mida—Out .....645 543 754—43
Miss Van Wie—In 544 245
Mrs. Mida—In 554 445

Miss Abbott shot par golf out, the only par nine of the day, to take a lead of 3 up over June Beebe at the turn. The Los Angeles girl increased her advantage by winning the 11th. June bagged a birdie at the 12th, where she sank a 20 foot putt. Miss Abbott took the 13th, where June was in another trap. All around, June's drives were finding traps or the rough. The 14th and 15th were halved to end the match. The cards:

Miss Abbott—Out.....735 453 454—40
Miss Beebe—Out.....636 544 555—43
Miss Abbott—In.....554 345

SHERIFF CITED FOR CONTEMPT; RAIDS DOG RACES

East St. Louis, Ill., Aug. 8.—(AP)—Sheriff Jerome Munie of St. Clair county was cited for contempt of court in City court today for stopping the dog racing at Midwest Kennel club track last night. The club had obtained an injunction from City Judge William Borders, restraining Sheriff Munie from interfering with operation of the track.

Judge Borders ordered Sheriff Munie to appear before him at 10 a. m. tomorrow to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt. The sheriff, anticipating he would be cited, has indicated he would ask for a change of venue and would appeal if the decision is against him.

LADDIE TONELLI WHIPS HERRERA FOR 18TH IN ROW

Laddie Tonelli, Marseilles, Ill., junior lightweight, member of the 1932 international Golden Gloves team, scored his 18th consecutive victory in professional ranks by defeating Carlos Herrera, El Paso, Tex., in the windup of the weekly boxing show at the Western stadium, Devon and Western avenues, last night. Tonelli sent Herrera to the canvas for a count of four in the fifth round.

Phil Pernice won a five round decision over Bobby Juhrend in the semi-windup. In another five round bout Frank White beat Einer Hedquist. In the four round preliminaries Johnny Rich beat Walter Statkus; Frank Wolfram stopped Gordon Roth in the second round, and Oscar O'Hanion beat Vince Perino.

Younger Stars Dominate U. S. Amateur Trials

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The younger generation of golfers did some fast shooting yesterday as the amateurs of the nation competed in 22 sectional qualifying tests for places in the national amateur golf tournament in September.

But it was such experienced players as Frank Dolp, the former Walker cup star, and Johnny Goodman, holder of the open title, who turned in the lows scores of the day.

Dolp and Goodman each turned in a sparkling round of 68 in their tests at Tacoma and Omaha, respectively, and finished with 36 hole totals of 138 and 139. The list of the 150 or so who trailed them in qualifying for the tournament over the Kenwood course at Cincinnati, Sept. 11 to 16, included most of the other nationally known golfers, young and old, with a few notable exceptions.

Ouimet Fails to Qualify.

Francis Ouimet, champion in 1914 and again in 1931 and one of the semi-finalists last year, failed to make the first ten in Boston, where a score of 149 was good enough to win the medal. Ouimet was in a four-way tie for the last place and was beaten in a playoff by Jess Guildford. Billy Howell, the youngster from Virginia, and Neil White, California champion, also failed to qualify.

H. Chandler Egan, winner of the championship in 1904 and 1905, was right up among the youngsters.

The list of youthful players included Willie Turnesa, youngest of the famous golfing clan, who paced the New York district players, and William Y. Dear Jr., interscholastic star last year, and Bobby Servis, 18 year old Dayton, O., player who shot 148 at Cincinnati.

College Stars Qualify.

The collegiate ranks offered Johnny Fischer, Johnny Florio, Vernon Stewart, Oliver Transue, and Wilson F. Marks.

Only a few of the 15 floaters who played away from their own districts and had only to equal the highest scored in the sector in which they played without displacing a local contender made the grade. Notable among them was Lawson Little, the California ace. He outdistanced all the others who played at Denver, carding a 139.

GOODMAN FIVE UNDER PAR.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 8.—(AP)—Johnny Goodman, United States national open champion, led a field of twelve golfers today in the 36 hole district qualifying round for the national amateur tournament. His score was 139, five under par for the course.

Next in line was Rodney Bliss Jr., also of Omaha, who was runner-up within the span of five weeks in the National Intercollegiate and Western Amateur tourneys. He had 148. The other three who qualified to represent this district were Ben Cowdery, Jack Hughes, and Carl Aydelot, all of Omaha.

Jack Hoerner of Hastings qualified to represent the Palo Alto, Cal., district with a 154. In order to qualify he had to equal the score of the fifth local qualifier, which he did with a stroke to spare.

GUDDAHL'S CADDY NAMED GOODMAN; HE GETS NEW ONE

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 8.—(AP)—Officials of the national professional golf championship today decided Ralph Guldahl of St. Louis didn't have to be reminded of Johnny Goodman.

When the draw was made for caddies Guldahl drew a youngster with the same name as the famous Omahan, who beat him out by one shot for the national open last June.

Another caddy was assigned to carry Guldahl's clubs.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 8.—Domestic railroad bonds found encouragement in today's rising stock market and gained from 1 to 3 points in the broadest market in recent sessions.

Favorable trade news and approach of the fall period of seasonal business expansion exerted an influence toward higher prices. Carrier issues found stimulus in sustained carloadings and refusal of the interstate commerce commission to sanction a reduction in freight rates.

Rail Issues Advance.

Alleghany Corporation 5s, Baltimore and Ohio convertible 4½s, Chesapeake Corporation 5s, St. Paul adjustment 5s, Missouri Pacific 5s, New York Central 4½s, Southern Railway general 4s, and other carrier obligations rose from 1 to 3 points.

Industrial bonds followed the rail list, improving fractions to more than a point in such issues as Colon Oil 6s, American Metal 5½s, Warner Brothers Pictures 6s, and Penn-Dixie Cement 6s.

United States government securities were uniformly firm, the two new issues dated Aug. 15 rising to new high premiums of 16-32 bid for the 3¼ per cent bonds and 9-32 bid for the 1½ per cent notes.

Long Term Bonds Sought.

Long term treasury bonds were in demand. Wall street was prepared for early developments affecting the treasury's debt, which is callable or due within the next few years. An early start on the refunding program was believed possible.

German bonds in the foreign list pointed the way upward, with irregular gains of a point or more. These included Berlin City 6s, North German Lloyd 6s, Rhine Westphalia 6s, and Gelsenkirchen 6s.

Gold Dust.

Investors' Guide: Please advise as to Gold Dust.—W. C. E.

Answer: Gold Dust corporation's principal products are soaps and washing powders, sold under the trade name "Gold Dust." It also manufactures a group of nonrelated products such as shoe polish, flour and cereals, and margarine. In 1932 the company transferred its food products division to a new corporation, jointly owned with General Foods, Inc. This has enabled it to use to advantage General Foods, Inc.'s distributing system and to eliminate price competition that was formerly an important drawback for both organizations.

In addition, the company owns a one-tenth interest in Beech Nut Packing company.

A general policy of consolidating plants wherever possible and coördinating sales efforts so that one salesman can sell shoe polish, soap, and scouring powder, has been instituted.

The company has put many operating economies into effect and prices of raw materials have dropped sharply. Keener competition, however, has wiped out whatever savings there might have been from these sources and has resulted in lower volume, smaller margin of profit, and lower selling prices. The sale of margarine, for instance, dropped sharply while the retail price of butter was at its low point.

Net income in 1932 equaled $1.22 per common share, down 28 per cent from earnings of $1.75 per common share in 1931. Net in 1930 equaled $3.51 per common share, against $4.06 in 1929.

At the close of 1932 cash assets of more than $10,000,000 compared with total current liabilities of $4,991,000.

There is no funded debt. There are outstanding only 60,000 shares of $6 preferred. Common equity consists of 1,759,502 no par shares. The common was placed on a quarterly 30 cent dividend basis effective Feb. 2, 1933, against a previous 40 cent payment.

General rise in prices, which would increase margin of profit, would be of benefit to this company. The preferred deserves a fairly high rating. The common is somewhat speculative.

Allied Packers.

Investors' Guide: Will you please give me whatever information you can about Allied Packers, formerly listed on one of the exchanges?—M. W. H.

Answer: The following communication was received from C. E. Sigler, secretary for the committee under Allied Packers, Inc., plan:

"The stock of Allied Packers, Inc., referred to in your letter, has, so far as I am aware, no value."

PUBLIC RENEWS GRAIN BUYING; WHEAT STEADIER

Trading Still Limited; Oats Firmer.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Confidence as to the future of the grain markets is apparently being slowly restored. Much less pessimism was noted on the exchange floor gossip yesterday and, in addition, increased public buying was in evidence in corn and oats. However, the aggregate trade was much below normal and small buying or selling orders continue to cause rapid price changes.

An extreme advance of 1 cent on wheat and ¾ cent on corn was witnessed early, but later all grains dropped sharply as liquidation appeared in September corn, and the upturn was more than lost. A rally came toward the last, which wiped out the break in wheat, which closed ⅛ cent higher to ⅛ cent lower than Monday's finish. Corn, however, was ⅛ to ¾ cent lower.

Oats Show Firmness.

Oats developed independent strength and finished unchanged to ¼ cent higher. Rye was ¾ to 1 cent lower. Barley held at the "pegged" prices, the same as the previous day.

September wheat sold between 96⅞ and 99 cents and closed at 98⅛ to 98⅜ cents, while December was $1.00⅞ to $1.01, and May $1.05 to $1.05⅛. Winnipeg showed an easy undertone and was 2¾ to 3 cents lower than Saturday, having had a holiday Monday, while Liverpool was 1¾ to 2 cents lower than at the finish Friday.

Winnipeg reported "bids" on wheat, good for all next week, sold at 15 cents under the current price of futures, while "offers" sold at 27½ cents over. Trading in indemnities in American markets is banned, and the permanent elimination of this class of trading is expected to be proposed in the grain trade code to be submitted at Washington today.

Await Business Recovery.

There is a strong undercurrent of bullish sentiment apparent in comment made by leading operators as to the grain markets, but it is now claimed that the recovery in grains had been much too rapid as compared with the upward trend in general business. One of the best posted observers says the markets may hold within narrow limits until the NRA codes have materially stimulated business.

The trade has no question in its mind as to the size of this year's grain crops and the belief is unanimous that they will fall below normal domestic requirements.

Pessimistic crop reports were again received from the Canadian northwest, with the Saskatchewan weekly provincial summary showing steady deterioration. Government relief measures are reported likely there to tide over farmers until next year in sections where the crops were practically a failure.

Corn Rallies After Break.

Little hope of export business in corn with Cuba this season is held out by interests who in the past have handled the bulk of the grain imported into that country. They claim the low price of sugar is one of the main factors against business.

Corn futures rallied over 1 cent from the early low, with the September closing at 53¾ to 54 cents, after touching 52 cents on the break. December was 58⅝ to 58¾ cents and May 63¾ to 64 cents at the last. September oats closed at 40 cents and December at 42¾ to 42⅞ cents. September rye was 72¾ cents and December 72¾ cents.

After a fractional advance above the "pegged" price, barley futures settled back again and closed with September offered at 53 cents and December at 57¼ cents.

Grain, Cotton Crops Billion Over Last Year

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Grain nad cotton farmers alone will get close to a billion dollars more this year for their crops than they got a year ago, according to present prospects as seen by expert crop observers.

The promise of an income that may run 50 per cent above last year for the farm population occurs despite the combination of bad weather conditions that has brought about the worst crop grain failures in a generation. It persists, likewise, in spite of the severe market setback last month.

* *

The picture may change before all the farmer's crops are marketed—either for the better or for the worse. Many experts believe that the national industrial recovery program and the prospect of inflation—together or separately—will bring about higher prices before the farmers are through selling this year's crops.

If the national recovery scheme restores the promised millions of jobs there will be more demand for the things the farmers produce. If inflation occurs prices will advance because the value of the dollar will decline.

* *

Taking the average of the private crop estimates for the various grains and the government estimate for cotton production and multiplying by yesterday's closing prices for September deliveries you get approximately the following:

	Value of crop. Yesterday.	Year ago.
Wheat	$ 475,000,000	$ 400,000,000
Corn	1,280,000,000	945,000,000
Oats	270,000,000	211,000,000
Rye	18,000,000	13,000,000
Barley	75,000,000	75,000,000
Total grains	$2,118,000,000	$1,644,000,000
Cotton	602,000,000	462,000,000
Tl grains, cot.	$2,720,000,000	$2,106,000,000

This represents the price at the Chicago market. In as much as the cost of freight and handling were the same for both years the actual price to be realized by the farmer this year would show a much greater spread from last year than is shown by the totals including these charges.

* *

In addition to the 2 billion 720 million dollars shown above the farmer is to get additional hundreds of millions from the proceeds of the processing tax. Wheat farmers alone are scheduled to get 125 millions. Cotton planters are to get federal money either in rent or in options at a low figure on government cotton, or both. The corn farmer doesn't yet know what he is to get, because the cornhog processing tax plan hasn't been announced.

These figures are necessarily only approximations, because farmers do not all sell their crops at one time and prices vary from day to day and month to month. Also, the price per bushel or per bale at the farm varies in proportion to the cost of transportation to market.

* *

The figures for a year ago by no means represent the low point for prices of farm produce. They were merely chosen because they offered a convenient comparison. Wheat at its lowest price sold at about 44 cents per bushel. In the "year ago" column in the table the crop value is based upon a 55 cent per bushel price. Similarly, the value of the corn crop a year ago is calculated on a price of 32 cents, although corn subsequently touched a low of less than 21 cents. Cotton is figured at 7 1-10 cents per pound, and it later dropped to 4¼ cents.

* *

Allowing generously for discrepancies because these figures are based upon estimates, the fact persists that the farmer today has much better prospects than he had a year ago, despite the worst series of grain crop failures since the turn of the century.

And there is an even chance that his prospects will improve still further. A year ago overwhelming surpluses made the prospect of better prices seem almost hopeless and no change was looked for—except for worse.

DOLLAR CLOSES STEADY AFTER EARLY ADVANCE

New York, Aug. 8.—The dollar was steady in the foreign exchange markets today. After early strength it eased to close 73.68 cents as measured in terms of French gold francs. This was unchanged from last night's final price.

The dollar-pound ratio also continued unchanged with sterling closing here at a cable rate of $4.47½. The final quotation on the franc was 5.31 cents.

The stability of the dollar is attributed to the normal seasonal influences coupled with the subordination of inflation discussions by the administration leaders in Washington.

Grasshoppers Worth Money in Argentina

A definite place for grasshoppers in the economic fabric has finally been discovered. But a means of converting a pest into a profit was not hatched in the predessorial brains trust in Washington, but in the Argentine.

According to a report from assistant agricultural commissioner C. L. Luedtke at Buenos Aires the Bureau of Agricultural Protection in Argentina has been authorized by presidential decree to purchase grasshoppers at the equal of 3.4 cents U. S. currency per bag of 77 pounds. The failure of the report to give data as to whether the grasshoppers are to be delivered in the natural or dried stage prevents arriving at a nominal quotation as to the price per head or on the hoof.

Michael J. O'Brien, president of the Chicago Stock exchange, tells this one. During the Chicago bank scare in the midsummer of 1932 one of his firm's customers, in another state, alarmed by wild rumors, drew $125,000 from one of the large loop banks and deposited with the brokerage house. The house, in turn, deposited the $125,000 in the same bank. The bank saved the interest. The depositor eased his worries. And the brokerage house gained a customer's good will.

The upturn in railroad freight traffic has put a large number of idle freight cars back in use. That's good news to most people, but not to the robins that built their nests on a brake beam of car No. 58253 of the Illinois Central system. The car had stood idle for some time in the Markham yards. When it arrived in Madison, Wis., the train crew found three blue eggs in the nest. They reluctantly removed the nest.

"Sweatshop" methods to force customers men in a number of La Salle street brokerage houses to produce business recently is said to be responsible for the absence of a number of faces in various offices of late. Trained in the old school where earnings of leading industries were regarded as indicating whether the stock was a purchase or sale, the old timers, in a number of instances, are said to have refused to suggest to their clients certain securities should be bought when there was a plentiful supply of "red" ink in the earning reports.

A machine that will detect any kind of a flaw in a forging or casting is now being used by the A. O. Smith corporation of Milwaukee, according to a Chicagoan who recently visited the company's plant. The device works something in the manner of the X-ray machine on the human body, it was explained. Photographs are made of the suspected metal part from two angles and when the results are viewed through an instrument resembling a stereoscope any fault stands out, it was stated.

Life insurance sales have declined noticeably in the last two weeks. Insurance men declare that the stock market setback caused the break in sales. Hundreds of persons were in the market trying to recoup shattered fortunes and now are unable to make insurance commitments. Others use the stock market break as an excuse to avoid taking out new policies.

BANK SUBSCRIPTIONS TO NEW U. S. BONDS CUT; PAY MARKET PREMIUM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 8.—Announcement by the treasury that cash subscriptions to the offering of $500,000,000 eight year bonds would be allotted only 12½ per cent, where the amount of the bid was in excess of $10,000, resulted in active bidding today when a real market for the bonds was established.

Banks and other investors are getting less bonds directly from the treasury than they expected, and, accordingly, they went into the market to make up the difference. Early in the day 100½ was bid for the bonds, and before noon they sold at a price slightly better than that.

Taking treasury 3¾ per cent bonds of the issue maturing in 1943 as an index of value, since they make the nearest approach to the new 3¼s in rate and maturity, specialists in government bonds figured that the new issue should be worth better than 101.

The 1¾ per cent two year notes, offered concurrently with the bonds, were quoted at 100 9-32 bid today.

AM. TELEPHONE'S INCOME IN JUNE SHOWS 6.3% GAIN

New York, Aug. 8.—Gross operating revenue of the American Telephone and Telegraph company in June was $7,687,285, comparing with $7,233,791 in the same month last year, an increase of 6.3 per cent. Net operating income, after operating and maintenance expenses, depreciation, and taxes, was $1,526,408, comparing with $43,200 in the 1932 month. In May net earnings were $951,931, comparing with $553,688 in May, 1932.

J. C. PENNEY CO. SALES INCREASE OVER JULY, 1932

For the fourth consecutive month sales of the J. C. Penney company in July showed a gain over the comparable period a year ago. Sales rose 18 per cent in July compared with a like period last year to $13,563,614. The seven months' gain over the comparable period last year was 4 per cent.

Gen'l Motors July Sales 190% Over Last Year

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 8.—Sales of the General Motors corporation to dealers in the United States and Canada, together with shipments overseas for July, showed an increase of 190 per cent over the corresponding month of last year.

With the exception of the June volume, the total of 106,918 cars last month was the largest since May, 1931, and compares with 113,701 in the preceding month and with 36,877 for July of last year. Consumers in the United States last month purchased 87,298 cars, compared with 101,827 in June and with 32,849 in July of 1932. Sales to dealers in the United States aggregated 92,546, compared with 99,956 in June and 31,096 for the corresponding month of last year.

Dealers of the corporation throughout the world purchased 605,540 units in the first seven months of this year, against 431,787 for the corresponding period of last year. Sales to dealers in the United States for the first seven months of the year totaled 520,308 units, compared with 372,847 units in the corresponding period of 1932.

Sales to consumers in the United States in the first seven months of the year totaled 487,062 units, compared with 378,423 units in the like period of last year.

J. R. THOMPSON SALES EXPAND; LOSS CUT DOWN

The company announced the opening of its 116th restaurant in Kansas City. A new shop was also opened recently in the World's Fair grounds.

STOCKS CLIMB ON ROOSEVELT'S MONEY PARLEY

Inflation Move Seen; Gold Issues Lead.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 8.—Intelligence of a monetary conference at Hyde Park was enough to get the speculative community heated up on inflation again today. The President summoned three advisers to his summer home to confer with him on currency matters and the street could see nothing to the development but a move to devalue the dollar.

Buying, while it was largely for professional account, gained momentum as the potentialities of the matter were digested and the closing gong found the rally under rather brisk headway with prices at their highs of the day. The gains were from 1 to 4 points in the main body of stocks with a scattering of fast movers running higher for special added reasons.

Inflation Rumors Renewed.

The gold mining issues, naturally enough, were in demand and Homestake Mining added 15 points to its Monday board rating. Alaska Juneau rose more than a point and others of the group joined the upturn.

Rumors that the administration has planned, in spite of recent "assurances" to the contrary, to set about devaluing the dollar have been going the rounds of the financial district for a couple of weeks.

About the middle of last week, however, word emanating from supposedly authoritative sources that the inflation plans had been definitely sidetracked in view of the encouraging response to the President's business recovery plans. So the stock buying fraternity supposed that the issue had been shelved insofar as it affects the stock market, for the time being.

Still Potent Influence.

Today's news, however, made it appear either that the previous "assurances" were without the book or that there had been a change of mind in "brain trust" circles for some reason not made clear.

Chemical shares stood out, Allied Chemical running up nearly 5 points, and the repeal group attracted a following of some importance.

Chrysler was an outstanding feature in the automobile group, gaining 3¾ points partly in response to the corporation's second quarter earnings report. One rather prominent floor broker was reported to have bid in several sizable blocks of the stock during the day—more than 20,000 shares, according to one estimate. General Motors was up more than a point on the news of its sales figures for July, which proved to be the highest for the month since 1929.

Other Issues Strong.

In the general list, Commercial Solvents, United Aircraft, Standard Brands, International Nickel, Warner Brothers and National Distillers were strong spots.

News of the disturbances in Cuba stimulated some interest in the shares of American Sugar companies. Cuban American Sugar, however, sold off fractionally.

Rail stocks showed some improvement, with New York Central gaining 1¾ points. The utilities moved along with the procession. Some of the oils, notably Houston and Standard of New Jersey, did better than usual.

Doc. Crawford Pleads to Try 3d Comeback

New York, Aug. 8.—[Special.]—An informal meeting open to all creditors was held today to consider the situation of Dr. Edward A. Crawford. He is the physician who became a Chicago and New York market plunger with some small savings after the war, and whose margin holdings, mostly of grains, but also of securities, were estimated at $50,000,000 when the market broke on July 19.

DR. E. A. CRAWFORD. [Acme Photo.]

The liquidation of the grain holdings was made more orderly by the emergency edict of the secretary of agriculture, who intervened to protect the market by fixing minimum prices on the second day of the break. Nevertheless, the creditors were informed today that the accounting firm of Lybrand, Ross Brothers and Montgomery had established Dr. Crawford's condition as of July 31 to be: Liabilities, approximately, $2,500,000; assets, $1,200,000.

Confident of Third Comeback.

Dr. Crawford's counsel, Samuel Slote, said that "the doctor is supremely confident he can come back as he has done twice before."

"This is the third time he has been wiped out since he started," Mr. Slote went on. "However, he says hereafter he will stick to his specialty, which is cotton. This time he was in rye, wheat, corn, rubber, and other lines."

The meeting to consider Dr. Crawford's proposal was called to order by Hiram C. Todd, of counsel for one of the large creditors, and upon motion from the floor, Walter W. Price of Livingston & Co., brokers, occupied the chair without opposition. Mr. Todd then explained that a group of the larger creditors took the situation in hand privately about ten days ago and found Dr. Crawford so willing to coöperate that the accounting firm was immediately put to work on his books.

Offer Plan of Settlement.

According to Mr Todd the accountants also found that only about $500,000 of Dr. Crawford's assets were immediately liquid. Consequently, the doctor had proposed a settlement, which, Mr. Todd said had been favorably considered by the few larger creditors who represented about $1,500,000 of the $2,500,000 indebtedness.

The proposed settlement was to pay 25 per cent in cash in thirty days; 25 per cent in assets of negotiable character payable within a year; 25 per cent in unsecured notes bearing 2 per cent interest payable in two years; and the remaining 25 per cent in unsecured notes, bearing 2 per cent interest payable in three years.

There seemed little opposition to the proposal. A committee of seven were named to represent the creditors in conserving the assets and shaping the final terms of a compromise to be submitted to the federal court here under the new bankruptcy law which makes any settlement binding if accepted by 51 per cent of the creditors in number and amount.

Class 1 Railroads Report More Men Hired in July

Preliminary figures filed with the interstate commerce commission showed that the class 1 railroads had 989,130 employés on their pay rolls at the middle of July, compared with 957,830 in June.

U. S. PLANS FOR VAST SYSTEM OF POWER PLANTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8.—Government development and operation of power resources—long an important tenet in President Roosevelt's credo of national socialization—loomed a step nearer today with the announcement that the federal power commission is to prepare a "comprehensive national plan for the development of electricity."

The work is to be financed with $400,000 allocated to the power commission today out of the administration's 3 billion 300 million dollar easy money fund for public works. Preparation of the plan is to begin at once, it was announced.

May Sell Power to Cities.

Not only will the commission investigate the various feasible power projects now being proposed, with a view to recommending government construction of generation stations, but it will, according to the announcement, consider also the practicability of government construction and operation of transmission lines to convey the federally generated power to municipalities and cities.

Completion and prosecution of such a national program as that outlined in today's announcement will inject the federal government into the power business in both the generating and transmitting phases. For this reason, private power interests are expected to register a vigorous protest against usurpation of their private field. Similar protests, championed at the time by a number of congressional opponents of government invasion of private business, have been heard in recent years in connection with the federal program at Muscle Shoals and Boulder dam.

Costs to Determine Rates.

The power commission's survey, it was stated, will include also an examination into the cost of transmitting energy with a view to establishing rates for governmentally generated power.

"The determination of facts with regard to the cost of transmitting and distributing electricity to consumers under varying conditions is of great importance," the announcement stated, "not only in ascertaining the economic feasibility of power projects, but also the distribution cost element properly to be included in rates to consumers of electricity."

In carrying out its survey the power commission, it was said, will give consideration to the various power projects now being proposed to the public works administration for government construction.

Lake Cargo Coal Business Up to Boom Level in Ohio

Toledo, O., Aug. 8.—(AP)—Ohio's booming lake cargo coal business has reached 1929 proportions at Toledo, United States bureau of mines records show. During July shipments of coal through the Toledo harbor reached 2,191,000 tons, the best showing for the month since 1929, when shipments totaled 2,258,000 tons. This compares to 1,259,000 tons in July last year. Toledo ranks first on the great lakes as a cargo coal port.

WIDER MARKET FOR HOME LOAN BONDS SOUGHT

Made Eligible Collateral for R. F. C. Borrowing.

BY AL CHASE.

Bonds of the new federal Home Owners' Loan corporation will be acceptable at par to the United States treasury as security for postal savings and other public and government deposits, it was announced yesterday by William G. Donne, state manager for Illinois.

Mr. Donne stated that he also had received word from Washington that the federal reserve board has authorized the various federal reserve banks to accept the Home Owners' Loan corporation bonds as collateral security for advances made to member banks under the amended provisions of the act of March 9, 1933.

Good Collateral at R. F. C.

In addition Mr. Donne announced that the Reconstruction Finance corporation also has agreed to accept the bonds as collateral for loans made by it up to 80 per cent of the face value of the bonds.

"By this means it will be possible for the receiver for a closed bank who has considerable of the bank's assets in frozen loans secured by first mortgages, to exchange these mortgages individually for Home Owners' Loan corporation bonds and to pledge these with the R. F. C. for a loan to be used for cash disbursement to creditors of the bank," said Mr. Donne.

"There are probably many receivers of closed banks who will take immediate advantage of this means to obtain cash funds for payment of dividends to needy depositors."

Hope to Make Bonds Attractive.

A. E. Hutchison, general manager of the Home Owners' Loan corporation, at Washington, made the following comment in a letter to Mr. Donne regarding the action of the federal reserve board and the United States treasury: "This should make our bonds attractive to banks as an investment."

It is the opinion of Mr. Donne and other officials of the corporation that market quotations of the bonds will be within a very few points of par.

"This substantial interest rate, together with the fact that they are acceptable to both the treasury department and the federal reserve banks, probably will make these bonds very popular with member banks of the system and should result in considerable market activity from the time they're actually issued."

MIDDLE WEST'S NEW PRESIDENT MAN OF ACTION

Known as Old Fashioned Utility Operator.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

To a young man in his forties, with an enviable record as an utility operating executive, has been intrusted the task of putting the affairs of the Middles West Utilities company into such order that the present receivership may eventually be lifted.

With one week of his new job behind him, Daniel C. Green, the new chief operating executive, is making no predictions as to what he will accomplish.

"I would rather let my actions speak for themselves," he said yesterday. "I have been on the job only a week."

His reticence is by no means unrevealing. Green is known to have definite ideas on the proper functions and the limitations of the holding company in the utility field.

Favors Holding Company.

As vice president of Electric Bond and Share company, the Morgan sponsored utility chain, Green served under Sidney Z. Mitchell, a staunch advocate of the holding company principle, but a harsh critic of many practices which came into use in recent years.

Green's experience in the utility field has been primarily in the operating end of the business and he is described as an "old fashioned utility man." In the last few years with Electric Bond and Share and before that with various units of the Byllesby group, Green served in the capacity of operating executive. In this respect his background differs from that of many of the utility executives who have come to the front in the last decade. His assignments have not been those of a financial organizer. He has handled financing problems of his companies, but his experience has not been that of a financial executive.

Leaves Important Job.

He was brought to Chicago by Charles A. McCullough and Edward N. Hurley, co-receivers, at a salary reputed to be in the neighborhood of $50,000 a year. To accept this he gave up an important berth with one of the best entrenched and strongest of the utility holding companies.

Green's selection marks the close of the first phase of the Middle West receivership. For the last 15 months the receivers have been gradually rebuilding the management personnel. Many of the old executives have been retained. Several have been dismissed. New men have been added.

The receivers are known to have been anxious to pick a chief executive who would be capable of carrying on after they relinquished their duties. Green was chosen after several candidates were considered. How much longer the receivership will last is a matter of speculation.

Guess at 5 Years Time.

When the company was put into receivership in April last year the bankers thought 5 years would be sufficient time for the company to put its affairs in order. At the present time the company's prospect are neither exceedingly bad nor exceptionally good. Some observers believe that a reorganization may be effected sooner than was first thought possible.

When reorganization does come it is certain to mean a drastic simplification of the present set up. Where possible intermediate holding companies will be eliminated and operating properties placed directly under the parent company. The eastern segment of the system has been taken over by creditors and will not be involved in any reorganization.

FRED T. BASCOM, BOARD OF TRADE VETERAN, RETIRES

Fred T. Bascom, a wheat specialist for Bartlett Frazier company and one of the best known in his line by the trade, has retired and sold his membership in the Chicago Board of Trade, which he has held since 1905. He started in the Bartlett Frazier company elevator in South Chicago about forty years ago, and for twenty-five years has had charge of their cash wheat department. A banquet will be tendered him at the Standard club tonight. Harry Klein is master of ceremonies.

LIGHTWEIGHT HOGS ARE FIRM; HEAVIES LOWER

Buying Moderate Pending Conference on Code.

Hogs of light and handy weight maintained a strong price basis yesterday, but the big type continued to weaken and finished mostly 10 cents lower for the day. The extreme top sales of 210 to 240 pound butchers reached $4.50, equaling Monday's top mark, while the general average for the whole day was unchanged at $4.10.

The easier tone in lard and bellies affected the demand for extreme weights, which have been accumulating in the last few days. A number of year old butcher hogs averaging 325 to 400 pounds sold on local account yesterday at $3.75 to $3.90, while most of the 250 to 300 pound averages brought $4.15 to $4.40. Light and handyweight packing sows met fair demand at $3.50 to $3.80, and heavy "packers" sold at $3.25 to $3.40.

Buying Orders Light.

All buyers carried light orders, the smaller houses showing more indifference than the larger packers. Estimates placed the holdover at fully 7,000 head.

Interest in the trade seems to be focused on the coming meeting of government officials, packers, producers, live stock commission men, retailers, and, in fact, every one closely connected with the live stock industry which is scheduled for tomorrow at Washington. Codes and direct selling of live stock are said to be foremost of the problems to be discussed.

Barring the war time minimum on hogs, there has never been a time when the trade in live stock depended so much on the sentiment of government officials as it does at the present time, according to members of the trade.

Prices Below Year Ago.

Current hog prices are 90 cents to $1.10 under the high point of the year, and 25 to 50 cents lower than at this time in 1932. The market has been shorn of more than half of the gain it ran up following the national banking moratorium.

Cattle receipts were moderate yesterday, but the run was augmented by a liberal number of medium and heavy steers carried over from Monday's unsatisfactory trade. Prices ruled weak to lower again, some sales indicating as much as 25 cents loss compared with the best time of the preceding session. A consignment of Nebraska yearlings averaging 1,048 pounds went to Swift at $7.25, the extreme top of the market. Few others were good enough to bring more than $6.75, while the bulk of steers cashed within a range of $5.75 to $6.50.

Beef Prices Encouraging.

Reports on wholesale beef quotations from eastern distributing centers were encouraging, but buying orders were lighter and another good sized holdover was indicated late in the afternoon. Trends in butcher stock were mixed. Good to choice cows and heifers were active and strong, while other classes ruled weaker. Calves were strong to 25 cents higher.

Lamb prices scored a 25 cents upturn on a buoyant trade yesterday, both packers and city butchers paying upwards to $8.25 for handpicked strongweight natives. Western range lambs were sorted at $8 to $8.15, the feeder end of the western meeting good country demand at $6.60. A few sold to packers for slaughter at $6.75. Yearlings advanced 25 cents to $5.75.

LARD MOVES IN NARROW RANGE BUT CLOSES LOWER

An easier tone to the hog market was attributed in a measure to a break in cotton prices and to a falling off in the buying support, there being little news to induce specialists to make many commitments. Prices moved within a narrow range and closed with lard 7½ to 17½ cents lower, January being the strongest, and September and October the weakest.

Spot lard was $5.85 with a loss of 17½ cents, while loose lard was quoted at $5.10, a loss of 15 cents, and leaf declined to 12½ cents to $3.15½. Bellies were 12½ to 20 cents lower on futures and unchanged at $7.00 for cash lots. Liverpool lard

FRENCH DUTIES ON U. S. GOODS TO BE MODIFIED

PARIS, Aug. 8.—(AP)—The long awaited relief for American business interests, which suffered heavily in the tariff increases decreed July 12, has been ordered in a modifying decree which will be published in the official journal tomorrow.

By the new decree numerous American products on which the general tariff was raised, in some cases representing a fourfold increase, will be placed again under the minimum and intermediary rates.

At the same time American interests are daily expecting the imposition of an exchange surtax, probably 15 per cent, to compensate for the fall in the dollar value.
